CUT THIS OUT

OLD ENGLISH RECIPE FOR CATARRH, CATARRH, DEAFNESS AND HEAD NOISES
If you know of some one who is troubled with Catarrh of the ears, head noises or ordinary catarrh cut out this formula and hand it to them and you may have been the means of saving some poor sufferer from total deafness. In England scientists for a long time past have recognized that catarrh is a constitutional disease and necessarily requires constitutional treatment. Sprays, inhalers and nose douches are liable to irritate the delicate air passages and force the disease into the middle ear which frequently means total deafness, or else the disease may be driven down the air passages towards the lungs which is equally as dangerous. The following formula which is used extensively in the damp English climate is a constitutional treatment and should prove especially efficacious to sufferers here who live under more favorable climate conditions.
Secure from your druggist 1 ounce of Parmit (Double strength). Take this home and add to it 1/4 pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day. This will often bring quick relief from distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open breathing become easy and hearing improve as the inflammation in the ear-drain tubes is reduced. Parmit used in this way acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system and has a tonic action that helps to obtain the desired results. The preparation is easy to make, costs little and is pleasant to take. Every person who has catarrh or head noises or is hard of hearing should give this treatment a trial.

SEES NO DANGERS IN ARMY TRAINING

Representative Kahn Declares Universal Service in U. S. Would Crush Desire For Prussianism—Would Improve The Race

Representative Julius Kahn, chairman of the United States house committee on military affairs, in a statement sent yesterday to the American Defense Society, asserted that a system of universal military training would be the cheapest insurance against war and least likely to "Prussianize" the United States. Representative Kahn favors the smallest regular army that will fulfill the functions which cannot be fulfilled by a reserve force, and announces that he will do all he can to pass congressional legislation akin to the Swiss and Australian systems.

"I have seen statements in the newspapers," he says in his statement, "to the effect that those who advocate universal training are in favor of Prussianizing the United States. There is not a particle of foundation for such a statement. The Prussian system contemplates the induction of the youths of Germany into the German army at the age of eighteen. At first they were compelled to serve for three years uninterruptedly in the military forces of the German Empire. During this period, of course, they underwent military training. But long after they had learned the rudiments of the training required to make a soldier they were compelled to remain in the army for the full period of two or three years. After that continuous service they were subject to calls for manoeuvres for a further period of years.
"The American system proposed at the present time is more like the system prevailing in Switzerland and Australia. The Swiss system covers a period of about six months, spread over a series of eight years. Switzerland is a small country. A young man can travel its entire length in a few hours. Conditions in this country, where the distances are great, require that the training period be continuous. In other words if this country decides on a three or six months' military system, the young man will be trained entirely within that length of time and within the year in which he is called for training. During the period he is training he will never be asked to join the army, unless, unfortunately, he should become involved in war. His service will be required only for training purposes under the usual peace-time conditions that exist in the United States.
"It is not the intention of those who favor the system that any youth during peace times shall be inducted into the army of the United States at any time during his training period, or ever thereafter. Service in the United States army in peace times is to continue as it always has been—on a voluntary enlistment basis.

"Many opponents of universal training insist that the system will make for militarism. We have just trained 4,000,000 young men who came to the colors during the war. Most of them are now back in private life. Ask any of them whether they have been converted to militarism. Their answer invariably will be 'No'.
"But the overwhelming majority of them will tell you that the training served to build them up physically. They will tell you that they gained weight and that they never felt stronger in their lives.
"I believe that the system of universal training will give us a much more patriotic, a much more efficient, citizenship. If anything, I believe that such training will crush any desire for militarism in this country. I believe it
