

The Housewife's Coolest Friend

Is one of our new model refrigerators. Don't worry about the butter running to oil, or the milk turning sour; these things WILL happen, you know, usually when you have company coming, and then how vexed you feel. Here's where your coolest friend comes in.

"The Eddy refrigerator, with double covers to the ice chamber, steel ice rack and slate-stone shelves, with lots of room for storing, prevents all these troubles.

"The 'Eddy' way is the Easy way, and when your friends drop in they'll say, 'How deliciously cold; how DO you manage it this hot weather?' And you smile and answer, 'I use an 'Eddy' Refrigerator. Mine was $11, there's another size at $16, and I got mine at'"

Doctor Poisoned, Nurse Accused.

Utica, August 6.—Miss Emma E. Krill, a professional nurse, arrested on a charge of murdering Dr. Stanley E. Tron, fainted when she was taken in custody to her home at Cornwall-on-the-Hudson. After listening for a half hour to the depositions read by the Judge when arraigned here, she again fell unconscious at the feet of the District Attorney Fuller, and the deputies who arrested her.

She was taken to a couch and after being revived lay and listened to the remainder of the depositions. A plea of not guilty was entered for her pending the arrival of her attorney, Mr. Abel Morris, of New York, and she was committed to jail without bail.

Nearly all afternoon, Miss Krill lay in her bed in the hospital ward of the jail with her head covered. She refused to talk or answer questions.

Dr. Tron died on June 22, and it was believed that he had committed suicide. He and Miss Krill had lived here, having become acquainted at a hospital in New York.

The authorities made an investigation and decided they had enough evidence to warrant the arrest of the woman. An analysis of the physician's stomach showed traces of morphine.

Tron was a Harvard graduate and a son of a clergyman in Italy. He formerly was connected with the Lyng-in-Hospital, New York. When he came here he started work among the Italians, although his practice did not seem to be lucrative.

Mr. Gulliford, of Lady Cove, Trinity Bay, has just completed two splendidly modelled motor boats, one for Mr. R. A. Squires and the other for Messrs. Steer Brothers. Both were launched last week. The length of the first is 40 feet and her breadth about 7½ feet, she is constructed on perfectly scientific lines having proper regard for displacement, water lines and the least possible resistance in agreement with comfort, accommodation and the greatest possible speed. She sits very gracefully in the water, and makes rapid speed under a 16 h.p. engine. She has accommodation for several passengers with water tank, fittings and other toilet conveniences. The boat for Messrs. Steer Bros. is called an auxiliary fishing vessel. She will measure about 35 tons, carrying a 30 h.p. engine and showing the constructive genius as the boat built for Mr. Squires.

Mr. Gulliford has had some years of experience in boat and yacht building in the United States and besides he belongs to a family of expert builders who caught their inspiration from one of the foremost building mechanics—the Pittman brothers—that ever contributed their genius towards the improvement of this island's local sailing fleet. Mr. George Gulliford is a worthy successor of a worthy family and he has made it very clear that Newfoundlanders can take their part well in mechanical and constructive operations, with any other people with whom they from time to time came in contact. There is plenty of room for improvement and encouragement in motor boat construction in this island and it is not too much to hope that in the future suitable legislation will give an impetus to this industry.

"There is a foreigner here who answers to your description of your friend. But he has joined us. He is now a captain, commanding fifty men."

A Mongol attendant shouted, and out came a man exactly answering the description of Mr. Grant. But he was a Russian. The party were bitterly disappointed. The Russian said he knew nothing of Mr. Grant. The Russian's feet were bare, and Mr. Henningsen said to him, "Have you no boots?" "Oh, yes," replied the man, and walking back into his tent he showed several pairs of boots. "I have everything I need," he said, "here are my clothes, here is my saddle." "Where did you get the saddle?" asked Mr. Henningsen, who recognized it as one he had given to Mr. Grant. "The Mongols captured it from the Chinese," replied the Russian. Mr. Henningsen's hopes fell to zero.

Mr. Grant's Cart. Then he saw a cart which he recognized as one he had bought for Mr. Grant. Inside the cart were Mr. Grant's pipe, tobacco pouch, and other personal belongings. Mr. Henningsen became angry and upbraided the Mongols. "As you have all my friend's belongings, you must know what has become of him. I shall go and talk to the Great Chief." One of the Mongols drew Mr. Henningsen aside and urged him not to ask further questions. "Your life and those of all the party depend on your discretion," he said. "You will not find out any more here, but I can tell you that Mr. Grant has been killed. Go away in peace. If Mr. Grant had done that he would not have been killed."

The party decided that they could do no more. Other Mongols, however, told them that Mr. Grant and three Chinese had been captured, and that the Mongols had decided to kill the Chinese. Mr. Grant was told that he could go on to Kalgan after his camera had been destroyed, but he refused to abandon the Chinese.

The Mongols gave him the choice of going away at once or being shot with the Chinese. Mr. Grant chose the latter. As he stood in front of the firing party he taunted the Mongols with their cowardice, and laughed in their faces until the Mongols wondered at his bravery.—Daily Mail.

A Hint

For Next Summer's 1914 Old Home Week Regatta.

Nearly 100,000 Newfoundlanders all over the American continent have to wait three or four days after each Regatta to hear results of races. Why is it thus? The Newfoundland Annual Regatta is now of sufficient public interest to Americans, etc., to be telegraphed like any other public news to all American and Canadian daily papers on the day it takes place. It would be an excellent advertisement for the Island and for your Old Home, tourists from year to year. Telegraph all the races to all the American papers on next Regatta Day, 1914.—Com.

Successful Sale of our Maritime Mail Preferred Stock in Newfoundland!

We are glad to inform the investing public generally that although it is barely six weeks since we introduced the 7 per cent Cumulative Preferred Stock of the Maritime Mail Company, yet the Newfoundland sales to date have been very satisfactory. In keeping with the conservative traditions of this firm, no sensational advertising was used. Brief, dignified announcements have appeared daily in this paper calling attention to the desirable features of this attractive security and its 50 per cent Stock Bonus.

These, coupled with our forty-year reputation of handling exclusively high-class securities, were sufficient to induce investors to purchase to such a large extent.

As our holdings of this issue are rapidly becoming depleted, we suggest that you promptly get in touch with our Special Representative, Mr. R. C. Power, who will be pleased to furnish complete information at his office or by mail.
