

Sports From My Avail.

BY REV. F. DE WITT WALLACE, D. D.

The story of Bethlehem teaches us that while we are engaged in our occupations, we may behold divine manifestations.

Hold up your head amid financial disaster like a Christian! Fifty thousands subtracted from a goal, man, leaves how much? Honor, truth, faith in God, triumphant hope, and a kingdom of ineffable glory, over which he is to reign for ever and ever.

Our birth is the text from which we start. Youth is the introduction to the discourse. During our manhood we lay down a few propositions and prove them.

Nothing bothers the Christian more than the imperfections of his prayers. His gazing down on his knees seems to be the signal for his thoughts to fly every whither.

When the mother of the late Emperor William of Germany, Louisa of Prussia, received news that the battle of Jena had been lost, she burst into tears.

When Governor Geary, of Pennsylvania, died, I lost a good friend. He impressed me mightily with the horrors of war.

And Look to the Point of the Bayonet.

Well, sir, I didn't feel like myself that day. I had prayed to God for strength for that particular battle, and I went in feeling that I had in my right arm the strength of ten giants.

What we do, we had better do right away. The clock ticks and we hear it. After a while the clock will tick and we shall not hear it.

Hold up your head amid financial disaster like a Christian! Fifty thousands subtracted from a goal, man, leaves how much? Honor, truth, faith in God, triumphant hope, and a kingdom of ineffable glory, over which he is to reign for ever and ever.

A Walk in Old Serampore.

BY HENRY JOHN F. HENRY.

Everything in Serampore reminds one of the past. I had no little difficulty in getting into the college building, where the missionaries Carey, Marshman, and Ward—a watchful eye—strutted side by side for many a long year.

But not a Word is uttered.

Every sentence is a calm, though not as mild, as the eye of a saint beholds. No reproaches, no awakenings, but the one golden thread which pervades all the Indian needs, and must have, and is as sure as destiny to have, the saving Word and Life.

A Devoted Missionary.

It was in the spirit of absolute consecration to God's service, and thorough trust in his fatherly protection and care, that Livingston went forth, not knowing whether he would live.
