and in which I profess to be only a humble follower. The wonderful improvements which have since been made by scores of ingenious men in various countries have established the photographic art as one of the most useful as well as beautiful discoveries of the age. As to a sketch of my life I would refer you to a biography in Harper's Monthly of January 1863 which so far as facts are concerned is the best I have ever seen.

With respect, your obedient servant
Samuel F. B. Morse.

We regret that we cannot reproduce the letter in his own handwriting but a fac-simile of his signature will be found on the mount. His writing is bolder and clearer than that of most men half his age. Our best and united thanks are assuredly due to him for the pleasure and gratification he has given us, and for the early befriending of our art. When Photography was a tender infant holding up its tiny hands, crying for some one to take it up and nurture it in this country, the artistic feelings of Prof. Morse were touched and he brought the infant carefully across the ocean to its native home where it has thrived and grown immeasurably. For this we laud Prof. Morse and his memory shall be perpetuated in our minds as the Father of American Photography.
