In the Dining-Room.

WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 14.
BREAKFAST—Stewed pears. Baked hash. Cornmeal puffs. Coffee.

LUNCHEON—Bouillon. Wafers. Banana sandwiches. Marshmallow cakes. Tea.

DINNER—Onion soup. Beaufettes. Baked sweet potatoes. Green beans on toast. Peach trifle. Coffee.

Cut out these recipes and paste them in a scrap-book.

Baked Hash—One pint of cold cooked beef, chopped fine, one pint of chopped raw potatoes, one-half pint of gravy or water, one tablespoonful of melted butter, a large teaspoonful of salt, and a quarter teaspoonful of pepper. Mix all well together, turn into a mold, and bake in a moderate oven one hour.

Marshmallow Cakes—When making cookies roll out some of the dough thin and cut with a diamond-shaped cutter in size about four inches between its long opposite points. Place marshmallows in the center and fold the two opposite long points over it and press them together. In baking, the marshmallows will swell and round the joined dough, which will be left like the handle of a tiny flat basket when the cooling marshmallow contracts.

Beaufettes—Purchase one and one-half pounds of round steak cut about half an inch thick. Then cut in pieces about six inches long and four wide. Place on each piece a large tablespoonful of dressing made of one cup of stale bread crumbs, one tablespoonful of chopped parsley, one tablespoonful of chopped onion (brownied), one-half teaspoonful of salt and two good dashes of pepper. Roll up the beaufettes and fasten with wooden toothpicks. Put a tablespoonful of butter and a cup of water in a baking pan with the beaufettes, and bake three-quarters of an hour in a hot oven. Baste them with the fat, with hot water to cover, a large teaspoonful of salt and six squares of bread, and when the beans are tender dip each slice in hot water; butter and arrange on a platter. Remove the beans with a skimmer and lay evenly on the toast. To the water left in the kettle add a cup of rich milk, and when it boils add a small tablespoonful of flour, rubbed smooth in a little cold milk, and stir until done; add a tablespoonful of butter, and when melted pour over the beans and serve at once. The beans are left full length.

Peach Trifle—Make a boiled custard with the yolks of four eggs, one pint of milk and two tablespoonfuls of sugar. When cool flavor with a small quarter teaspoonful each of almond and vanilla flavor and set on ice. Cut stale sponge cake in slices, lay it in the bottom of a pretty dish and cover with a few spoonfuls of the custard.

Peel and slice six large, ripe peaches, spread them over the cake, dust thickly with powdered sugar, pour over this the custard and cover with a meringue made by whipping the whites of eggs with four tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar and four drops of almond flavoring to a very stiff consistency.
