everal other institutions. Religious Barbarity. LONDON, June 21.—At the great trial which is now proceeding at Nyreghhaza, in Hungary, of a number of Jews accused of having murdered a Christian girl at Tisza-Elzar to use her blood to mix with their Passover bread, a sister of the girl alleged to have been murdered testined that she spoke to her sister on the afternoon the marder is said to have occurred, while on the other hand the principal witness for the prosecution, a Jewish boy named Moretz Icharf, swore he saw the murder committed in the synagogue before the midday meal was partaken of. The rial is causing extraordinary excitement. The Christians in the vicinity are intensely hostile to the accused men, and those who attend the trial jeer the counsel for the defence when they rise to speak. The father of the boy Scarf is one of the prisoners charged with the crime. The boy, though not legally compelled to testify against his father, elected to do so. He tells his story with great coolness, but he refused his father's request to speak in his native German, and the elder Scarf declares that the boy would not dare to tell a lie in that tongue. The prisoners curse and spit at the witnesses who testify against them. It has been elicited in the course of the trial that the boy Scarf intends to become a Christian; that he has been told by Catholic priests about the alleged use of Christian blood in making Passover bread, and that he had been threatened by the police prior to the open examination. In the trial on Friday, at Nyreghhaza, in Hungary, of the Jews who are accused of having murdered a Christian girl and used her blood to mix with their Passover bread, the only clear evidence adduced tended strongly to establish an alibi in favour of Boxbaum, the Jewish butcher. The witnesses for the prosecution contradicted each other, and also their own former statements. The audience in court openly threaten the witnesses for the defence with punishment. The public prosecutor, in consequence of the disorder in court, declared he would propose most stringent measures for the preservation of order unless the president stopped the disturbance. The Times' correspondent, in his report, says he believes the boy Moritz scharf, the principal witness for the prosecution, is a maniac. A Catholic priest admitted that he was the author of the anonymous attack on the Jews accusing them of the murder of the girl.

Lord Randolph, in a second com-munication, states that he will forward to Mr. Gladstone an indictment of the Khedive on the charge of being the real author of the massacres, and he (Lord Randolph) will be prepared to co-operate to the utmost extent of his resources in bringing up such witnesses as may be necessary to prove the truth of his statements in this particular.

If men were as rich in charity as in giving good advice, this would be a delightful world A sage named Baxendale, of Liverpool, who has accumulated a fortune, has been giving some good advice to the poor. "The bes way to succeed in life," he says, "is to save threepence out of every shilling." An op ponent to this appears in the person of a letter-carrier, who, out of his pittance of fifteen shillings a week, not only maintains himself but assists his parents. Were he to provide against a rainy day by hoarding up one-fourth of his earnings, he would have only eleven shillings and threepence per week to pay his way. This sum might be made to cover his own expenses, but his parents would have to derive what comfort, they could from the knowledge that their son preferred providing for his own future to helping them in their present distress. To teach the poorer classes how to make their money go farther by thrifty contrivances is most praiseworthy work But it is the veriest cant to specify how much they ought to save, when they are struggling night and day to keep a little life in their half-starved bodies.

Beatty, of Washing ton, New Jersey, is a sufficient guarantee of the reliability of the instruments advertised in another column.

The bouffant skirt is surely gaining ground in America, but it is a matter of congratulation that the crinoline proper is kept in abeyance. It is true that many of the otherwise best dressed ladies wear the tournure, but instead of rampant steel they content them selves with box-pleated folds of very stiff muslin or crinolette, fastened low on the inside of the dress skirt in the back, It is considered exceedingly bad taste to wear the tournure high up to the waist.

Messrs, Elliott & Son, decorators and glass stainers, of Toronto, have completed the largest contract in interior decoration ever executed in Canada. They have painted and decorated in oil the whole of the Rossin house, covering a wall surface of seven acres, using exclusively the "Elephant" brand of white lead. Their experience on this conlica root, sweet flag root, star anise root, and to nour o'clock this afternoon it skulls of port other herbs soaked in refined alcohol; but to not of skulls of infants had been found that which is commonly sold in New York is adulterated with indigo, blue vitricl, and way is now in the county prison, charged other polishnous substances, which, taken into with assaulting a relative.
