

A FEW BOUQUETS

"We would say off-hand that Fraser writes as good verse as Service. We would call this Nova Scotia poet a Jim Tully in rhyme, an Edgar Guest with more guts and less Pollyanna-ism."

(The Halifax Chronicle)

"Dawn Fraser writes as good narrative verse as will be found anywhere; but it is his prose that we like best." (Jefferson, in The Maritime Advocate)

* * * *

"Dawn Fraser has an original style all his own which identifies him as one of the most pleasing writers of the day." (The Evening News).

"Whether in the Army, in Russia, or elsewhere, it is evident that Dawn Fraser saw all there was to see. He packs more punch and drama into a few lines than any author we have read, and his new book is sure to be popular." (The Glace Bay Gazette).

"Dawn Fraser is undoubtedly the most fearless writer in America."

(Comment in Western newspaper)

"In his latest offering, Echoes from Labor's War, Fraser leaps up at the bell and keeps punching hard, page after page. If one seeks a review of the labor troubles in the years 1924-25, THIS IS IT."

(The Maritime Labor Herald)
