TWO ZEPPELINS LOST IN RAID ON ENGLISH TOWNS LAST NIGHT

Brought Down In Flames Into The Sea CREWS OF BOTH PERISH

Nothing of Damage Caused by Enemy—British Air Craft Engage the Hostile Fleet—Five Giant Dirigibles Bagged in Last Three Raids

London, Nov. 28.—(11.16 a. m.)—Two Zeppelins were brought down in Monday night's raid on the northeast coast of England. The crews of both airships perished. The destruction of the airships was announced in an official communication issued by the war office.

Reports from the north of England indicated that the raid was futile so far as the infliction of any damage was concerned. The military authorities in some towns gave warning of the approach of the raiders and all lights were promptly put out. In some places it was reported that the engines of the airships were heard overhead, but no bombs were dropped. It is said that most of the bombs released by the raiders fell in the fields in rural districts.

Reports so far received from the northeast coast mention only two German airships as having been engaged in the raid. A telegram from an unnamed town says the first raider arrived there at 12.30 and remained a short time, during which several bombs were dropped. Nobody was injured. The second airship appeared ten minutes later and hovered over the town for a few minutes, after which the commander was uncertain of his whereabouts. It then turned seaward and disappeared without dropping any bombs.

Both Zeppelins were brought down in flames into the sea after being attacked by the Royal Flying Corps. Bombs were dropped at various places in Yorkshire and Durham. The damage is believed to be slight.

The following official account of the raid was issued this morning:—"A number of hostile airships approached the northeast coast of England between ten and eleven last night. Bombs were dropped at various places in Yorkshire and Durham. The damage is believed to be slight.

"One airship attacked by airplanes of the Royal Flying Corps, was brought down in flames into the sea off the coast of Durham. The damage is believed to be slight.

"Another airship crossed into the North Midland counties and dropped bombs at various places. On her return journey she was repeatedly attacked by airplanes of the Royal Flying Corps and guns. She appears to have been damaged, for the last part of her journey was at very slow speed. Near the Norfolk coast she apparently succeeded in affecting repairs and was proceeding east at high speed when she was attacked nine miles out at sea by four machines of the Royal Navy air arm, which brought her down in flames at 6.45 a. m.

"Full reports of the casualties and damage have not yet been received, but it is believed to be slight."

The destruction of two Zeppelins on Monday night makes a total of three destroyed in the three latest attacks by German airmen on British towns. On September 5, one was brought down in flames close to London. On September 28 two were victims of British anti-aircraft guns in the neighborhood of the capital.

On Nov. 18 Petrograd reported a large Zeppelin brought down near Pinsk. The first Zeppelin to meet with disaster in the English raids was the L-15 which was forced down in an attack on London on March 31 and captured in the Thames Estuary. On January 31 the L-19 was seen in the North Sea sinking after a raid on England and is believed to have been damaged by the English coast batteries. After one of the early raids on England on February 18, 1915, the Zeppelin L-8 lost in a snowstorm was forced to land in Denmark where she was burned by her crew, fourteen of whom were interned by the Danish authorities.

PEOPLE FROM AROUND LIEGE BEING DEPORTED

Paris Newspaper Printed News Too Soon

Paris, Nov. 27.—The negotiations between Great Britain and France for the turning over to France of 100 vessels representing 600,000 tons failed because a Paris newspaper published the news pending the arrangements of details, according to statements today during the Chamber of Deputies today during debate on the French merchant marine.

Louis Nall, Under Secretary of State for Marine, said the signing of the agreement was all that remained to be done when the British Admiralty announced that it was impossible to consent to the transfer of the vessels.

The hope was expressed by one speaker that Great Britain would nevertheless allow France to have some vessels now building.

Deputy Guernier said boats are being sold daily and that they could yet be had.

M. Esprit De La Villesboisnet criticized the plan to buy boats abroad and urged the adoption of his bill providing for the construction of a national shipbuilding yard.

A resolution calling for co-operation in the extension of maritime lines and in order to assure the provision of the country and to lessen the high cost of living was adopted.

Second Naval Raid; An Armed Trawler Captured

German Naval Force This Time Makes For Lowestoft on English Coast

London, Nov. 28.—An official German statement is given out as follows: "The admiralty announces that a portion of our naval forces again executed a raid, going close to the English coast in the west on the night of November 26 and is missing. This presumably is the vessel referred to."

This is the second German naval raid in the west on the night of November 26. German destroyers bombarded the town of Ramsgate, near the mouth of the Thames. The German admiralty announced that a British outpost vessel had been sunk by gun fire, but this was denied officially by London. Lowestoft on the North Sea about seventy-five miles northeast of Ramsgate.

Paris, Nov. 28.—German newspapers regard the declaration of war by the provisional government of Saloniki as negligible according to an Amsterdam despatch to the Morning Post. The despatch quotes the Koelnische Zeitung as saying: "The government or rebellion has not yet been recognized by us. It does not exist to us and therefore its declaration of war is nothing to us but a blank paper requiring no reply. Although we need not and shall not take notice of Venizelos' declaration we do not disregard it in practice. The so-called army of the provisional government will fight against the Bulgarians and we shall make prisoners. These prisoners are rebels as long as we disregard the declaration of war and must be treated as such."

FIRE IN TORONTO HOSPITAL

Toronto, Nov. 28.—Fire broke out in the basement of Grace Hospital here soon after five o'clock this morning. Sheathing stored in that part of the building burned furiously but the fire was confined to the lower story. The patients, numbering 120, including twenty-two infants, were removed without injury or untoward incident and returned to their quarters this afternoon.
