Mothers of families freely admit that no material gives such satisfaction for general wear as the colored Dongola. This season the color is of that rich dark brown that matches so admirably the hosiery

The style of these shoes is commended, as they are less liable to slip at the heels than the ordinary low Oxford—the strap on the instep holding them on securely.

LATE LOCALS

The death of Joseph McPherson at Roxbury, Mass., last Wednesday is reported at the age of 64 years. He was a native of this city.

St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, Georgetown street, Rev. David Lang, M. A., D. D., pastored services at 11 and 7 p. m. Sabbath school at 2.30. All are cordially welcome to the services.

The funeral of Mrs. Eleanor A. Wills took place today from her son's residence, 64 Elliott Row, at 11 o'clock. Service was conducted by Rev. Dr. Spang and Rev. C. W. Hamilton and the body was taken to Upper Sackville for interment.

Twelve deaths were reported to the board of health this week as follows: Senile decay 3, diphtheria 2, consumption, meningitis, heart disease, heart failure, cerebral emolus, disease of prostate, cancer of os uterum, one each.

Success has crowned the opening sale of the Union Clothing Company. Many have come, more will come. All day today and tonight the good things will be offered. Call and investigate this unusual money-saving opportunity. See adv. on page 3.

On Wednesday next the priests attached to the St. John conference will meet in the presbytery of the Church of St. John the Baptist, Lower Cove. The priests attached to this conference are those of St. John county, Kings, Queens and Albert. Theological and ecclesiastical matters will form the subjects of discussion at the conference.—New Freeman.

The half-holiday goes into effect today in the leading hardware establishments, and the wholesale grocers will also close. No definite action has yet been taken by dry-goods clerks or retail grocery employees. While the half-holiday is not general among wall paper men, George Nixon and Reid Bond will close during June, July and August.

Considering the Sweeney, Shipman & Co. production of When Knighthood Was in Flower which will be at the Opera House three nights, commencing June 7, 8, 9, as a whole, with its gorgeous scenery, magnificent costumes, and a cast which includes some of the best actors and actresses of the day, it is safe to say that it will draw one of the biggest crowds of the season to that theatre on the night of its presentation.

THE IRISH PAWNBROKERS

This famous farce comedy The Irish Pawnbrokers, which has been one of the biggest successes ever known in farce comedy, will be the attraction at the Opera House Monday night. This is the fourth edition and is the work of Edgar Selden. He has so re-written the comedy that it is a line of the former editions is retained, at the same time he has woven a consistent story of intrigue depending on the situations and complications and together with funny lines and business to furnish the fun. The same popular favorites who have been largely responsible for the success of the comedy have been retained, namely Tony Murphy, and Larry Mack. They are ably assisted by Miss Langley Jackson, Violet Hilton, Jack Hardy and the Colonial Comedy Four, a quartet of sweet singers, and others. Almost every member of the company will contribute a specialty—which are consistently spread through the performance.

ROSELLE KNOTTHERE NEXT WEEK

It is safe to say that Messrs. Sweeney, Shipman & Co. are this year taking out the most gorgeous set of scenery for their great production of When Knighthood Was in Flower that has ever left New York City. Five sets are required for the excellent descriptions of the country where the play is laid during the time about which it is written. The properties and settings have been made exact copies from originals in French and English museums and are simply magnificent. The sets represent Windsor Park, London, on Monday, 1513, Mary Tudor's apartments at Redwell House, London, one of the most beautiful palaces of the time, the great room of the famous Bow and Strong, Bristol, the ball room of the Palace Des Tournaillies, Paris, and the morning room of the Greenwich Palace, London.

A FINE SHOW

Among the important attractions book for early production at York Theatre is Fabio Romani, a clever dramatization of Marie Corelli's novel, "The Vendetta." The story deals with the rivalry of the wife of "Fabio Romani" and her favor for the friend of her husband, which results in their joint contrivance to consign Romani to the torture of a living death by being entombed alive, and it is then that he registers his vow of vengeance on the erring pair. Through the terrible eruption of Mt. Vesuvius, his escape from entombment is made possible and is followed by the death of his false wife and friend. This great attraction opens at York Theatre on Thursday next.

TIERED CITY FOLKS

A. P. Paterson's house has received a new coat of paint which adds greatly to the neat appearance.

The grocery store of Harold Thomas has become very popular with the residents and fills a long felt want.

Kamp Kumfort is resplendent in a new dress of white paint with green trimmings.

At Riverside

Riverside this year seems to have increased in popularity and the cottages have all been taken.

D. J. Purdy and family have taken a cottage there.

Charles J. Lordly is occupying the same cottage he had last year.

Eustace Barnes and family are out again this year.

Atkinson Morrison and family expect to move out on Thursday next.

Others who are out there are: Walter Fleming, J. S. Gibbons, Wm. L. Robson, L. D. Clarke, Thomas U. Hay, John McFarlane, Alexander Campbell, Jr., A. R. Campbell, J. A. Sinclair, Arthur Lordly and R. T. Lavitt.

One of the residents when asked if there were any social matters arranged for said the only thing he knew of was the "frog band," which was expected to make its appearance tonight. He added also that the perch were with them yet and that eels had not yet made an appearance.

At Millidgeville

Of all the summer resorts within easy reach of the city, it is clearly evident that Millidgeville occupies a prominent place in the foremost rank. The number of suburbanites is vastly in excess of last season, and already accommodation is at a premium.

Those who have located there for the present season are unanimous in voting it an ideal summer resort, affording, as it does, an excellent opportunity for yachting, boating and canoeing.

Frank E. Williams, talking with the Times today, expressed the opinion that a large up-to-date summer hotel was needed at Millidgeville, and if properly handled, could be made a paying proposition. There are, he adds, plenty of suitable localities, and the advent of such an establishment would be hailed with delight, not only by the St. John public, but by summer tourists generally.

Those who have moved out are still busy getting their cottages into shape for the season, and as a natural consequence, social events are by no means so numerous as they doubtless will be when everybody has settled down and plans begin to take definite form.

The numerous yachts and small craft form a striking picture, and a notable feature of the present season is the rapid increase in the number of power boats.

At the present time, however, there is one grievance, at least, that should be investigated by the city, and which should be attended to without delay. The deplorable condition of what is known as Manor Sutton street, is talked of generally among the summer residents, who say that it is so dangerous for driving that two of the suburbanites, feeling it was high time for somebody to take the matter in hand, had some improvements made at their own expense.

Application was made to the city to make this thoroughfare suitable, but apparently the proper officials ignore the application, and, as a natural result, not a dollar was expended in that direction. Residents complain that as houses are being built in that section of Millidgeville the city fathers should take some action in the matter. It has also been ascertained that the people are desirous of having the road incorporated.

To return again to the matter of accommodation, it is worthy of note that it has been found necessary to erect two portable houses for well known city families. "This," remarked one of the suburbanites to a Times reporter, "speaks for itself."

Among those who are summering there are: J. Fraser Gregory, Sydney L. Kerr, A. W. Macrae, Chas. A. Rutherford, A. E. Prince, Holly Mel, Langley, Dr. March, A. P. Hazen, F. E. Law, Horace King, Gil Sweeney, Stephen Matthews, George Jackson and others.

At Westfield

The past week has seen quite a number of the summer residents arrive and this popular resort is commencing to show signs of its usual activity. The fine weather of the past few days has been heartily welcomed after the long stretch of rainy weather, and the suburbanites having become settled are now thinking of various amusements for the summer evenings.
