

assumed that that was to be quite stimulating to the home growers, and in order to prevent its being overdone there would be provision for the production of just a certain number of contract hogs—in their home market, so we are told—something like signing up a pool contract. I wonder if the Minister of Agriculture would tell us about that; I am sure he must know. It is all guess work without the report of the British commission before us. Would he tell us whether a certain quota was to be placed on the foreign product or the home product in Britain, or both or neither?

Progress reported.

On motion of Mr. Bennett the house adjourned at 10.58 p.m.
