Ingersoll at Tiltsburg.

TILTSBURG, Jan. 23.—In a game that kept the hundreds of rinks jammed to the roof at the local arena in an uproar, the Pan-Fried intermediates broke the three-cornered tie in the group and took the top rung of the ladder, defeating the winless Alerts of London by a score of 2 to 2.

From the outset of the game the Pan-Frieds bombarded Tiltsburg in goal, who made it No. 2 for the home team. The opening goal on a hard shot from left wing. The second period opened with grueling hockey, McKay in center going through time after time, only to be stopped by Perry right at the goal.

Murray in Spotlight.

Murray, the big London defence man, got into the limelight by his whirlwind rushes, only to lose the puck when he reached the Pan-Frieds' net. At this point the strain was telling on both teams, and 13 minutes after play began went right into the goal and made it No. 2 for the home team. Five minutes before time McKay grabbed a loose puck out of a face-off and bulged the nets for London's opening counter. The period ended with the score of 2 to 1.

Four Abreast.

In the final period the Londoners came on the ice four abreast, but could not fathom the defence work of Shiel, Crowder, and the rest of the Pan-Frieds. The game was a ding-dong affair for two periods. The locals forged to the front in the opening session, the score standing 2 to 1. For the remaining two periods the locals had no time to stand idle. The visitors displayed a most unusual sample of back-checking, and at times had the bottling-up process down to a science. In this period each team scored, making the standing 4 to 4.

The visitors were very aggressive when play opened in the third period, and they missed many opportunities on the net. However, they were first to register, and with the score 5 to 4, the game was back to back. In the dying stages of the game the locals found their stride and counted two in the third period, the result of combination. Crossett, who was out of the game with London Friday owing to illness, showed good form.

Giants Seek Star Pitcher

Take Up Schedule, Ball and Salaries Saturday.

President Halligan of the Mint League announces a meeting of the club owners for Saturday. The adoption of the first half schedule will be the first item of business on the program, but the salaries to be paid the ball-players in the circuit next year will probably cause more discussion than the schedule.

Strict adherence to the salary limit is one of the hardest things the new Mint prexy will have to enforce. The last three years the minors have been running wild when it came to paying salaries, and the association of ball players got to get down to hard pan on the part of the players.

However, they've had plenty of warning, for the advice sounded by Michael Sexton, president of the association, was passed on to the players persistently at the far end of the season. If the Mint alone were forced to renege, next season's outlook would be bad for the local circuit, but fortunately the ball-players are not so easily won over.

INTEND TO START ON INGERSOLL SIX

Ooze Confidence After Defeat of Drumbo Friday.

Alert juniors have a long uphill road to climb to group honors, but they've got a chance to turn the trick if they win the remainder of their games. The victory at Tiltsburg in two games.

They strike the first pull of the climb tonight when they meet the Ingersoll kids for the first time this year, out at the Lyle street rink. The victory at Drumbo has given the team all kinds of confidence just at a time when they were beginning to think that Lady Luck was a snobbish sort of female.

Same Team.

The team that meets Ingersoll this evening will be the same that performed so well at Drumbo Friday night. Powell, a new boy hailing from London, and who played his first game at Drumbo, apparently creating a fine impression, will be the only stranger to the local fans.

PLAN ICE CARNIVAL AT POND MILLS

Western Ontario Forest, Fish and Game Association Has Matter in Hand.

The Western Ontario Forest, Fish and Game Protective Association are planning a winter skating carnival on the pond at Pond Mills, which was appointed to make plans to stage one of the biggest in the history of London. At present there is excellent skating on the pond, and the association invites all skaters to make use of it.

Steps are being taken by the association to procure a number of Hungarian skis for the purpose of the skating. These will be distributed in different sections of the country if secured.

WOODSTOCK GIVES DRUMBO BEATING

Dark Horses Were Kalsomined by 9 to 0.

WOODSTOCK, Jan. 23.—The local juniors displaying the best brand of hockey they have shown this season romped away to a 9 to 0 victory over Drumbo here tonight in an O. H. A. affair by the kalsomine route, 9 to 0. It was a decidedly fast game of hockey played on perfect ice. From the first tap of the gong till the finish the home lads showed the way in combination, stickhandling and speed. They traveled at top speed from start to finish and gave Cook, the visiting goalie, the busiest time of his young life. Shot after shot was rained in on him, but he stopped all but two in the first period. In the second period he also let two go by.

Beginning the third with the score, 4 to 0, the visitors could lose, and in six minutes notched four goals. One more came their way at the finish. At two-man combination with Roadhouse driving in Bond's pants, the first goal of the night was scored. In the second period Bond accounted for No. 2 when he stickhandled clean through and beat Cook cold. In the second period Bond accounted for No. 2 when he stickhandled clean through and beat Cook cold.

The third period had hardly opened when Lynch carried the puck clean through to the mouth of the goal, easily fooling Cook. Sutton accounted for the next two. The first on a pass from the side and the second in a scrimmage in front of the goal. The last counter of the night went to Bond, who backslapped one in from directly in front of the goal.

For Woodstock Lynch in goal was good, while Harrington and Lynch on defence played stellar hockey, both defensively and offensively. Sutton was possibly the star of the forward line. Cook in goal, Binkley and Johnston were best for the visitors.

The line-up:

Stagers often do the most reckless things at the most inopportune times.

Their carefree attitude in a number of cases have seriously impaired their own usefulness, as well as caused their club owner much woe, mentally and financially.

Wrestling in the clubhouse, which is usually filled with benches, concrete posts and other obstructions, is a favorite amusement. Rough-house on the Pullman, with only the narrow aisleway to work in, is another happy thought.

Back in 1905 "Rube" Waddell, while in a playful spirit, just about killed a chance Connie Mack had to beat the New York Giants in the world series.

In the east there is a certain day in the fall when the straw hat becomes taboo. If a fellow chooses to wear one he does so at his peril. Friends of his are always liable to beat the lid. Very often a scuffle ensues while the act is being staged.

Coming into the Pullman as the Athletics were pulling out of Boston one evening late in the fall "Rube" Waddell, one of the players still using a straw skypiece, "Rube" decided to smash the straw. He sneaked up carefully, and looked good in all their games, but which apparently haven't been able to strike their right foot tonight, either.

Assaults ensued, in which Waddell finally managed to put the straw hat on the head of a comrade. However, before he had accomplished his purpose, he had suffered an injury to his left arm and back, which rendered him useless for the rest of the season.

Reports have reached the association that numerous people throughout the district are hunting rabbits with ferrets and nets, and the association invites all skaters to make use of it.

Steps are being taken by the association to procure a number of Hungarian skis for the purpose of the skating. These will be distributed in different sections of the country if secured.

12 Rinks Enter Trophy Play

Thistles Start Warren Thomson Trophy Program Going.

The Warren Thomson trophy competition, a set of rules for which have been drafted by the Thistle games committee, will add variation to their program and inspire some splendid competition for the wilders of stane and besom in the north end of the remainder of the season.

The competition has been divided into two sections, and the members have been allotted to the various rinks. The rules follow:

Competitions to be played in two sections, each section consisting of six rinks.

Each rink to play every other rink in the same section.

Two games to be played each week, except week of the London bursar, or week of the London bursar.

Winner of section one to play winner of section two in final.

Games to consist of 14 ends, in case of the games extra end to be played.

If skip is unable to arrange game with any of their opponents by Thursday night they must report to the games committee at once.

If skip is unable for any reason to form rink out of men allotted to him the games committee will appoint substitutes.

Fee will be 10 cents per man for each game he plays, and skips are responsible for same.

In case of ties in each section at end of series, extra game to be played. Any games not played games committee will investigate and decide winners.

Prizes to be given to winners and runners-up in the final.

At the games committee, C. Laur, chairman; H. J. McCullum, vice-president; P. B. Fetterley, F. Allen, H. G. Buchanan, T. C. Margrethe, B. N. Sylvester.
