"On the remainder of the British front there is nothing to report." SITUATION IN REVIEW

Desperate fighting continues uninterruptedly on a 25-mile front between Givenchy and Wytschaete with the Germans suffering severe losses for small gains against the strong British defence. In two days of heavy engagements the enemy has not yet gained any point of strategical importance and the British still dominate the battlefield cles as to their trend. He will be heard again to-day, which is expected from the heights of Messines Ridge, on the north, and Givenchy on the south.

Below Armentieres, where the attack was launched Tuesday, the Germans have made little additional progress, although they have crossed to the left bank of the Lys, between Estaires and Bac St. Maur. Repeated attacks against British line between Estaires and Givenchy toward Bethume have been checked sanguinarily. Berlin claims the capture of 6,000 men and 100 guns on this sector Tuesday.

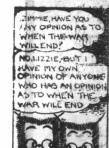

North of Armentieres, the Germans, after driving the British from their first defences in the lowland, have been unable to gain the crest of Messines Ridge, despite many furious assaults.

Emperor William and the German military leaders, it is reported in despatches from the battle front, plan the wiping out of the British army. It is believed that the Germans now are seriously, attempting by swinging their attacks to the north, to annihilate British resistance. In consequence further assaults along the British front and much desperate fighting is Infantry fighting on the Pi-cardy battle front has quieted down momentarily. The French and German artillery fire has been violent north of Montdidier and along the Oise Canal, northwest of Soissons. There have been artillery exchanges on the British front which has not as yet been linked up with the northern battle-There has been no infantry activity on the Loos-Lens-Vimy sectors, the connecting link, although the German antillery fire is increasing.

American gunners and infantry holding a certain sector on the front in France drove back in disorder on Wednesday a strong German attack. The enemy effort was the heaviest yet made against an American position, but the Germans did

With the American Army in France, April 10. - (By the Associated Press) -- The Germans attempted an attack against the American positions northwest of Toul just before sunrise this morning and were completely repulsed. Two German prisoners said the enemy planned the attack with a force of 800 men, but that it was stopped in its full strength by the effective fire of the American artillery. For seventy-two hours before their effort, the Germans had been firing an increasing number of shells at the American positions and making extensive use of gas shells. At ucon yesterday the enemy began a harassing fire against one up throughout the night, dropping hundreds of shells of all calibres on both front and rear positions. The American artil-lety replied vigorously, the men in some batteries working with their gas masks on for two or three hours at a stretch. About five o'clock this morning, German infantrymen in the front line, signalled their batteries for a barrage and started for the American front line. The American gunners laid a counter barrage almost imme-

The attack was made in a heavy morning mist. As soon as the American barrage lifted, American infantrymen climbed from their shelters and attacked the encmy with heavy machine gun and rifle fire, driving back those who had not been dispersed by the artillery fire. The attack was followed by a violent artillery duel which was still going on at a late hour to-

There Never Was a Time When Food Was More Needed and the Allies Depend to a Vital Extent Upon the Dominion

The following message addressed to the Organization of Reources Committee has just been received:

London, April 11, 1918. "In these stern days it is inspiring to learn that Ontario is tackling the food problem with redoubled energy. The terrific pressure on our military front makes it all the more imperative that those behind the lines shall strain every nerve to defeat the enemy's avowed object of destroying the British Empire, Germany hoped first to starve the old country by the submarine campaign and then to smash her land forces. She has failed to starve us and she will fail to smash us, but we cannot achieve victory without food. There never was a time when it was more needed without food. There never was a time when it was more needed. The Canadian farmer and Canadian farmhand now have the opportunity to make an effective reply to the enemy's present on-slaught by bending their undivided energies to the increased pro-duction of those food supplies for which we depend to such vital extent upon your great Domin ion."
