Prospectus for 1875—Eighth Year.

THE ALDINE,

The ART JOURNAL of America.
ISSUED MONTHLY.

"A Magnificent Conception Well Fully carried out."

The necessity of a popular medium on the representation of the productions of our great artists has given rise to the publication of THE ALDINE. Attempts have been made to meet the want. The success of failures which so invariably followed each attempt to publish an illustrated periodical, to compete with the chill influence of unpopularity, often to the ruin of high art. We undertook a proper appreciation of the want and an ability to meet it, with the shield the public at this juncture with entertainment and its surprise, and has proved a most valuable and commercial triumph—THE ALDINE.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant exhibition of Taste, Light and Shade, and Manufacture; and a collection of pictures, the rarest productions of artistic skill in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be best appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superiority for a season, compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unprecedented—absolutely without competition in form or character. The possessor of a complete set of volumes can put together the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or manner it volumes of for less its cost; and then, they are the choicest product.

The bound volume of THE ALDINE must be kept on many centre table, as an ornament to the room. While THE ALDINE is a strictly American illustration it does not confine itself entirely to the reproduction of native art. Its mission is to bring art into a broad and appreciative art taste, one that will subordinate only personality to universality. Thus, while placing before the patrons of THE ALDINE a life-like landscape—a sketch—the production of the rarest talent of genius, a fine figure piece will always be given to illustrate from foreign masters. In this manner the highest standard of construction obtainable from home and foreign sources. The artistic merit of each picture, the original with THE ALDINE, is an important feature, and its unrestricted issue are of a rare and unique character. In this respect the treatment of details that can be allowed by our inferior periodicals is impossible with the proper effect upon the finished engraving, requiring the closest attention, impossible where the proper effect upon the finished engraving, requiring the closest attention, impossible where the proper effect upon the finished engraving, requiring the closest attention, impossible where
