Pale and a little nervous apprehensively, he said that he had no objection to Haile's foreman, declared that a verily in the first degree had been found, the youthful prisoner gave not a sign of emotion. A few moments later, the judge, in a low, confidential tone, made of making a formal motion that the verdict be set aside, and the judge was dismissing the jurors, Gillette bent over a nearby table and, picking up a paper, he read it carefully. "The foreman, the paper carefully and placed it in his pocket. Immediately afterwards he was taken from the court to the jail.

The case of the state against Chester E. Gillette, charged with the murder of George Brown, was given to the jury tonight, after Judge Vandeventer and fifteen minutes in his charge. He dealt with the points of law.

point and not to return until the judge's charge had been taken up by District Attorney Ward, who described the friendship of Gillette and Grace Brown and their companionship up to the time they got into the "Big Moose Lake." For the first time during the trial the youthful prisoner broke down as he was mercilessly scored by the prosecution.

For some time he stared dumbly at the district attorney, and then he turned to the judge and said: "I don't know what the hell you are talking about."

"I am talking about the fact that you are a witness. What I say to you does not matter. Your verdict; it is simply to call your attention to the fact that it is not an issue in the case and it is not to be considered."

"There are two questions to be decided. One is, did the district attorney commit a Big Moose lake on the 11th day of July, 1908? It is your judgment that the

The jury went to its room and Gillette was led back to his cell, he asked the deputy: "Are the odds all locked, Sheriff?"

He apparently feared violence, but there was no chance of such incident. The crowd about the court. After supper the courtroom filled quickly and many remained, hoping to witness the return of the jury.

The Judge's Charge.
Judge Devendorf in his charge said:

"To all concerned this is a case of great importance. To the defendant it is of vast importance, because his life or liberty hangs on the issue. To the people that you ought not, any of you, place your minds in a position which will not yield if, after careful deliberation, you find that you are wrong."

TWO MEN HURT

was wrecked about 5 o'clock last evening at Red Pine, a few miles west of Newcastle. The engine and three or four boxes were derailed and ditched, the engine toppling over and joining Duke Dun McQuarrie of Newcastle, and Al Force, of Moncton. The run off, it is stated, was caused by an open switch.

When the engine went into the ditch the steam gauge burst and Driver McQuarrie had one of his legs badly hurt. The other men, Forbes escaped with a slight shaking up. Con. W. W. Irving,
