Latter Say Lords Dare Not Preach Their Gospel Openly

LONDON, Dec. 20.—Does the country show any signs of hostility to the House of Lords? A correspondent asked at the Conservative party headquarters this morning.

"Not a bit of it," was the reply.

"The radical uproar is universally recognized as stage thunder and the Conservatives are gaining everywhere. The Cobdenites, home-rulers, Socialists and other pro-budgeters are producing nothing but gibberish and squalor."

At the Liberal headquarters the correspondent was told differently.

"Our people," he assured, "have already delivered 250 speeches in various parts of the country. Each one has been weighty and has stirred great audiences. The power of the House of Lords to destroy legislation is doomed. The new second chamber will be able to check, but not to veto, the proposals of the House of Commons. We do not pretend to be conducting a rosewater campaign but our invective is mild, compared with the vituperation of the other side."

It is hard to find the drift of public sentiment, but impartial observers agree that the outlook is very uncertain. The proximity of Christmas has not yet slowed down the campaign. Day and night, the cities and remote parts of the country are scenes of intense and political activity. Caravans and gramophones are abroad in all districts and the boardings are plastered with electioneering posters.

A wedding which is attracting much interest will take place early in January, when Frank Parker Day, Professor of English at U. N. B., will be united in marriage to Miss Mabel Killam, daughter of the senior member of the firm of Killam Bros., Yarmouth.

Prof. Day is a graduate of Mount Allison and was the first Rhodes scholar from that institution. While at Oxford he took a leading place in both his studies and in athletics, winning of Oxford and Cambridge, and rowing in the "Varsity eight."

Miss Killam is a graduate of the Ladies' College, St. John, and has many friends in this city.

Charge Arises From the On War in San Francisco—Eight Have Been Killed.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 21.—Lang King Chong, editor and publisher of the Chinese Free Press, secretary of the Chinese Masons and chief aide of Dr. Sun Yat Sen, a revolutionist, for whose capture the Peking government is said to have made a standing offer of $50,000, has been arrested on an indictment charging him with murder in connection with the feud between the Ye family and the On Yick Tong. The fight between the Ye and the On Yick rose over the elopement of Bow Gee, an On Yick slave girl, with a Ye family man. Eight murders have been committed by the warring factions.

The Chinese merchants have received a telegram from the Chinese minister at Washington asking for details of the war and its origin. This is thought to indicate that the Chinese government will take a hand in suppressing the feud.

Lady Lytton's Opinion of Her Husband—Other Notable Cases Cited.

"No sun warmed my roof-tree; the marriage was a blunder; she was nine years my senior." Seldom did the last of the great Victorian novelists, Geo. Meredith, refer to his first marriage. In 1849, with Mary Eliza Nicholls, widow of Lieutenant Nichols and daughter of Thomas Love Peacock. But on one occasion he broke the silence concerning that unhappy episode in his life with the foregoing pathetic words: "It is some satisfaction to know that when the first Mrs. Meredith died, in 1860, this great writer enjoyed some twenty years of much happier domestic life with Miss Vulliamy, a lady of French descent, whom he married in 1864, and who died twenty-four years ago."

RUSKIN'S MISTAKE.

Several other men of genius contemporary with George Meredith had reason to regret the matrimonial yoke. John Ruskin, for instance, after falling in love as a boy with a beautiful French girl, whom he wooed with poems, romances, dramas and music, received nothing in reply but chilly indifference and lively ridicule. He married at the age of twenty-nine a lady of great beauty, Euphemia C. Gray, of a family long intimate with the Ruskins. The marriage, we are told, was arranged by the parents of the couple, was a somewhat hurried affair, and brought no happiness to either. Ruskin was immersed in his studies and projects, while his wife was devoted to society, and six years after the marriage she left him, obtained a nullification under Scotch law, and ultimately became the wife of John Everett Millais.

Richard O'Leary After Daily Telegraph

His Ultimatum—Retraction and Apology or Suit—Richibucto Wharf Deal.

Mr. Richard O'Leary, of Richibucto, was in the city yesterday making preliminary arrangements for a libel suit which he proposes to institute against The Daily Telegraph unless that journal promptly retracts certain statements made about him in connection with the wharf deal, and apologizes for the same to his satisfaction.

Reporting the investigation into this wharf deal, the public accounts committee at Ottawa, The Telegraph last Friday published the following:

"Mr. O'Leary was then asked to read the reply he sent to the Minister of Public Works, and he produced a long typewritten document. After hearing that Mr. Pugsley caused a sensation by producing the original letter sent to Mr. O'Leary, which proved to be altogether different from that purporting to be a copy read by the witness."

In his head lines over this The Telegraph printed: "Read copy of what purported to be letter to Dr. Pugsley, who confronts him with the original which was entirely different."

Another statement to which Mr. O'Leary takes exception and considers libelous was that he had admitted removing gravel from what is now the government wharf without the permission of the Public Works Engineer. Mr. O'Leary says he not only made no such admission, but knows of no such act. "If any of my employees had carted from this wharf," said Mr. O'Leary, "it was without his knowledge or permission."

With reference to the letter episode, Mr. O'Leary said that the copy which he read differed from the original which Mr. Pugsley produced, only in one sentence, in the last paragraph, which had no bearing on the case as a whole. He dictated a letter to the minister, as he says, and after reading it over decided to make a change by eliminating a reference he had made to Lieut. Col. Tucker's visit to Richibucto on the day the wharf transfer was made. He thereupon dictated a second letter, which was the one sent forward. The stenographer, however, kept on file copies of both letters, and instead of furnishing Mr. O'Leary with the copy of the one sent, gave him in mistake the first copy, which he produced in evidence.

LORD LYTTON'S CASE.

In the annals of literature, however, it would be difficult to find, even in fiction, a more amazing example of enmity between husband and wife than that which existed between Lord Lytton and Rosina Wheeler, a beautiful Irish girl, whom he married in 1827, despite the protests of his mother. It was a most unhappy marriage, and even after the separation in 1836 they referred to one another in the most embittered terms.

One day, when Lord Lytton called at a certain house, he found the mistress deeply engaged in a book. "What have you got there that interests you so much?" he asked. "The School for Husbands," she answered. "You don't mean to say," he replied, "that you consider life long enough to waste it on such unmitigated trash?" "Oh, but I assure you, Sir Edward, I consider it very clever, very smart, and witty. You should look at it again, and you would discover that you have quite misappreciated it." "No, thank you. I have neither read nor do I intend to read that wretched book; and you may rely upon it, if you have found any sense within the covers, those pages are not by the supposed author, the author in question was Lady Bulwer."

And Lady Lytton did not mind words when speaking of her husband. She never neglected an opportunity to tell all and sundry what her opinion of him was, so much so, in fact, that people who were inclined to sympathize with her in the first place ultimately changed their views and opinion as to who really was the cause of this matrimonial failure.

BUTLER TESTIFIES

Declares He Served Woman With Cigarettes and Cocktails

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—Cocktails and cigarettes which have figured so prominently in the trial of Mrs. Blair Brokaw against her husband, F. Gould Brokaw, again assumed importance today in the trial at Mineola, L. I.

Sydney Woods, the Brokaw's butler, testified for the defense today, that he served cocktails and cigarettes when she was up and dressed and when she was in bed. He was positive that he saw Mrs. Brokaw puffing cigarettes, and she mentioned to me that she had discharged her nurse, Miss See, in her own testimony, would only own to an experience of four cocktails and an occasional cigarette, said open-mouthed.

"I carried a cocktail to Mrs. Brokaw in the sun parlor," continued the butler, "and she mentioned to me that she had discharged her nurse, Miss See, in her own testimony, would only own to an experience of four cocktails and an occasional cigarette, said open-mouthed."

"Was the name of the person mentioned the whip or did the kicking?" "Mrs. Brokaw knew who did it," replied the butler.

"Was anything said to indicate that she was being whipped?" "Yes, she said, 'Mrs. Brokaw was very cross and nobody asked her.'"

Justice Henry H. Gildersleeve, a friend of Mr. Brokaw, testified that he spent some time at High Point, N. C., the Brokaw's winter country place, and that he had been very kind and affectionate toward his wife.

MANY TOWNS FEEL TREMOR

No Communication With Port Hood

ANXIETY FELT

But it is Thought That Damage Done is Slight

HALIFAX, N. S., Dec. 20.—Northern Cape Breton was shaken by an earthquake yesterday afternoon, the effects of which were felt from Mabou on the western shore of the island to St. Ann's on the east. The communication with Inverness was wholly cut off last night. The shock was felt there more severely than in any other section of the island, and after three o'clock yesterday afternoon it was impossible to get in communication with that section by telephone. While night stated that there was no serious damage there, some anxiety was felt last night over interruption of communication. The first news of the disturbance came from Baddeck. Telephone central there reported that between 3 and 3:30 o'clock the village was shaken by a disturbance of considerable force. St. Ann's, on the eastern coast, also reported a severe shock. Reports came in next from Orangevale of a disturbance there. Telephone central at that point stated that shortly after three o'clock the village was started by a heavy rumbling sound. At first it was thought to be an express train running at high speed, but in a moment the rumbling ceased and a tremble of dishes and light articles danced around on shelves, and store was badly shaken. No damage was reported from the line of the intercolonial. The operator at Grand Narrows Station stated that earthquake had also been felt there, but that it was not so severe as that reported before it closed for the night. West Bay, Mabou, and Margaree had also been visited by the tremor. No news could be secured from Inverness or Port Hood last night. All evening long, distance operators in the Cape Breton section of the country established communication with these points, but every attempt proved futile. Wires failed to respond and about eleven o'clock the Sydney office concluded that the earthquake was responsible for derangement of communication. Judging from force of disturbance in the Cape Breton section, it is not thought that quake could have been severe enough in Inverness to have caused any damage but the fact that no news could be secured from there during night caused some anxiety.

Perfect Flood Let Loose

IF THE LIBERALS WIN It is Believed Conservative Nobles Will Not be Called by King

LONDON, Dec. 20.—Newspaper columns teem with reports of speeches which are being made daily all over the country, but not yet is the election campaign in earnest. The drums are beating but the people are not yet thoroughly aroused. It is, however, already clear that the campaign will be almost one of unprecedented bitterness. Meeting after meeting in every part of the country has either been broken up or rendered futile by riotous interruptions.

Speakers at Unionist meetings have been unable, however, to obtain anything like a hearing. Even Austen Chamberlain, a few nights ago, had to abandon an attempt to speak at a meeting in his own constituency. A perfect flood of peers has been let loose on the country. They are good speakers, but their public meetings have not been successful, though they have demonstrated that the hereditary peerage is a good-tempered and efficient body. When writs for elections are issued, these members of the upper house must retire to private life, they are not allowed to take part in public affairs, and they must defend their own house, but it is becoming clearer every day that the nobles do not wish to fight the elections on the question of the House of Lords. Home rule, the budget, unemployment and tariff reform they seek to make the chief planks of the platform.

A feature of the past week has been the publication of a series of articles by the well-known Socialist leader, Robert Blatchford, in the Daily News. These articles are devoted to proving that Germany is preparing to effect the downfall of the British Empire. They are strongly worded and, although they contain nothing new to students of European politics, they attract attention in quarters where the subject has hitherto been little regarded, and they are being used to attack the government for its neglect of both the army and the navy. SUICIDE NOTE

Friends Fear Woodstock Man Has Done Away With Himself

The strange disappearance of Douglas McAdam, a man of about 20 years of age, and son of John McAdam, a carpenter, whose home is in Fredericton, has become one of the chief topics of conversation at Woodstock. The affair is causing quite a sensation, and much uneasiness to the man's family. It is conjectured from the circumstances of the case that he committed suicide. McAdam has been staying with Mr. and Mrs. S. J. McIntosh in Woodstock for the past few days. On Sunday he left the house, and has not been seen since. He left the following note:—

"I have been thinking of suicide for some time now. I cannot get work, and besides, I am in love with a girl in this town who does not love me. These two things have just about set me crazy, so I am going to end it all to-night. Good-bye.—Douglas McAdam."

On Sunday night it has been learned he stopped at Herbert Lindsay's house on the Houlton Road, and yesterday morning he started out ostensibly for the purpose of walking to Houlton. The young man has been working in the vicinity of Woodstock off and on for five years, and always was possessed of a peculiar disposition. It is said that he was much enamored of the young woman. The Town Marshall has been informed of the disappearance of young McAdam, and is working hard on the case, but can learn nothing of the whereabouts of the man.

Nicaraguan Congress Unanimously Makes Him President

Appointment Popular—Populace Shouts "Viva Madriz"

Uncle Sam Says New President Must Deliver the Goods

MANAGUA, Dec. 20.—Dr. Jose Madriz, former judge of the Central American court of justice at Carriage and Zelaya's candidate, was elected president of Nicaragua today by the unanimous vote of congress. The session was a stormy one, but there seemed to be perfect unanimity with regard to the election of Madriz, and when the official announcement was made their vociferous cheering and cries of "Viva Madriz," "Viva Leon," "Down with monopolies," "Down with tyranny, long live the constitution." Dr. Madriz will assume the presidency at ten o'clock tomorrow morning. From the balcony of his hotel he made a brief speech, urging harmony and co-operation and pledged himself to uphold the rights of the citizens, granting free elections and establishing a policy of equal opportunities for all.

At the afternoon session congress accepted the resignation of Madriz as judge of the Central American court and Yaniguia Prado was appointed to succeed him. The committee which has had the resignation of Zelaya in hand then recommended its acceptance of thanks to Zelaya for his services and the formulation of an address to Nicaragua. After the adoption of this report the election of the new president was proceeded with, the nomination of Dr. Madriz being accepted with much enthusiasm. On the call for a standing vote every member rose to his feet in the affirmative.

Madriz will exercise a strong power here and while it was brought to his notice that Madriz is not looked upon as a favorite by the government of the United States, he urged Madriz to the front as his successor in office. It is known to both Zelaya and Madriz that the election of Madriz as president of Nicaragua would not be a change of government, but a change of the man in the chair. Madriz is a man of high capacity who is able to smooth out many of the rough places, and bring about such an amicable condition among the people themselves that he will not be compelled to withdraw from office.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 20.—Secretary of State Knox felt it his duty today that the attitude of this government toward Nicaragua would not be changed by the election of Madriz to the Presidency as the successor of Zelaya, resigned. Madriz will have to show that he is capable of directing a responsible government, and prepared to make reparation for the wrong which, it is claimed, have been done to American citizens in the Central American Republic. This country still maintains that, until a responsible government is set up and the entire country is in a condition, so that definite negotiations can be held, diplomatic relations cannot be resumed.

APPARENTLY A MISTAKE.

A story comes from a Kentucky town that is worth repeating. There lives there a woman who says that she has immediate communion with the Almighty, and now and then sends down to those of common clay a message that she has received from on high. The fact that these messages sometimes take on a very material form does not alter their effectiveness in her opinion.

One day she went into the bridge of a well known attorney and approached him solemnly as one about to reveal an awe-inspiring secret. "The Lord sent me to you for $25," she announced.

"That must be a mistake," he replied, blandly, "because the Lord knows I have not got it." "Celestial communication was then cut off."

MEN'S LENGTHY GOODBYES.

The stenographer sighed audibly and threw down her pencil. "What's the matter now?" asked the little office girl.

"Talk about women!" retorted the stenographer. "Did you ever see any woman beat that record?"

"What record?"

"Why, those men saying 'goodbye' to their man to go. I want to take dictation. Every time he takes a step toward the door Mr. B. says 'Hold on a minute or something.' And if Mr. B. doesn't stop him he turns back on his own account. For twenty minutes they've been bidding each other farewell and remembering something they forgot. Every few seconds they get a little nearer the door. I suppose they'll finish up by going out together. I've often heard how long it takes two women to say goodbye to each other, but I never had a chance to see how long the men take, and I'm blessed if it isn't longer."—New York Press.

KICKING OVER TRAIN SERVICE

Passengers Make Complaints—Train Two Hours Late

Passengers Between St. John and Moncton are Unable to Do Their Shopping.

The Intercolonial Railway Commission still moves about in world's unrealized, or else it's economizing class has reduced it to a state where it "just don't care."

The Intercolonial Railway of Canada gives it out as one of its rules that when the Montreal express, due to arrive here at 2 p. m. each day, is an hour late, a supplementary train shall be put on to run from Moncton to St. John. This is only the local application of a general rule, but it is the instance which counts at this particular time of the year, and in this particular neck of the woods.

The passenger business which the Montreal train picks up between Moncton and St. John is a more important reason for its existence than what it does between the upper provinces and Moncton. For every four passengers who reach Moncton from Quebec Province by this train, there are between 100 and 200 passengers who desire to reach St. John from Moncton by the Moncton and St. John. This is an estimate made some time ago by an I. C. R. official.

At this time of year there are hundreds of people each day who take this train to the city relying upon the promise of the intercolonial that they will reach here at 2 p. m. each day, and they will be able to do several hours shopping, so as to be able to leave for home by the Sussex train at 5.15 p. m. or at 6.30 p. m. by the Quebec express which makes local stops.

Yesterday this train was two hours and a half late, reaching here at 4.30. On Saturday it was one hour and half late. This left a small margin for the purpose of hundreds of people. They could do nothing, and almost every one of them lodges a complaint against the absurd system of economy which is ruining the reputation of the People's Railroad.

Scouring Country for w—Xmas Dinner to Cost Some

Christmas turkey is roasting year higher than ever before. A bird this season is retailing at 27 cents a pound. At least that is possible that the price may be higher as turkeys are scarce and are scouring the country of stray fowls. Last year at turkey was selling at 21 and a half pound. Like almost every article of food turkey has been dearer.

It is the Christmas turkey that stands high above all other people's fowl of the year. Such people will have to do as much for the fowl of the year as will the lovers of turkey. Ducks are retailing at $1.75 to $2.00 per pair. Each one has a City Market and the poultry $1.75 to $2.00, and chickens $1.00 to $1.50 per pair.

The prominent retailers of the city when asked by the Star concerning the state of the market in poultry, said that the trend of prices was still through record prices are high. The demand is greater simply as far as turkeys are concerned. Buyers have been out of the country for several weeks on the watch for what-coming. This condition of such different from what it was years ago when the farmer to sell turkeys sought the end of the dealer seeking as is now the case. In the case in the price of turkey owl has been noticeable for past seven years, and has the price being almost $1.75 to $2.00 per pair. The sold for more than 10 cents.

That are consumed in St. John at this season of the new Brunswick fowls. This reports a large amount of turkeys do not have to be imported. In the present time, a province can hardly expand as there are no fowls of the American and Montserrat. As far as the dressing keys is concerned, New fowls are superior to others, and entrails are removed and are retained.
