The Danger of Bank Bills.

The banks do not seem yet to have learned that their great danger in panicky times is their own bills. It is the bank bills that are passing round that ignorant people get afraid of the moment a bank's standing is questioned. If the banks were not empowered to issue notes they would have to fall back on government paper which is far more likely to continue current than bank bills in a crisis. So far the partial issue of government notes has been a success, and we hope to see the day when the principle will be still further carried out and the government issue take the place of all bank bills. It is true the banks make some money out of the privilege they now have of issuing bills, but the risk is so great that in the long run they are not benefitted by them. As a matter of fact the notes of any bank are generally good, no matter how bad the bank may be, but the public do not so regard them, and at the slightest hint there is a general rush to turn its notes into gold, or legal tender. In their own interests the banks ought to ask the government to substitute dominion bills for all notes issued by themselves.

The World is pursuing a line of newstherein is now an admitted fact. It does not believe in a big paper full of poster cuts and advertisements; it does not be-lieve in display type; it does not believe in long columns of illy-digested matter. On the contrary it is striving to give all the news in condensed form, but accurate. It is trying to give the people the facts of anything that arises, and not to conceal them; it is trying to say whatever it has to say in good form, in good language, and to the point. Any spare money The World may have it is going to put it into the paper, and not in poster advertisements or in long winded reports. It will try to employ the services of the best it and who wish to see the city at its best talent, and to give its patrons quality instead of quantity. It claims that it is by and drive around in the cool of the evenfar the nearest approach to a metropolitan newspaper in the city. Our contemporaries are devoting their energies, it would appear, to the poster business. No first-class newspaper in New York or in London is engaged in the poster business, and The World can see a field for itself in Toronto, without violating the rules which guide

On Friday night last a preliminary meetsin house, the object being to take steps approaching from the south would be towards forming a real estate exchange in Toronto. The advantages of such an association were pretty fully explained by Mr. R. W. Prittie (of Elliot & Prittie) and the meeting was adjourned till to-morrow (Tuesday) night, at the same place. Mr. Prittie's strongest points appear to be these two. First, that investment in real estate, made with ordinary good judgment, is which latter are the prey of reckless speculators, who send them up, or down, OFFICE: 18 KING ST. And, next, that Toronto city We have before called attention to the week of the panic there been using it as a "Veritas" and His Wholesale Denuncia reason why people with money to invest should put it into real estate rather than into stocks or bonds. The reason given "The tone of the independent republican press of the United States continues strongly in favor of tariff reform. This has been the policy of the democratic party for many years. It is a plank upon which the demo crats and independent republicans can delivered at their houses before 7 o'clock every man supported by such a combination of political interests." So says the Toronto doodle of this sort almost every day. If it be anything like a true presentment of the situation over the border the democrats have the ball at their feet. All they have to do is to put in their platform a strong free trade plank, choose a candidate who is a pronouned free trader, and go to the country on that question.

I have been one of the earliest and most earnest advocates of lay co-operation in the slowest to move in the direction of popular rights, for which I have endured some contumely in my time; yet I boldly aver that there is not the slightest reason for the suspicion and alarm which Veritas is striving to create.

Our methods of appointing to office are not in all particulars. (nor are those of the the calmen, and all who will perform any, part of the duty of entertaining our guests.

To all such, too, it will be a time of special and strong temptation. On all great occasions of the like there is every inducement to make as much as possible out of people's necessities, to charge for everything the highest price that people will pay.

This is a time, however, when the city's honor is specially at stake, and we earnestly hope it will not be tarnished by extortion or any such petty meanness.

Alfortreal had a brilliant carnival last winter. But thousands of people, who were the victims of extortion at the hands of hotelkeepers and cabmen, returned home uttering imprecations on the place, and vowing never to set foot in it again.

Let this incident serve as a warning to our citizens. Charge your visitors a fair, honest price for every service you do them and they will be glad to come and spend money among you again. Overcharge them and "take them in" and you will soil the reputation of our fair city, and advertise it abroad as a place to be avoided by all good people.

Every wise man this week will govern between the server have the there will govern himself by the principle that every dollar host pr the cabmen, and all who will perform any

According to our southern contemporary the best rule is to drink as little as possible of anything, and nothing at all during the hot hours of the day. This advice is much easier to follow than it may appear at first blush. Men heavily tasked, working under the direct rays of the sun can easily do without water by following a very simple rule. What many people regard as thirst is merely a dryness of the mouth and throat, caused by breathing through the mouth. The air taken into the lungs dries the mouth, tongue and upper portion of the throat, whereas, if one breathes through the nose, keeping the lips closed, as they ought to be, there will be no thirst, To drink for the purpose of relieving a throat made dry in this way is to overload the stomach with fluids not needed. and which are consequently detrimental to digestion. From the Montreal Witness.

The Federal bank with a capital of The Federal bank with a capital of over three millions of dollars and a rest of a million and a half is in a nominally strong position, and yet within the last few days the price of the shares has declined over seventeen per cent. This sudden drop is more grave considering the fact that the price of the stock has been declining steadily in common with others for nearly a year, and that values should now be near foundation figures for a time of depression. It has been long known that an unusually and unprecedently large proportion of the capital stock of the bank was held upon margin—that is, held on berrowed money by speculators who themselves supply over three millions of doilars and a rest of ment northward of the rain belt which is strong position, and yet within the last only a small percentage of the money paid for the stock. This large amount of stock floating about the market tends, of course, to depress the price. The facts, however, that deposits have been decreasing so largely for a year, and that the price of the stock has tumbled so suddenly, make it clear that the public have to some extent, whether reasonably or not, lost confidence in the management of the bank. We do not see that the bank can do other under the circumstances than take the policy of the management is to keep clear of speculation. Never punish your child for a fault the which you are addicted yourself. Do not underrate your ability to achieve success in a noble undertaking till you have fully tested your powers of action and endurance.

It will be very generally found that those who sneer habitually at human nature, and effect to despise it, are among its worst and least pleasant samples. In the lottery of life there are more prizes drawn than blanks, and to one misfortune there are fifty advantages. Despondency is the most unprofitable feeling a man can indulge in.

Closing Exercises of the Public Schools a The above took place Friday afternoon he pavilion of the Horticultural gardens. The place was packed from top to bottom with the place was packed from top to bottom with the friends and relations of the pupils. Some excellent singing was rendered by the children between the presentations of the various prizes. The prize list is too long to be given in full, but below are the names of the successful candidates for the scholarships and medals. The scholarships were presented by Walter Lee, chairman of collegiate institute: Scholarships (girls).—Ist, Annie Stalker, Wellesley school; 2d, Louie Devlyn, Wellesley school; 3d, Abbie Ecclestane, Wellesley school; 5th, Mabel Tennant, Wellesley school; 5th, Emma Smith, Ryerson school.

Scholarships (boys).—Ist, J. A. Melbonald, Wellesley school; 2d, Ardhur Anderson, Wellesley school; 4d, Wellesley school; 3d, S. G. Beckett, Ryerson school; 4th, James McCuaig, Wellesley school; 6th, John Robinson, Wellesley school; 6th, John Robinson, Wellesley school; 6th, John Robinson, Wellesley school.

The medals presented by John Macdonald to the two pupils taking the highest standing in the first division were awarded to Annie Stalker and Louisa Devlyn of the Wellesley school. Frank Russell of the Wellesley school. Frank Russell of the Wellesley school. Frank Russell of the Wellesley school as entitled to the first boys' school was entitled to the first boys' school was entitled to the first boys' school and he received a special prize instead. Agnes Mullen of Ryerson school received a sufficient number of marks to entitle her to the fourth scholarship, but as she had competed before she was ineligible.

In awarding the medalsMayor Boswell complimented the two girls, and said he hoped that not only had they tudied books, but that they had also learnt the art of bread-making, etc. He concluded by wishing them long life riends and relations of the pupils. Some ex-pleasure of pressnting four other member her family with scholarships; evidently. Tennant family are talented.

Mr. Johnston, chairman public school bo in opening the meeting explained the croased expenditure by saying that note had they nearly twice as many pupils as a had a few years ago, but that they had so much more property to see they are had a few years ago, but that they had also much more property to see after and keep in repair. The average attendance at the public schools is 11,642. There are in the city 30 public schools and the property owned by the school bo ard is worth $426,700.

Mayor Boswell presented the schools with a very handsome banner, to be held by the best drilled school. It will be competed for on the Wellesley street lacrosse grounds at the public school procession during next week.

The prizes were presented to the fourth division by trustee Somers, to the third division by Mr. Boswell, to the second division by Mr. Medcalfe, and to the first division by Mr. Medcalfe, and to the first division by Mr. Perrin and he evidently has taken no small pains to bring the children to their present state of excellence.
