A SENSIBLE VIEW.

(Montreal Star.)

"The coronation conference will not be a meeting to ratify formally a policy already discussed and agreed upon; but a first meeting together of the representatives of Great Britain under the new conditions to suggest and discuss a policy which can be again discussed and considered by the people of the colonies and finally ratification with or without amendment.

"Nothing is to be gained in empire-building by haste. It must be a growth and not the stamping out of an arbitrary design. To vary the simile, we are not ready yet for the riveters; the ore is still in the melting pot.

"Thus our colonial representatives can go to the conference in no better fashion than with the listening ear and the open mind. They should be as well informed as possible with regard to the opinions and interests of their people. They should be very careful to give no false impression of what the people are ready for, and what they would not accept without protest and criticism. These points safeguarded, they can discuss with the freedom of a domestic gathering the possibilities and prospects and needs of the future, and the difficulties which will lie in the path of any specified policy.

"Then they will be ready to move forward. And their greatest care should be to carry the people with them."

A GIFT.

(Washington Star.)

"My young fellow," said Senator Borah, "you have an excellent talent for speech-making."

"Yes," complacently replied the statesman who sold a great deal of applause from the galleries. "I feel justified in saying that oratory is a gift."

"That's what it is. There are mighty few people who can get paid for it nowadays."

ST. JOHN STAR.

ST. JOHN, N. B., JUNE 6, 1902.

WRONG AGAIN.

The Telegraph, with that elephantine humor which characterizes its utterances, invariably refers to this ambitious young journal as the "evening reprint." There is something to be said in favor of re-printing interesting matter rather than producing columns of original twaddle, but of course the Telegraph would not be expected to realize the fact.

This morning the Telegraph takes up the Star's story of the fight in the local government ranks about the road machine, and says every statement is false. On the contrary, with the exception of two errors, the story was quite true. Instead of Thos. Gilliland, the Star should have said William Gilliland, brother of Thomas. Instead of Sussex, the Star should have said Hampton. For the rest, the story was true. Mr. Murphy was ordered to go to Hampton, with the same pay as before, but subject to the orders of William Gilliland. Mr. Murphy had a very warm interview with Hon. Mr. Pugsley, and later went as far as to send in his resignation. In some manner, not known to the Star, the affair was patched up, and Mr. Murphy went with the machine. Presumably Dr. Pugsley and Mr. Gilliland carried their point. Therefore the Telegraph is wandering far from the path of rectitude when it says the Star's statements were all false.

Speaking of unreliable news the Telegraph this morning publishes an apology for having itself printed a statement concerning the death of the late Major E. L. Bond of Montreal, which a Montreal lawyer declares to have been "libellous in the extreme."

The Star graciously awaits a full and unreserved apology from its ill-advised contemporary.

UNFAIR CRITICISM.

There is naturally a feeling of irritation on the part of Canadians, arising from the grossly unfair manner in which the South African war has been discussed in a large portion of the United States press. It is obvious that the writers are not anxious to get at the facts, but are inspired partly by a prejudice against England which still survives the American revolution, and partly by a desire to win favor from those who are enemies of England from other causes.

Unquestionably the British government have given their defenders a bad quarter of an hour by the unparalleled liberality of the terms granted to the Boers.

It is unfortunate that any person of position and influence in the United States should, through unfounded prejudice or deliberate design, do anything to mar the friendly relations which exist between the republic and the empire. All English speaking people recognize and are pleased with the splendid development of the United States, and the government of that country has in recent years displayed a spirit of fairness in its treatment of questions affecting the British empire.

The two nations have too much in common, and there is too much that is alike in their genius for government and the general conduct of affairs to afford room for petty criticism of each other's policy at home or abroad. To parade South Africa and forget the Philippines is an absurd mistake. To charge the British government with a lust for plunder, and the British army with cruelty, is equally senseless, and the act of a pharisee. To condemn territorial expansion is to condemn the whole course of the United States since the Declaration of Independence. The Dutch in South Africa dreamed of driving the British out of that country. They are not patriots who were overcome by oppressors, but invaders of British territory who fought and lost to their own ultimate gain. The American people know very well that South Africa will be a better country, with larger liberties for its people, because of British supremacy; and they know equally well that men of the known character of Kruger and Steyn are the last that could be successfully held up as martyrs. The real patriots among the Boers are those leaders, who, misguided though they were, fought to the end, and are now urging their people to become good British subjects. If our American friends will look carefully into the matter, they will perceive that in this affair right has triumphed, and that it would have won at much less cost but for the middle-some activity of people in Europe and America, who had nothing to lose, but who thought it a fine thing to shout and rant in the name of human liberty.

THE GLOBE'S PUZZLES.

When the Globe discusses the late South African war, or deals with United States affairs, a degree of keen perception is sometimes necessary to discover its abundant loyalty to British institutions and policy. In lieu of puzzle pictures the Globe doubtless deems it wise to afford its readers a measure of mental exercise in the search for the conference of boards of trade, on which two editorials have already appeared, seems to have been seized upon for the purpose of artfully concealing amid paragraphs of adverse comment the Globe's real desire that the congress may prove of some benefit to Canada. There is one danger in such a course as the Globe pursues. Some people are devoid of a sense of humor, and may fall to perceive that the Globe is playfully concealing its real sentiments. They may even be stupid enough to feel that the Globe is expressing its actual views. This would be most unfortunate, and the Star therefore takes the liberty of pointing out to the Globe that a really healthy and hearty and hopeful utterance would occasionally serve a useful purpose.

THE OUTLOOK IN CUBA.

William J. Bryan Predicts Civil War in the Island.

"I predict that Cuba will be the scene of civil war, that internal strife growing out of disunion among the political leaders will temporarily paralyze the industries of the island." Such is the opinion formed by William Jennings Bryan as the result of his trip to Cuba as the special correspondent of Collier's Weekly.

In his article in Collier's Weekly of June 3, Mr. Bryan will say: "That the people of Cuba are capable of self-government is not a question open for dispute. Henry Clay declared, in his defence of the independence of the South American republics, that God never made a people incapable of self-government; that it was the doctrine of thrones and a reflection on Jehovah to say that he created people incapable of self-government and left them to the government of kings and emperors. Clay's logic is sound.

"Capacity for government is not a thing to be acquired or to be bestowed; it is inherent in the people. As individuals differ in wisdom, in self-restraint and in moral character, so nations differ, but it cannot be said that any nation has reached perfection in the science of government or in the art of administration; neither can it be said that any nation is so low down in the scale of civilization that it needs a foreign master.

"When Jefferson was invited to suggest laws for a French colony which located in the United States early in the 19th century, he declined, and gave as his reason that laws were the outgrowth of the history and habits of the people and that no alien could be sufficiently informed about, or sufficiently in sympathy with, a people to make their laws for them. Self-government is in itself a developing process, and growth in capacity comes with the exercise of human rights under self-government.

"But one who visits Cuba and becomes acquainted with the people need not rest the case upon abstract principles, for he is convinced by observation that the Cubans not only have the right to govern themselves but also have the ability to do so. That they will make mistakes is certain, but have we not made mistakes in the United States?

"That they may sometimes resort to violence instead of reason is possible, but have we not done so in the United States? It is even possible that the island may occasionally be the scene of civil war, but have we not had civil war in the United States? The child will stumble and fall in its effort to walk, but is there any other means by which it can learn to walk?

"Cuban independence will not give the people a government free from fault, but it will give them a government as good as they deserve to have—a government that will improve as the people themselves make progress in virtue and intelligence.

"Free government does not mean that each citizen will have just such a government as he wants; it simply means that the people will have such a government as the majority desire, and that each individual can present his views to his fellows with the confidence that whatever is best for all will ultimately prevail."

GIRLS SING AND DANCE.

With Faces Blackened and in Short Skirts, They Appear for Church Benefit.

(New York Herald, Tuesday.)

With blackened faces and in short skirts thirty of the prettiest girl members of the Roman Catholic Church of St. Martin of Tours, in the Bronx, last night sang, danced and cracked negro dialect jokes at Ebling's Casino, 168th street and St. Ann's avenue, for the benefit of the building fund of the church.

Announcement that some of the Sunday school teachers and other young women of the church would conceal their faces behind a mask of charcoal and don abbreviated skirts was enough to attract more than the hall could hold comfortably.

It was a genuine, old-fashioned minstrel show. Miss Julia Murphy acted as interlocutor. There was much speculation among the young men present concerning the identity of the two young women on the extreme end of the front line, who, in place of the traditional skirts, wore trousers, but the church authorities would not make public their names.

BOYS FED.

Boys' Mission Closes with Highly Successful Dinner.

The Boys' Mission on Mill street closed a very successful season's work by an equally successful supper in the room in Carpenter's Hall last evening. About 150 boys sat down to the long table and ate as only such boys can, but even their huge efforts were insufficient to exhaust the supply of savory baked beans, bread, biscuit, sandwiches, hot coffee and other good things which had been so lavishly donated by the friends of the mission. The needs of the happy youngsters were assiduously served by a large corps of young lady waitresses. Among the ladies in charge of the tables were Mrs. A. J. Heath, Miss Brittain, Mrs. and Miss Henderson, Miss Robertson, Mrs. Thorne, Mrs. Odell, Miss Watt-ridge, Mrs. McCormick, Miss Kaye, Miss Buchanan, Miss Whelpley, Miss Weatherhead, Mrs. Ramsay, Mrs. Oram, Mrs. Alex. White, Mrs. McAlary, Mrs. Scarleiff and Miss Phillips.

After the appetites had all been fully satisfied the boys were entertained during a brief program consisting of vocal solos by Miss Nellie Thompson, vocal solos by Mr. Wetmore and Master James Bond; whistling solo by Walter Nixon; address, Rev. Walter White; selection on the bones by Master Roscoe Bond.

Rev. W. E. K. Whitney, who has been conducting the mission so successfully, is intending to spend the summer in the states. He will return and take up the work here about Sept. 1.

Fotheringham, St. John Co.; Mrs. Owen Campbell, Westmorland and Albert Cos.; Mrs. J. K. Laffin, Charlotte Co.; Miss Semple, Queens Co.; Mrs. F. Baird, Kings Co.; Mrs. Massey, York Co.; Mrs. Archibald, Carleton Co.; Mrs. Pringle, Victoria Co.

The session closed with the passing of votes of thanks to the members of St. Andrew's and St. Stephen's Churches, who had entertained the delegates; to those who had taken part in the programme; to the retiring officers, and to the press.

NOVEL DECORATION.

A clever girl, who has more taste than money, has adorned her room with charming pictures by utilizing engravings from the high-class magazines. Not wishing to incur the expense of framing them, the young woman bought several sheets of blue blotting paper, such as art students use in crayon work, and some sheets of grey cardboard. Selecting the pictures that had a good deal of light, she arranged them on blue mats cut large enough to leave a margin. Those that abounded in shades of blue and black were fastened with black wax, some with blue, sealed in the same fashion. By way of variety, the seals were affixed in different places.

The society have fixed their charges at 40 cents an hour on steamers and $3 a day on sailing vessels. The Ship Laborers' Union charge 30 cents an hour on steamers and $2.50 a day on sailing vessels.

LATE LITERARY NEWS.

Not to be familiar with those leading figures in the world of finance and production who are denominated Captains of Industry is not to be able to read the daily news understandingly. The Cosmopolitan has undertaken to have prepared by the men most competent to write them, sketches of some sixty of these foremost men in the industrial world. No more entertaining reading has ever appeared in that magazine. The undertaking is exciting wide interest in every part of the country.

THIS SHOULD NOT BE.

(Ottawa Citizen.)

"Fifteen carloads of supplies for South Africa, are ready for shipment in Ottawa, but owing to lack of direct connection between Canada and Cape Town the freight will have to be shipped via New York." So said W. P. Hinton, assistant-general freight agent, C. A. R., at a meeting of the Ottawa board of trade held yesterday afternoon.

(Exchange.)

Senator Hoar has one famous joke. A friend of his thought he had appended it, but afterward discovered it was only indignation that allied him.

"Well," said the senator when he met his friend, "I am glad the trouble was in your table of contents rather than in your appendix."
