

South Mountain Fair celebrates

100 years in fine style

SOUTH MOUNTAIN — "Best in 100 years!" That's the way Sandra Weagant, chairman of the Culinary Arts Section of the South Mountain Fair, summed up the results.

"The Fair endeavored to promote the centennial theme with entries such as rhubarb conserve, canned vegetables, homemade bread and others rediscovering lost arts in modern cooking," Weagant said. There were 307 entries in all sections and the judge had a difficult time choosing the winner from the high quality entries.

Diane Fox of Hallville had the highest points in bread and buns earning her a gift certificate from the Village Bin, Winchester.

Wendy Weagant's brown bread won the special prize from "Fleischman's Yeast". Diane Fox and Sylvia Williams were runners-up.

The "Blue Bonnet Margarine" cookie contest was won by Sabina de Stecher, who also topped the muffin category.

Sandra Weagant was the winner of the "Five Roses" pie baking contest as well as the "Kellogg's Rice Krispie" square contest.

Everyone Loves a Parade

Yes, everyone loves a parade and the folks in South Mountain are no different. They enjoyed bands, floats, antique cars, motorcycles and a variety of other sights and sounds as a part of the celebrations for the 100th Anniversary of South Mountain's annual Agricultural Fair.

The Weekly Advance, Wednesday, August 26, 1992

Organizers gave their Sunday parade a historical flavor with many horse-drawn vehicles carrying passengers and riders in period dress.

The theme of the day South Mountain Fairs - Then and Now, tied in with the fair's floats featuring horses and buggies, old farm machinery and equestrian entries.

Dressed in period costume, Barbara Empey of Mountain and Diane Fox of Hallville look at some of the numerous floral arrangements on display at the Mountain Township Fair.

the winner of the D.L. Berry Award. This award, which was created to commemorate the centennial of the fair, is to be awarded annually to someone who has made a long and dedicated commitment to the fair over the years. Former Mountain Township Agricultural Society President Bob Weagant, was the popular choice as the inaugural winner of the trophy.

100th Birthday Cake

The Winchester Press Wed., Aug. 26, 1992

The Weekly Advance, Wednesday, August 26, 1992