i. J. J. Dixon & Co.'s advices state that the lead ing speculative products to-day were affected by a general closing up of outside contracts, which seemed to be induced by conflicting reports of probable receipts on one hand, a very uneven tone among European markets on the other.
Traders generally expected markets to rule very weak, and sold freely, but closings showed prices to be recovering under an active demand from short sellers.
Counselman & Day wire: Provide Toronto. short sellers. Counselman & Day wire: Provisions suffered a heavy decline caused by free liquidation of scattered holdings of September pork. Receipts of hogs here and at western points showed an unexpected increase, and the early decline of hogs encouraged a bear raid, which was so rapid and severe as to bring out large blocks of September pork on expiring margins. The latest tone was unsettled and shorts aggressive, but we think market in a state to encourage purchasers on any weak spot from closing prices.
