Up to yesterday no word had been received from Mr. Garfield, president of the National association of amateur carsmen, regarding the O'Connor-Enright Laing business, except that in returning the bonds given for the cups won by the Canadians last year Mr. Garfield says he has been indisposed, that he has not had time to investigate the matter, but that as the regatta committee are high-minded gentlemen he is sure neither nationality nor caste had anything to do with their action. Mr. Garfield's great hold is evidently that everybody connected with the association is a perfect connected with the association is a perfect gentleman. He gave as a reason why the Hillsdales shouldn't be ruled out that they were perfect gentlemen, and now it is the regatta committee that come under the same category. It is evident that being so high-minded the National association do not like being taken down from their lofty station by a lot of poor hard working Canucks and, therefore, reject them as unworthy their company. From what we know of Kerby of Providence and other members in good standing day in Eastern park by 13 runs to 10. At the conclusion of the baseball match a tug from their lofty station by a lot of poor hard working Canucks and, therefore, reject them as unworthy their company. From what we know of Kerby of Providence and other members in good standing with Mr. Garfield's august association, we should say Messrs. Laing, O'Connor and Enright have no cause to grieve However, the Canadian association has reason to resent an insult, and the most practical way for it to do so seems to us to form a junction with the Northwestern and Mississippi Valley amateur rowing associations under the name of the American associations under the name of the American associations of amateur carsened — with which there are many clubs even in the eastern states that would like to affiliate—and give a series of regattas, on the circuit principle every year, open only to actual members. In this way they would foster amateur rowing to a greater extent even than they do now and would account of the conclusion of the baseball beague, in which case the games played by them will have to be taken from the record, leaving the clubs, including yesterday's matches, standing the circuit principle every year, open only to actual members. In this way they would foster amateur rowing to a greater extent even than they do now and would.

The setting in a victory for Robertson's men by two straight hats.

The Whiting c. c. and the Bracondale cut the latter, resulting in a victory grounds of the latter, resulting in a victory of the Whiting c. c. by a score of 98 to 51. The batting of F. S. Treen and S. Durham for the Bracondale club.

It is understood that the Maple Leafs have definitely decided to retire from the Canadian baseball league, in which case the games played by them will have to be taken from the record, leaving the clubs, including yesterday's matches, standing the clubs, including yesterday's matches, standing the clubs, and primary the clubs, and the conting the clubs, the conting the clubs, and the conting the foster amateur rowing to a greater ex-tent even than they do now, and would establish a formidable rival to the National association—a rival, in fact, so formidable that the existing autocratic institution would find itself thoroughly undone.

The Century for September. Mr. Stedman's article, "The Twilight of the Poets," in the September Century, is to be the closing one of the series. It enumerates most of the poets now active, numerates most of the poets now active, men and wemen of the younger generations, but does not, as has been erroneously stated, attempt to weigh and measure them. It is a designedly uncritical summary of what they are doing, followed by the writer's ideas of the present condition of American poetry and its chances in the near future. near future.

For flat roofs only pitch and gravel will be allowed, thus barring cements and met al groofing, which are certain y more thoroughly fireproof than pitch. I for one, as a property owner in the city, should like to see a bylaw passed prohibiting entirely the use of wood shingles in the thickly settled portions of the city, for just so long as these fire traps are allowed just so long we run the increased risk of such widespread and ruinous conflagrations. I hope, though, that when such by-laws are passed no partiality may be shown to certain classes of artizans by discriminating against any fire proof material.
