Mr. Foley Answered.

His Sincerity of Action and Purpose Questioned.

By J. R. SMALLWOOD.

Several days I had been looking to the letter which, under the name of Michael Foley, appeared in the Star of Saturday's date. I told me some time previous, was his intention to publish a letter in a short while. I was curious as to what it would say and Saturday told me.

The first paragraph of the letter Mr. Foley's name is signed and appears: "My object in writing you is to make it clear to the public where labor stands to-day in regard to the party issue now before the electorate of St. John's West." In the first place may I enquire just what is meant by "public"? If I make no mistake the workingmen (whose sentiments the letter is attempting to express) are the public. At least ninety five per cent. of the public is comprised of workingmen, generally known as "Labor." Then why, and to what purpose, tell the public the sentiment of the public? Secondly, may I ask the writer of the letter upon what grounds does Mr. Foley attempt to express the sentiments of the workingmen of St. John's West? How does he know them? Would he be able to find his way around in St. John's West without a guide? Upon what authority does Mr. Foley take upon himself, the duty of expressing the sentiments of the public of St. John's West?

Further down this statement appears: "We fought in the general election and were defeated, and not being prepared financially to go into the bye-election our only course was to remain neutral and let it be fought out by the present government and the opposition on their respective merits." Is that so? Who, besides Mr. Foley, says so? And upon what authority does the writer of the letter say so? It is the opinion of Mr. Foley that the Workingmen's Party should have kept out of the fight. But who made Mr. Foley the one whose opinion should be final? And by what right does he question the decision of the Workingmen's Party Committee? The committee says "yes," and Mr. Foley says "no," and that settles it. Yes? The letter goes on to say that Mr. Squires, in an interview with Messrs. Linegar, Cadwell and Foley had with him, placed before them his program for labor legislation. The legislation, Mr. Foley says, is very acceptable to the workingmen of St. John's West, and should be sufficient. But that proposed legislation was in the manifesto of Hon. R. A. Squires before the election. Why, then, did Mr. Foley, as a candidate for the Workingmen's Party, oppose Mr. Squires and fight for a distinct labor program? The answer is that Mr. Foley had then been chosen to be a candidate and that this time he had not.

Upon the invitation of Sir Michael Cashin, it goes on further to say, Messrs. Linegar, Cadwell, Foley and James McGrath met the Opposition leader, who invited them to put a man on the ticket for the bye-election. "We decided," says Mr. Foley's mouthpiece, "not to do anything without meeting the committee." Why not? Why not have decided, among themselves, to do so or not, as they wished? Did the four gentlemen believe that it was the right of the committee to decide whether or no the Workingmen's Party, which the committee represented, would place a man on the ticket? That is what Mr. Foley says they believed, and he is right. They did believe exactly that and rightly so. It was right and proper that the committee which fought the November election should have the privilege of deciding such matter. Well, the committee did decide. Did Mr. Foley accept the decision of the committee? No, he did not. Why didn't he? He believed that it was the right of the committee to decide, and when it does decide he refuses to accept its decision. Why? Was it because the committee did not elect HIM as the candidate? Come now, Mr. Foley, and answer that.

At the meeting of the Workingmen's Party Committee at which it was decided that the Party would put a man on the ticket for the bye-election and Mr. Linegar was chosen to be the one, there were 100 members present. Mr. Foley says that there were 54. I say that there were 100. Out of that 100, 95 voted in favor of the proposal. The vote was taken twice. First the committeemen raised their hands and then those who favored it went into another room. Those who remained out were the three candidates, the chairman, (Mr. McGrath) and M. Chipman. The other four I cannot name. Of course the three candidates and the chairman did not vote. When Mr. Linegar was elected as the candidate Mr. Foley resigned. Why?

In concluding the letter Mr. Foley, through his mouthpiece, appeals to his friends, the workingmen of St. John's West, not to be led astray. He also wishes them to use their sound judgement. Mr. Foley need have no fear on that point.

Now, had Mr. Foley kept quite and said nothing he would have been left to himself. Since, however, he wishes to inform the "public" of certain facts concerning the matter, I will inform the same public of certain facts which may have the result of causing them to set at naught what he says. In the first place be it clear that Mr. Foley is NOT a St. John's man, does NOT know the people of the West End, would NOT be able to find his way about there alone, is NOT known to the people of the district (except, in some cases, by name) and received the smallest vote of the party. Those votes were the party votes and would have been given a Labor candidate in any case. Right through the campaign, in every speech which he made, Mr. Foley made a direct and open appeal to the electors "to vote for Foley."—not, mind you, the Workingmen's Party candidates, but Foley. The thing was noticeable and much remarked.

The impression of Mr. Foley that I formed, during the weeks I met him in the campaign, was that he was very anxious to get into the Assembly. How he got in he didn't much care, as long as he did get there. I say this without the least particle of hatred for Mr. Foley. I supported him to the best of my ability, in the November election, exactly as I did the other two. In fact it was I who stood at his elbow, on the Saturday night preceding the Monday of the election, as the open air meeting was being held on the corner, and prompted him with subjects with which to keep up his speech. I supported him then and I would do the same to-morrow if he were a candidate by the request of the Workingmen's Party Committee. The thousand men who voted for Linegar are the same. They are true blue laborites and they can neither be bluffed, coddled nor bought.

I am extremely sorry to have had to say this about Mr. Foley. We have been friends and I hope we will continue to be. However, in spite of this, I cannot allow anything spoken or written against the Workingmen's Party candidate to go unanswered. I believe that Mr. Foley will understand this.

"You Are Under Weight, My Boy"

"YES, sir."

"Do you know what that means?"

"No, sir."

"It means that your body is not properly nourished. You are not getting the right food; or else not obtaining full benefit of the food you eat! Are you easily tired?"

"Yes, sir."

"How are you getting along at school?"

"Not very well."

"Now, I am going to send a report to your parents, so that they may know your condition, and I want you to do what I tell you, so as to regain your normal weight."

"All right, sir."

"You can never expect to get far in athletics, or school either, so long as your blood is thin for lack of proper nourishment and your nerves starved and exhausted."

"We shall go a little easy on exercise, and I have asked your parents to see that you eat plenty of plain, nourishing food. I have also suggested the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, so as to enrich the blood and tone up your nervous system."

"Is that a medicine?"

"Yes, I suppose you might call it that, but it is entirely different to most medicines, because it builds up tissue instead of tearing it down. It is what is called a restorative. It sharpens the appetite, improves digestion and helps you to obtain full benefit of the food you eat. We are not much on medicines around here, but Chase's Nerve Food has helped so many under-weight boys whom I know that I never lose an opportunity to recommend it."

"I hope it helps me, for I would like to be able to do 'stunts' like the other fellows, and I don't seem to have the strength now."

"You are ready to do your part then? That is what I want to know."

"Yes, sir, I am."

"We will weigh you every week, and I am sure we shall soon have you all right."
