

Mouth's Carrier.

KIND AND UNKIND. "Don't cry," is just now uttered to the street, under my window, in a kind, encouraging tone, by a little girl who has charge of a smaller one.

UNKNOWN.—Lucy was left one afternoon with her little brother, and there was no one else to amuse him. She had just received a present of something for a frock for her doll, and she was anxious to make it as soon as possible.

I am confident this is the way the little girl would have done who spoke so soothingly to her little sister, "don't cry."

MARKS OF A BAD SCHOLAR.

From Abbott's Teacher. At the time when she should be ready to take her seat at school, she commences preparation for leaving home.

After so much haste, she is unfitted for attending properly to the duties of the school, until a considerable time after her arrival.

When called to recitations, she recollects that some task was assigned, which, till that moment, she had forgotten; or others she had mistaken the extent, most commonly thinking them to be shorter than her companions suppose.

Throughout her whole deportment there is an air of indolence, and a want of interest in those exercises which should engage her attention.

About every thing in which it is possible to be so, she is indolent. Her books are carelessly used, and placed in her desk without order.

covered with ink. Her written exercises are blotched, and full of mistakes.

THE TIME TO RUN.

"Go the other way! Go the other way!" cried Mr. Grace, a thoughtful neighbor, as Samuel Hawkes was about to get over the fence into Mr. Benson's orchard.

Mr. Grace had a good opinion of Samuel Hawkes, for he was a steady lad; but he thought that the temptation might be too much for him, so he persuaded him to take the other path.

"Well, thought I, I must take example from this man, and run a way from temptation whenever it approaches me.

MAN OVER THE FALLS.

Niagara Falls, Oct. 21, 1818. At about sun-down last evening a man was carried over the Falls. Who he was is not known.

It was on the head of Goat Island when I first discovered the boat—sheer near half a mile below the last of Navy Island.

Then I saw but one man—he standing at the stern with his ear, charging the course of the boat down the current and as it plunged over, he sat down.

Still there was hope that he would come near enough to the pier to jump, but in a moment it was gone.

With the power to render assistance, for half an hour watching a strong man struggling with every nerve for life, yet doomed with almost the certainty of destiny to an immediate and awful death, still hoping with every effort for his deliverance, caused an intensity of excitement I pray God never again to witness.

I write too hurriedly for publication, but I have stated all we have seen or know respecting the man or boat, from which I hope you will be able to glean so much for publication as will lead to the discovery of the man.—Buffalo Com. Advertiser.

THE WHIRLPOOL OF NIAGARA.

Advancing through a serpentine road, under the shade of majestic trees, we came to a rough table rock, from which we looked down about 300 feet, upon a pool or circular basin of the river, apparently not many rods in diameter, where the water was boiling and foaming and whirling around in great agitation.

its most violent agitation, only far more terrific. It was full of whirlpools, continually forming and disappearing, and each from 50 to 100 feet in diameter.

It is not to be imagined that I would wish to see farmers' wives and daughters lay aside country plainness and simplicity of manner, and attempt the silly foppery of city fashions and vanities.

Let it not be imagined that I would wish to see farmers' wives and daughters lay aside country plainness and simplicity of manner, and attempt the silly foppery of city fashions and vanities.

My second and last remark is, that Education to which I have had reference in the foregoing observations, and which I believe to be essential to the well being of an agricultural population, is Christian—using the term in the sense of the Scriptures.

There may be the sorrowing and the world-weary find congenial rest. But to be tossed and dishonoured and mingled in that horrible gulf of raging, tortured waters, is too dreadful a doom for the mind to contemplate.

It was enough to drive one frantic, to think that the body of a loved friend was to be devoured by the demonic elements of that enraged sepulchre.

The atmosphere around us.—The atmosphere rises above us with its cathedral dome, arching towards the heaven; of which it is the most familiar synonyme and symbol.

Happily, the two are so far from being hostile powers in a common domain, that they are natural allies, moving on harmoniously in the same right line, and mutually strengthening each other.

Every attentive observer will admit, that more is accomplished in the way of learning in any given time, by a free conversation with a person who understands his subject, than can be learned in the same time in any other way.

THE RIGHT OF LABOUR.

Tell the hero of February, that the State allows him a right to employment, and immediately you have the fooleries of the national workshops. He will read in these words a right to employment at his own work, however superfluous,—at his own terms, however extravagant.
