THE FALL WEATHER HARD ON LITTLE ONES

Canadian fall weather is extremely hard on little ones. One day it is warm and bright and the next wet and cold. These sudden changes bring on colds, cramps and colic, and unless baby's little stomach is kept right the result may be serious. There is nothing to equal Baby's Own Tablets in keeping the little ones well. They sweeten the stomach, regulate the bowels, break up colds and make baby thrive. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

ROD AND GUN

Although the opening article in the October number of Rod and Gun in Canada magazine, published by W. J. Taylor, Ltd., Woodstock, Ont., is descriptive of a notable Canadian Canoe Race in which canoe men racing on the Lievre and Ottawa Rivers covered over two hundred miles in sixty hours, the table of contents shows a predominance of big game hunting stories. "How 1913 Turned Out Lucky for One Bull Moose" is the story of a moose hunt in Quebec Wilds; "An Unusual Hunting Trip" describes an American sportsman's outing after moose in New Brunswick forests; while "Moose Hunting in the Riding Mountains of Manitoba" tells of a winter hunt in that province. "Trapped" is an amusing story of how a Western sportsman outwitted the R. N. W. M. P. representative. Other stories and the regular department make up an interesting big game issue for Canadian sportsmen.

Mrs. Martha Black leaves tomorrow for Boston, where she will spend the winter with her daughters. Quite a number of Chatham people spent Thanksgiving in town.

Col. Sam Hughes Will Consult British War Office

As to Details of the Second Contingent--
Recruiting Will Not Begin Until War
Office is Heard From.

Ottawa, Oct. 13.—Orders for the recruiting of the second expeditionary force will not likely be issued until Col. Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia, has arrived in England and has consulted with the British War Office as to the character of the force.

This accounts for the fact that no word has been received from the British authorities as to the nature of the force required. The War Office though has accepted the offer of the Government of a second army of 22,000 men, and all that remains now is to decide upon the character of the force.

It is understood that one of the chief objects of Col. Sam Hughes' visit to the old land was to consult the British War Office as to the details of the second army. He sailed last Wednesday, and it is said he will land in England tomorrow or Thursday. It will be, in that case, the end of the week at least before any definite word can be received from England, and before the call to arms can be issued.

From the offers which are pouring in to headquarters it will be easy to raise the second contingent. Westerners are particularly anxious to go to the front, and there would be no trouble recruiting the whole of the second army in the West. It is said there will be a large proportion of cavalry, and the Western Rough Riders and frontiersmen will get their chance. In the meantime the Department of Militia is not idle and the thousands and one details necessary to the raising, equipping and mobilizing of a force are still being attended to, so that when orders are issued the whole machinery of the department can start smoothly. As this force will be recruited by divisional centers, some of the difficulties of the first force, it is said, will be eliminated.

Rev. R. G. Fulton of Chatham,
In Sermon to Garrison Soldiers.

The sermon to the Protestant soldiers of the garrison was preached on Sunday forenoon, the 11th instant, in the Methodist church here by Rev. R. G. Fulton of Chatham, who took as his text Luke x:19—"I beheld Satan as lightning fall from heaven."

Rev. Mr. Fulton said, in part: The text may be interpreted in different ways: But it is quite possible that Jesus meant to warn his disciples and remind them that it was because of ambition unwisely guided that Satan fell. It is not necessary to warn you that vicious sins indulged in destroy the soul. That is plain. But the very things that, rightly used, minister to true success wrongly used will destroy us. Ambition, self-control, and love, wisely directed make men strong wise and useful. But ambition wrongly directed, self-control that degenerates to selfishness, and love which is self-centred minister only to destruction.

Some people lay barriers on ambition, thinking it essentially evil. But it is not. Be ambitious! Be filled with lofty aspirations! Don't be content with your present treadmill condition. Reach up and be strong. That is what has made Canada what she is and will make her the chief country on this Continent. Persevering ambition works wonders.

But, says some one ambition breeds presumption. Very true; the disappointed kind does. "Who dares defy the Omnipotent to arms" finally fails to the bottomless pit. The ambition that tramples upon other people's rights, that makes one self-centred, God save and protect us from it. But the ambition that makes a man broader and better and more useful—prayer to cultivate it.

Lack of self-control leads to self-destruction. It invariably arises from lack of wisdom.

There is a great difference between the masterful man and the mastered man—whether the man control his circumstances or is controlled by them.

It is rather popular now to say insulting things about the Emperor of Germany. I would do nothing of the kind. But certain facts stand out in the Emperor's history—facts that cannot be overlooked. In 1888 he ascended the throne. The mould of German opinion then was the great statesman Bismark, who was almost a prophet. But the new Emperor ousted Bismark and took the reins into his own hands.

All countries have sent their students to German universities to finish their education. Yet the dominant spirit of Germany, even among its scientists and theologians, has been love of power. Now, with our eyes open, we see what ten years ago we could not understand. The German general Bernhardi's book urging that Germany must control all things, that Belgium's neutrality must some day be reduced by submarines and the balance destroyed by the German fleet, has been Germany's text book.

Yet, with Wilhelm II's force of character what a power for good he might have been if he had dedicated his ability to the good of mankind. If he respected "scraps of paper" that guaranteed the neutrality of weaker nations. But loss of self-control means self-destruction.

When a man forgets his neighbor's need, that instant is his manhood slain. Love is having one's hands too full of gifts for others to allow any thought of receiving. Every man's need to a fellowman's need is a beacon mark on the road to the Kingdom of Heaven. At a crucial point in the history of the U. S. A. the great Daniel Webster bartered his honor in the hope of securing the presidency, but he immediately recognized that he had misused it. Stand out from all forms of evil. Its devastating power is an awful act. In the U. S. A. there is a woman of noble character and of marvellous virtue who is giving her money for good in all directions, yet she can never obliterate the unpleasantness and narrowness clinging to the name of her father, who never thought of anyone but himself.

The perfect man of all the ages—Jesus—gave his life for the salvation of man. Only such a life really counts.

Headquarters of Belgian Govt.
Transferred to Harve.

Paris, Oct. 13.—The official communication issued by the French war department tonight says:

"With the exception of an advance of some importance in the vicinity of Berry-An-Bac there is nothing to report."

London, Oct. 13, 9.35 p. m.—The headquarters of the Belgian government were today transferred to Harve. With the exception of King Albert, who remains as head of the army, and the Minister of War, the members of the cabinet, with the other government officials and the diplomatic corps, left Ostend by steamer for the French port, where they will carry on the affairs of state, and where hospitality has been offered them by the French government.

The American and Spanish ministers, both of whom are still at Brussels, are the only diplomatic representatives accredited to Belgium remaining in that country. This is the third move of the Belgian capital since the Germans succeeded in silencing the forts of Liege. The government first moved from Brussels to Antwerp, thence to Ostend and today across the border to Harve.

This final change followed quickly upon the German westward advance, which was begun immediately on the fall of Antwerp. Their success in taking the chief port of Belgium was the commencement of a new plan of campaign, which embraces the occupation of the whole of Belgium, including the coast towns, and possibly some of the northern French ports.

Mr. James G. Troy, who has spent the past seven or eight months at his home here, has returned to Boston. While here Mr. Troy gave assistance to his father, Jas. Troy, postmaster, and his many friends will regret his departure.

THE TRAPSHOOTING VERNACULAR

Like other sports, trapshooting has a vernacular and a slang of its own. You might hear a trapshooter describe his part in a "shotgun argument" somewhat as follows: "I took the peg with my old corn sheller and stuttered on the first muddle. The next was a Nancy Hanks, but I got a ear. I fell out of the boat again on the third saucer, then smothered a couple of humdingers and killed the rest of the string. The first bird of the second bunch was a crippe and after that I made a century."

The targets are variously referred to as "birds," "dicky birds," "pigeons," "mud pies," "saucers" to mention but a few of the synonyms. When the shooter hits a flying disk so that it breaks into pieces he "kills it," "powders it," "smothers it," or "wings it," but if he only makes the dust fly it's a case of "tickling it" or "knocking the fuzz off." He "pokes to sleep" or "muffs one" if he misses a target. Fast or otherwise difficult targets have many names, like "flippers," "grass-cutters," "hum-dingers," "iron men," "jack snipers," "birds" and so on. To "go straight" (break down), "whipaws," "wolf tangles," and so on. To "go straight" (breaking all the targets in one event), is to "walk the buck," "put 'em all in the gamesack," "smother the whole smear," or "score a John Davis." A "century" is one hundred hits in succession. "Cripples" are targets that leave the trap broken. "Pot grassers" are the losers at tournaments. Guns are called "sticks," "pea-shooters," "hullers," "blunderbusses," "pumps," "autoloading" and so forth, according to their style and the results obtained.

ANTWERP FORTS STILL HOLDING OUT (?)

London, October 13 (4 a. m.)—The Times correspondent in Belgium, under date of Sunday, says: "Twenty-four of the Antwerp forts were still holding out today in the face of a continuous bombardment. Last night over twenty blazing fires could be distinguished from afar, in different parts of the city."
