HIS DIARY. December 12th.—About three o'clock this morning I waked with the noise of the rayne, having never in my life heard a more violent shower, and all the day it staid so, and there was a foul wind whereby I was often nearly blown off my feet. By and by to Sir Richard Squires, to talk with him about what will happen when the House opens, and he tells me how he is doing better with his revenue than he did estimate. At noon, to Mr. H. D. Reid, there to get news of the Humber proposition, but had little success. Mr. Reid told me how he was even now, preparing to write the Government on the matter. To Water Street, and there meeting Mr. Baird, he told me how the outports do still contribute to the fund for the War Memorial. To the Colonial Building, and there find great expectations what the Parliament will do. But, the House opening after the long adjournment, great was the surprise, when Sir Richard Squires, in the middle of his discourse, was interrupted by Black Rod, who did inform the members how the Governor did await them in the Council Chambers. To which, Sir Michaeel Cashin answered with great temper, and did even protest to His Excellency, but to no avail, and the House was prorogued. Meeting Bagge, I did make haste to tell him of it, and he greatly amused thereat, it being a most humourous thing. At night, my wife read the Telegram news sheet to me, and I find it a very excellent thing -worth reading, and its editor and scribes to be very wise men.
