Jobs for Jobless

Big Problem Put To Czech Assembly

Unemployment Was Set at 400,000 at End of February and Reduction Has Been Slight Since Then.

London, April 10.—(By Mail)—One of the first questions to occupy the attention of the Czech-Slovak National Assembly soon will be that of unemployment, says the Prague correspondent to "The London Times."

The number of unemployed rose steadily till the end of February, when it reached about 400,000; since then a slight decrease has been noticeable, owing to an improvement in certain branches of industry, chiefly iron and steel, coal and coke.

This is partly due to the effects of the Ruhr occupation, and partly to the placing of contracts by British and American engineering firms. Other trades are more or less slack.

Last autumn, after the financial estimates for the current year had been passed, the National Assembly voted a supplementary credit of 100,000,000 for the relief of unemployment, and now the government is about to ask for another credit of 250 millions for the same purpose. Whether this amount will be finally approved is still in question.

Living in Prague is still expensive. The fall in prices, which set in last October, soon spent its force, and both the working man and the middle class are put to it to make both ends meet. Wages in general have dropped by 30 to 40 per cent., while state employees experience their first "cut" as from April 1. However, in view of the high prices for the necessities of life, the latter have succeeded in obtaining from the government some relief in another form.

Various efforts are being made to bring down the costs of production, but with the exception of a few commodities, such as textiles and boots, the cheapening process seems to have made a halt at the factories and wholesale houses, while retailers are still demanding their pound of flesh. Some eatables, such as meat and butter, have, indeed, lately become dearer.

The government are anxious to assist the downward movement by gradually lowering the freight charges on the state railways for various classes of goods, but are standing firm on the necessity of the coal tax as a means of revenue.

ANTI-BRITISH WRITINGS ARE DENIED BY POINCARÉ

Source of Articles Has Been Cause of Much Mystery in Paris.

London, April 10.—(By Mail)—Rumor, both in Paris and in London, has lately been busy in connection with the authorship of the source of inspiration of a series of blatantly anti-British articles published in Le Figaro, and signed "X," writes a diplomatic correspondent to The London Daily Telegraph. Even M. Poincaré's name has been mentioned. The French Premier's policy has been frequently criticized, and on occasions vigorously enough, in these columns. But that is no reason why even a critic of M. Poincaré's policy should not bear tribute to his French Premier's personal sense of honor and rectitude, ever unassailable. The accusation of having either written or caused to be written the series of articles in question was recently brought to the notice of M. Poincaré himself by a French statesman who ranks among the warmest champions of the Entente.

M. Poincaré's reply was characteristic in its straightforwardness and indignation: "I know all about it," he said. "It is simply abominable. No sooner had the articles appeared than the story was put about that they were inspired by me. It is an infamous calumny, of which I know the source."

Such a statement from such a man should suffice to silence a calumny so harmful to the cause of Anglo-French amity.

GERMAN COLLEGES FOR FREE AND EASY LIFE

Students Now Compelled to Work Their Way Through Years to Agree.

Berlin, April 9.—(By Mail)—College students in Germany have probably suffered more from the effects of the war than any other class. Instead of his pre-war existence of beer drinking and card playing, the student is now compelled to work his way through college.
