

Courtesy to Pupils.

If courtesy to parents is a duty, it is not less a duty to pupils. Everybody knows how Luther's school-master, the famous Trebonius, used to take off his hat when he entered his school-room. "I uncover my head," he would say, "to honour the consuls, chancellors, doctors, masters, who shall proceed from this school." Dr. Arnold won his way to the hearts of Rugby boys by the simple respect which he showed in accepting their word as true. A master's success has sometimes been imperiled by so slight a matter as the mistake of not returning boys' salutes in the streets, for courtesy begets courtesy—it is a passport to popularity. The way in which things are done is often more important than the things themselves.

One special point of personal courtesy you will let me mention—it is punctuality. To keep a class waiting is to be rude and to seem to be unjust, for a sense of speculation arises when a master is apt to be late. If he is generally four minutes late boys will count the chance of his being one minute later, and the result will be disappointment, disaster, and then dislike.

It Might Have Been.

Waiter! "Yes, sir." "What's this?" "It's bean soup, sir." "No matter what it has been; the question is, what is it now?"—Sel.
