light when nailed up. In May last I saw in London ome butter in these boxes that had been packed six months. It had been 48 days in the refrigerator of a steamer and the balance of the time in the ordinary temperature of the warehouse in London. I was astonished at what I saw when the hutter was turned out and the paper stripped off. The big brick of butter looked as bright as the day it was packed. The borax pickle glistened all over it like the morning dew .-The butter was as sweet on all sides as the centre and was ready to cut by a retailer without loss of weight in scraping. I had some June Iowa creamery in the same parties' hands. It was extra grade at the time of packing. Some of this was stripped for me, and I wish some of our dealers who are so fond of holding butter until it is ripe, could have seen the con-trast. My butter stripped dry, with the salt that had been thrown over the sides of the tub when packed perfectly dry and adhering to the utter. The butter was bleached almost white on sides and bottom, one-eighth of an inch in, and strong one-quarter of an inch on sides and fully one inch on top. There was no doubt but what my butter was as good in quality the day it was made as that of the Australian the day of its make. The difference in its condition at this time of comparison was wholly owing to the package. -This Australian package has recently had a very severe test that demonstrated its worth completely.—

George A. Cochrane, in Creamery PRESENTS FOR CHILDREN.

It seems easy enough on the surface to select Christmas gifts for children. With the shops full as they are at the holiday season, of everything to delight the most exacting yourgster, there should be no difficulty in making a choice.

As a rule, the baby of either sex delights in blocks. Indeed, these are usually popular with children of a larger growth, and like other good things, it is hardly possible to have materials of the wee architects.

In this day, when the study vanced to the dignity of a s encsets of blocks are offered for sale that might furnish amusement and instruction to boys and girls who have long since quitied the nursery. Such blocks are of wood, stone, and composition, and come in shapes that enable their owner to build any- Iron thing from a Queen Arre coulage to a cathedral. WHY CHILDREN HANG THEIR STOCKINGS.

The custom of hanging stockings on Christmas eve, like that of preparing the Christmas tree, is derived rom the Germans, who have a fable that while the stockings of good chi'dren are filled with toys and sweatmeats by Khris Kingle-a corruption of Christ Kindlin, or Christ Child-those of bad ones receive nothing but a small rod or switch. which is placed in them by another per-onage, known as Peisnichol, iterally Nicholas with fur, meaning St. Nicholas dressed in for. It is a ression of abject misery and broken eartedness on the face of some poo little wight who, baving been dis-Christmas eve, finds in his stocking filled with bonbons and playth gs. The dread of geiling the rod from old Pelsnichol on Christmas keeps many a German child in order throughout the entire year.
