

cause in favour of which his voice was not heard, and no platform of an evangelical kind on which he was not heartily welcome. As president of the Evangelical Alliance, and of the Bible Society in Montreal, he did more than can be told to extend the blessings of Christianity."

"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord, from henceforth: Yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labours; and their works do follow them."—REV. xiv. 13.