

Church. He lies in our graveyard ; he is ours ; and, being ours, let us protect his memory, as though he had not sought us a stranger, but was of us : of our homes, as of our love, and of our sorrow.

“ And so atoning for our sins, as did he, may we at last come to the perfect pardon, and to peace everlasting.”