On Making Friends.

By RUTH CAMERON.

The ability to make friends easily and quickly is held by those who do not possess it, as a gift. In some people it unquestionably is, in as much as it springs from a spontaneity of manner that they themselves are scarcely aware of. They simply know that people respond to them quickly and without conscious effort on their part.

Less fortunate acquaintances say of such a person, "Oh, he makes friends anywhere." And though they may sigh a bit, because they don't make friends as easily as all that, they never stop to analyze the "gift."

Now as a matter of fact the people for whom we really care the most, whose society we are always glad of, are people who, we say, understand us. They combine cordiality, sympathy and interest to a degree that warms us. We are at ease in their company, we expand and are conscious that we are at our best.

As a Flower Opens to Sunshine. All of us crave self-expression before an appreciative audience. And when we find the opportunity, we open as readily and as fully as a flower basking in the sun.

If you yourself find someone who takes this interest in you, whose very first glance seems to say to you, "Here is someone that I will like," you cannot help but warm to him. That is the way of human nature. And that person, if his attitude towards you is his habitual attitude towards new acquaintances, will have that same effect on them. In short, he will have the gift of making friends. To him you will open. You will give the best there is in you. You simply can't help it.

There is no more secret to the art of making friends than that. The next time you are introduced to a new acquaintance try it. Instead of simply saying, with formal reserve, "I am glad to know you," look glad, be glad.

The Merely Muscular Smile.

The new acquaintance may not look worth the effort. He may have, for instance, the same expression of deadness that you yourself commonly wear at such moments, tempered, of course, with a merely muscular smile.

The surest way to find whether he is worth cultivating is that outlined. Give him a bit of human sunshine; let the warmth of your manner kindle the chill in his. Nine times out of ten the result will surprise you. For he is just such another human as yourself—a fellow man who craves sympathy and cordiality as much as feel towards the person who has the gift of making friends.

A Very Simple Formula.

If you will adopt this simple formula, if you will only let people know that you are willing and eager to like them, they will feel towards you just as you feel towards them.

You give him the best there is in you. You show to the best advantage before people like him. And that will be your reward—other people will give you the best there is in him.

The College Sports.

The annual sports of St. Bonaventure's College took place at the College Campus yesterday afternoon and were largely attended.

Amongst those present were His Excellency the Governor and Lady Davidson, Miss Davidson, His Grace Archbishop Roche, His Excellency Most Rev. P. F. The weather was not all that could be desired and a little higher temperature would have added considerably to the afternoon's enjoyment.

The programme was splendidly carried out, and the various teams were closely contested and afforded much amusement to the spectators. The different drills were gone through with remarkable precision and reflected much credit on the students and their instructors.

The Football Fives were the most exciting ever witnessed on St. Bon's Campus. The St. Bon's team after ends had been changed four times defeated the Saints by 1 goal and in the play-off won from the Stars by a score of 1 goal, the Stars having defeated the C. E. I. From Private A. Gosse

Mr. Fred Fitzpatrick, Pennywell Road, is in receipt of a letter, of date June 13th, from his nephew, Private Alfred J. Gosse, who is with the Nrd. Regiment, and at the time of writing was at Stob's Camp, Hawick. He said in the letter to his uncle that they expected to be leaving Stob's the following week for some part in England, whence they expect to proceed to the Dardanelles. He refers to the presentation of colors by ex-Governor McGregor, and also to the kind treatment the boys received from their new friends on the other side. He says all the boys are well and happy. The letter was written on a Sunday and the R. C. boys of the Regiment had been to Mass that morning in the town, which is about three miles away.

ST. JOHN'S LADY DIES IN BOSTON.

A recent Boston exchange contains an account of the funeral of the late Mrs. Mary A. Power, a well known St. John's lady, whose death is supposed to have been caused by grief over the loss of her son John, who was killed by an automobile accident some months ago. Mrs. Power is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Alice McDonough and Miss Minnie Power, and one son, Richard Power, who has been employed with the Boston Elevated Power House for over 20 years. We understand that Mr. James Power of Parker & Monroe's is a relative of the family.

War Munitions.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—In reading over the public news despatch in your paper to-day, I notice that Lloyd George says in his speech that it will be months before we can obtain the maximum output of munitions, and also the Times' military correspondent says, on account of the shortage of ammunition it may be necessary to postpone until next spring the final settlement with the Teutonic Powers.

Mr. Editor, is there no way open that Newfoundland can help in this respect? Of course I am not a machinist, so I have no idea what our machine shops can do in this line, but I was speaking to a machinist here, and he informs me that they could make shells here, so if we can make the shells in this country and send them over to England to be charged, what a great help it would be.

Hoping to see a letter from a machinist on this matter, and also thanking you for space in your valuable paper.

I remain,

Yours truly,

C. H. HAYWARD.
