The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

Another, today. Y e s, honest and truly, another letter has come in this last mail asking me to write an article saying that it is bad form for girls to chew gum in public. T h i s one makes —well, I wouldn't really dare say how many. I'd be afraid you wouldn't believe me.

Truly, I can't understand it. Write an article saying that it is bad form for a girl to chew in public. Why, that seems to me about like being asked to write an article saying it is often hot in July, or that a pint of whiskey might be bad for the stomach, or that it is not kind for a man to murder his mother.

Can there really be a girl in this land who does not know that to chew gum in public is bad form? Take a girl who hasn't had any home training at all, and if she has ever seen another girl deform her face by chewing gum—and if she indulges herself she probably has, for they really seem to do it in droves—surely that sight is enough to teach her that chewing gum is not a pleasant habit.

Perhaps my correspondents are right and this is a matter that needs to be brought before our young girls.

but I cannot help feeling that it's simply a case of "know the right and yet the wrong pursue."

One woman writes: "I once heard a man say, 'I was more than taken with Miss E., but I caught her several times chewing gum with her friends, and that was too much for me.'"

That's the ordinary masculine attitude toward the habit.

Of course every girl who chews gum knows that.

She must know, too, that no matter how pretty she is, the minute she begins to chew gum she ceases to be good to look at.

She must know that her attempts to solve the perpetual motion problem make anyone who has to look at her desperately nervous.

She must know that nice girls, refined girls, the girls she admires never chew gum.

She probably knows that the habit is unhealthy. That fact has been stated often enough.

The only explanation of her conduct, then, is that the enjoyment she gets out of working her jaws over that bit of rubber, or whatever they make it of, outweighs all these considerations.

And if that is so, how could a newspaper article possibly turn the balance the other way?

I'm sorry, you folks who have written to me, but surely you see how helpless I am.

Women's Secrets

There is one man in the United States who has perhaps heard more women's secrets than any other man or woman in the country. These secrets are not secrets of guilt or shame, but the secrets of suffering, and they have been confided to Dr. R. V. Pierce in the hope and expectation of advice and help. That few of these women have been disappointed in their expectations is proved by the fact that ninety-eight per cent. of all women treated by Dr. Pierce have been absolutely and altogether cured. Such a record would be remarkable if the cases treated were numbered by hundreds only. But when record applies to the treatment of more than half a million women in a practice of over 40 years, it is phenomenal, and entitles Dr. Pierce to the gratitude accorded him by women, as the first of specialists in the treatment of women's diseases.

Every sick woman may consult Dr. Pierce by letter, absolutely without charge. All replies are mailed, sealed in perfectly plain envelopes, without any printing or advertising whatever, upon them. Write without fear as with-out fee, to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, Pres., Buffalo, N. Y.

Fads and Fashions.

A new sleeve of a tailored costume, sewed plainly into the armhole, widens a little toward the elbow, then decreases a bit below, to finally finish in a three-quarter length with an up-turned cuff.

Already quite fixed among the fashions for spring and summer are berthes, fichus and large flat embroidered collars that round very short from the front, deepening to below the shoulders in the back.

The long talked of bolero is now an accepted fact. It is prettier than ever, topping a short or long skirt, hung to a high wrinkled belt, or mounting onto the corsage into a shaped giraffe effect.

New white blouses, even those designed to wear with white costumes, show a bit of blue or pink betwixt edging the frills, or solid colored embroidery outlining the yoke.

Among new buttons are crystal ones with ball centres in some vivid color and the rim in a clear crystal, through which the fabric shows. Other crystal effects show stripes or rims in color and the rest clear.

Deep cuffs and wide sailor collars appear on white embroidered linen coats, and double and triple revers are often seen, one of black velvet, one of lace and embroidery or of mouse-line de sole of a contrasting color.

One of the prettiest novelties of the spring-time for neckwear consists of a rosette of chrysanthemums of satin made of points of folded, or rolled satin, with a centre of yellow stamens similar to those used in artificial flowers.

Dark blue serge tailored costumes, trimmed with blue and white foulard silks are smart enough to suit the most fastidious. Often one sees the parasol covered with the silk of the trimming and edged with fringe to match.

One Pill One pill at bedtime. Brings morning relief from the headache, indigestion, nervousness, biliousness, due to constipation. If your doctor approves, why not use Ayer's Pills? Then seek this approval without delay.

The newest ostrich plume is long, uncurled and wired to stand out at any angle wanted of it. Next in novelty to it is the camel's back plume with a double curvature of its stem that reminds one of the traditional hump.

On an elegant tailored suit a favorite trimming, sewn by hand after the garments are shaped, is of course cross stitches forming little squares set at effective distances apart. Framing lines and casters of these little designs are heavy corded lines achieved by raised embroidery.

How to Grow Hair.

It has been proved that Henna leaves contain the ingredients that will positively grow hair. That they contain this long-looked-for article is proven every day.

This preparation is called SALVIA and is being sold with a guarantee to cure Dandruff and to grow hair in abundance. Being daintily perfumed, SALVIA makes a most pleasant hair dressing. McMurdo & Co., your druggist, is the first to import this preparation into St. John's and a large generous bottle, can be procured for 50c.

Big Cathedral Features

LACKS IRON AND WOOD.

Telephone System to Connect the Wings—Sounding Horns to Bring Back Voices of Choir.

The Cathedral of St. John the Divine, New York City, a portion of which is now constructed, and has been consecrated, is to be the largest ecclesiastical structure in the country. It has already been 20 years building, at a cost of $3,500,000, and it may take as much longer to complete it, at a total cost of $10,000,000.

Seating accommodations are now provided for about 1,700 persons, but four-fifths of the work remains to be done, and the full capacity will approach 7,000.

Requests as they mature, will be sufficient to ensure continued progress.

In style the cathedral is late Romanesque, with strong traces of Byzantine influences, or as the architect-in-chief, C. Grant La Farge, a son of the late John La Farge, describes it, "so far as the cathedral in the larger sense is Gothic of an early period, the time of transition from the simple Romanesque to the more complex organism."

Occupies Three Blocks.

The site is the most commanding in the city. It occupies three city blocks. The cathedral is a cruciform structure, 520 feet long, 165 feet wide across the nave and aisles, 238 wide across the transept, and its final cross to a height of 425 feet.

The outer walls are of cream colored granite, faced inside with buff limestone.

No iron and no wood is used in the frame work of the cathedral proper. The floors are of hollow tiling, the walls of hollow brick, and the roof of tiling again, with a copper sheathing over all, needed only for a weather screen.

Unique Features.

Hidden electric lights will rim the arches of the choir with incandescent lamps.

At the Yarmouth Y. M. C. A. Boys' Camp, held at Tusket Falls in August, I found MINARD'S LINIMENT most beneficial for sun burn, an immediate relief for colic and toothache.

ALFRED STOKES, General Secretary.

ence. A closely woven system of telephone wires will connect the wings for the use of its governing clergy.

As the choir withdraws in the recessional its blent voices will be brought back to the kneeling congregation through sounding horns, with apertures inside the walls. The building will be a nearly imperishable and indestructible as human ingenuity can make it.

Garter for the Prince.

STATELY CEREMONY.

We are enabled to publish details of the stately ceremony of investing the Prince of Wales with the Garter, which took place in the Throne Room at Windsor on Saturday, June 10, at midday.

The Sovereign, being seated in the chair of state, and the Queen being on his left hand, King Manoel, Prince Arthur of Connaught, the Duke of Connaught, and Prince Christian in their seats at the upper end of the table, the Sovereign will command Garter (Sir A. Scott-Gatty) to summon the Knights Companions, who will enter the throne room as their names are called over.

The Knights Companions will take their seats at the table. The Prelate (Bishop of Winchester), will take his stand to the right hand of the Sovereign, the Chancellor (Bishop of Oxford) on the left hand of the Queen, and the Registrar (Dr. Eliot), Garter, Black Rod (Admiral Sir H. Stephenson), and Secretary (Colonel Sir D. Dawson) standing at the foot of the table.

The Prince of Wales will then, by the Sovereign's command, be conducted from his apartments to the throne room, between the Duke of Connaught and Prince Arthur, preceded by the Secretary, carrying the Star and Collar of the Order, Black Rod carrying the Riband and Garter, and Garter carrying Garter. On entering the throne room his Royal Highness will be received by the Sovereign, the Royal Knights, and the Knights Companions standing.

His Royal Highness will then be conducted before the Sovereign, who will indicate to him the seat upon his (the Sovereign's) immediate right hand.

Buckling the Garter.

Garter, kneeling, will then present the Garter to the Sovereign, who, assisted by the Royal Knights, will buckle it on the left leg of his Royal Highness, the Prelate pronouncing the Admonition.

Black Rod will next present in like manner the Riband and Garter to the Sovereign, who, assisted as before, will adjust the same on the left shoulder of his Royal Highness, the Chancellor pronouncing the Admonition. The Secretary will then present in like manner the Star of the Order, which the Sovereign will affix to his Royal Highness's left breast. The Secretary will in like manner present the Collar, which will be handed by the Sovereign to the Prince, while the Admonition is pronounced by the Registrar.

The Sovereign will thereupon give the Accolade to his Royal Highness, who, will then proceed round the table, receiving the congratulations of each of the Knights in turn.

The procession thus formed will pass down the Grand Staircase to the Sovereign's Entrance, where it will meet, and be preceded by the Deputy Constable of Windsor Castle (Lord Esher), the Constable (Duke of Argyll), and the Military Knights. The procession will then pass, by way of the visitors' entrance, the Norman gateways, the Winchester Tower, the Middle and Lower Wards, and the gateway of the Horse-Shoe Cloisters, to the west door of St. George's Chapel, where it will be met, and preceded by the canons, minor canons, lay clerks and choristers.

The procession will return by the same route to the Waterloo Chamber.—Daily Mail.

The Celebration of '97.

Writing about the celebration in St. John's for the Diamond Jubilee of Queen Victoria and the Cabot Centenary, I forgot to mention one very amusing incident. Commodore the Hon. Maurice Bourke, R.N., a brother of Lord Mayo, was the Senior Naval Officer on the station that year. He was a very handsome man and popular in the service. The naval officers had general instructions to keep on good terms with the French. The late Hon. Maurice Bourke carried out this idea with a vengeance. He actually wrote letters to the fishermen on the West Coast instructing them to sell their lobsters only to the French packers. I got hold of some of these letters and I published them in the London Times and Bourke's absurd proceedings were at once stopped. Naturally he was very mad with me and I thought he might spoil our celebrations, so I took the precaution of sending my old friend Admiral Erskine, commanding on the North American Station, a programme of our celebrations and asked him to give full instructions to Commodore Bourke to carry them out to the letter, and I must confess that he did so most heartily, but to pay me off he had a figure rigged up to represent me with my history in my hand, and when they exploded the sub-marine part of the show, I was blown up, to the great amusement of the spectators.

Uncle Walt THE POET PHILOSOPHER.

The day is long and trying, and heavy is the heat; and often I am sighing, while dragging weary feet. The sun is burning o'er me; there is no grateful shade; the rows stretch out before me; that I REST AT must hoe and spade. But when the sun has wended his path EVENING way to the west, my weary toil is ended, and evening brings me rest. Then comes the kind word spoken by loved ones at the door; then comes the sleep unbroken, until the night is o'er; then comes the tuneful passage of restful twilight hours; then comes the mystic message of winds among the flowers. The day may treat me meanly, and rob my life of zest; but evening comes serenely, and evening brings me rest. And life is but a longer and sadder summer day; the weary heat is stronger, and rockier the way; the watchword is "Endeavor," and till the day is done the laborer may never escape the glaring sun. And thus the harsh world grinds him against its rugged breast, till starlit evening finds him and evening brings him rest.

Romen Catholic Meet Again.

The Roman Catholics who are arranging to give a present to Bishop Power, of St. George's, held another meeting last night at the T. A. Armory. Hon. John Harris occupied the chair. The reports of the collectors submitted showed that good progress had been made. After some other matters were discussed the meeting closed.

The Danish schooner Opella arrived here yesterday at 2 p.m., from Cadiz with a salt cargo to G. M. Barr, after a run of 37 days. The Opella, to the Smith Co., Ltd., also had a salt cargo from Cadiz. Both vessels had variable weather on the run out.

Can't Beat Nature Her way is slow, but sure!

"Bad food does not kill the next day—it does not work that way. It does not even cause positive and violent illness at once. It does systematically rob your body and your brain of a little vitality to-day and a little to-morrow."

—Pearson's Magazine.

Now, concerning good food:

Grape-Nuts

DAME NATURE HINTS When The Food Is Not Suited.

—the "perfectly balanced" food, made of wheat and barley, may not show full results in a day—Nature does not work that way.

But it contains the vital food elements that steadily and surely build body and brain—a little day by day.

"Ever since boyhood I have been especially fond of meats, and I am convinced I ate too rapidly, and failed to masticate my food properly."

"The result was that I found myself, a few years ago, afflicted with ailments of the stomach and kidneys, which interfered seriously with my business."

"At last I took the advice of friends and began to eat Grape-Nuts instead of the heavy meats, etc., that had constituted my former diet."

"I found that I was at once benefited by the change, that I was soon relieved from the heartburn and indigestion that used to follow my meals, that the pains in my back from my kidney affection had ceased."

"My nerves, which used to be unsteady, and my brain, which was slow and lethargic from a heavy diet of meats and greasy foods, had not in a moment, but gradually, and none the less surely, been restored to normal efficiency."

"Now every nerve is steady and my brain and thinking faculties are quicker and more acute than for years past."

"After my old style breakfasts I used to suffer during the forenoon from a feeling of weakness which hindered me seriously in my work, but since I began to use Grape Nuts food I can work till dinner time with all ease and comfort." Name given by Canadian Postum Cereal Co., Windsor, Ontario.
