NOTICE.
When a newspaper offers its advertising space at a nominal figure, it is a practical admission of "no circulation." THE KLONDIKE NUGGET asks a good figure for its space and in justification thereof guarantees to its advertisers a paid circulation five times that of any other paper published between Juneau and the North Pole.

A REMARKABLE CAMPAIGN.

General elections will take place throughout Canada and the States almost simultaneously. If all signs do not fail, the administrations now in power in both countries will be returned with safe majorities. In the United States Bryan is making a wonderful canvass, exceeding in some respects the remarkable record which he made in '96. As a campaigner it is doubtful if Bryans' equal has ever been produced in the history of the republic. Had he gone into his first presidential fight with a larger practical experience in affairs of state, he would have made a much more formidable antagonist. His experience in the arena of national statesmanship is limited to the short time he served in congress and, in fact, Bryan as a national figure was practically an unknown quantity until he made the famous speech in the Democratic convention in Chicago four years ago.

His powers as an orator, combined with a personality of great magnetism, have won him a following which has probably not been equaled since Lincoln, by his homely ways and hard common sense won the masses to his side.

A most remarkable proof of Bryan's personal influence with his supporters lies in the fact that, notwithstanding his absence from the convention this year, he practically dominated both the Democratic and Populist assemblies, and the platform as adopted by each was of his own making.

These facts do not signify, however, that he will be elected on next Tuesday.

The prestige of a successful administration, and that a war administration, is against him, as is also the well defined fear in business and commercial circles that the elevation of Bryan to the chief executive office would mean uncertainty with possible disaster.

The McKinley administration has been attended with a great degree of prosperity which has been general throughout the States, and although there is but little reason to argue that this prosperity has resulted from legislation passed by the republican administration, still McKinley will be credited with it just as he would have been held responsible had the past four years in the States been filled with financial panics.

It is not probable that Bryan will ever be president of the United States. His role in the history of the republic will be somewhat akin to that of John the Baptist. He will in all likelihood be the forerunner of another, who will ride into power four or eight years hence, when the reform sentiment, which Bryan has so assiduously nurtured and cultivated during the past four years, shall have reached the climax of its strength.

The high profit which can be made by palming off spoiled goods upon the public makes the temptation to enter into that kind of business very alluring to unscrupulous parties. For this very reason a stringent inspection should be maintained by the health officers, as it is through them only that the general public can be assured of protection against such abuses. The prices of commodities are certainly high enough in Dawson to entitle the consumer to a first-class article when he buys. There should be no hesitation in condemning any articles offered for sale which are found to be unfit for consumption.

Skagway is following in the lead established by the Nugget and through the Daily Alaskan of that city is testing the strength of the two candidates for the presidency. Bryan, according to the dispatches of last night is in the lead. If the silver apostle was as popular with his countrymen at home as he is with those of them who are abroad, his chances for election would be much brighter.

On Monday the souvenir which will go to the winner of the Nugget's presidential contest will be placed on exhibition at Jeweler Sale's store. The souvenir will be one of the most clever specimens of the jeweler's art that has yet been produced in Dawson. It will remain on exhibition some time after the close of the contest in order that everyone may have an opportunity of seeing it.

The Sun has issued a special number which in many respects is the most elaborate affair of the kind that has ever appeared in Dawson. The feature of the issue is the half tone illustrated work which fills about one-half the pages. The Sun has certainly done itself proud.

The public spirited women of Dawson are preparing to undertake the work of caring for members of their sex who are unable to find employment or otherwise take care of themselves. The movement should receive all possible encouragement.

The Weather.

Mercury stood at zero here this morning and telegraphic reports from all along the river and lakes as far as Bennett showed the same mildness to be prevailing. The river has ceased to run at both Ogilvie and Stewart.

His Hard Fate.

"Yes'm, I wuz drove away from home when a mere child by the heart less cruelty of me stepmother."
"Poor fellow! What did she do?"
"She insisted on giving me a bath every Saturday night!"

"No," said the St. Louis man, "I did not enjoy the street car ride you gave me. The scenery was all right and the roadbed good, but it was too tame."
"Tame?"
"Yes. At home I'm used to being blown up at every second street corner."—Ex.
