

TAKE MY CURE, WHEN CURED YOU PAY ME

The fear that you could not be cured may have deterred you from taking honest treatment, or you may have been one of the unfortunate, who have been treated in vain by inexperienced physicians, free treatments, free trial samples, patent medicines, electric belts and other similar devices. Such treatments cannot and will never cure you, nor will these malpractices cure themselves. When I offer you a cure, and am willing to risk my professional reputation in curing you, and have such faith and confidence in my continued success in treating these diseases that not a dollar need be paid until you are cured, a fair proposition cannot be offered to the sick and afflicted. This should convince the skeptical that I mean what I say, and do exactly as I advertise, as I am positive of curing you in the shortest possible time, without injurious after-effects. My charges will be as low as possible, for conscientious, skillful and successful services, and my guarantee is simple and true. Not a dollar need be paid until cured. I have 14 diplomas and certificates from the various colleges and state boards of medical examiners, which should be sufficient guarantee of my standing and abilities. It makes no difference who has failed to cure you, it will be to your advantage to write to me for my opinion of your case, which I give you free of charge. I want to hear from patients who have been unable to get cured, as I guarantee a positive cure for all chronic, nervous, blood and skin diseases, which I accept for treatment. I not only cure the disease itself, but likewise all the complications, such as rheumatism, kidney and bladder troubles, biliousness, physical and nervous debility, lack of energy, stomach troubles, etc. All medicines for such ailments are prepared in my own laboratory, to meet the requirements of each individual case. All medicines for Canadian patients sent from Windsor, Ont., duty and transportation prepaid. I will send a booklet on the subject which contains the 14 diplomas and certificates, entirely free. Address simply, Dr. S. Goldberg, 210 Woodward Ave., Suite 317, Detroit, Mich.

CITY LIFE AND PHYSIQUE.

Theory That It Tends to Physical Deterioration Pooh-poohed by Ford Madox Hueffer.

It is a commonly accepted theory that town life, especially the life of the vast modern city, tends to physical deterioration. In his new book, "The Soul of London," Mr. Ford Madox Hueffer pooh-poohs the theory in the following original bit of argument:—

There remains the question of physical deterioration. "That Neurasthenia," said a modern doctor, "is mainly looking for half-negro, but young and alert, with beady eyes behind large spectacles, 'It's as old as the hills. Jezebel was Neurasthenic; so was Lot's wife when she looked back; so was the writer of the book of Job; so was Edward II.; so was Shakespeare, or whoever wrote 'Timon of Athens.' If we've deteriorated physically, when did the deterioration begin?" He paced up and down his consulting room smiling, and tapped his patient on the shoulder with a stethoscope. "We've improved," we're improving. Why, my dear sir, what was old age in the mediaeval centuries? A man—a king—was worn out, crippled with rheumatism, too heavy-bellied to mount his horse before he was forty-five. As to the common people, they died like flies; they had no stamina, no power of resisting disease. Town life isn't unhealthy; the art of sanitation did not begin until the towns grew large. Did you ever see an old farmhouse? Where did they build them? Always in hollows, in muddy, all-evil bottoms, to be near water—your understand, near water—and they drained into that water, and they were plague houses all of them.

"Did you ever have to do with a sick farm laborer? Those fellows! Why, they fold their hands and die for a touch of liver. Their life doesn't hold them because it contains no interest. Half their healthy hours are spent in moaning and brooding; they all suffer from dyspepsia, because of their abominable diet of cheese and tea. Why, I'd rather attend fifty London street rats, with half a lung apiece, than one great hulking farm laborer. But those are the fellows, after all, the London scaramouches, for getting over an illness.

"Don't you see, my dear sir, your problem is to breed disease-resisting men, and you won't do it from men who hope about fields and hedges. No modern life is a question of towns. Purify them if you can; get rid of smoke and foul air if you can. But breed a race fitted to inhabit them in any case."

That, indeed, is the problem which is set before London—the apothecary of modern life. For there is no ignoring the fact that mankind elects to live in crowds. If London can evolve a town type, London will be justified of its existence.

Barrie the Shy.

Let a pretty girl look steadfastly at J. M. Barrie for five minutes, and if she can catch his eye he will exhibit about the same symptoms of distress as a man who has swallowed a fish bone. Constant activity and contact with the world seem to be powerless to cure him of the shyness which has developed the moment he talks with a good-looking woman. Only the other day a young actress, who had been nearing in one of his plays and directly under his eye pleased him so much that he asked her to luncheon. She couldn't go that day, and the next day he was embarrassed when he picked up courage and asked her again the next day. Another engagement interfered, but on the third trial the girl accepted and was pleased to think that she was to have an hour of delightful intellectual entertainment. Barrie ordered the luncheon, and as the dishes were brought on he looked up and looked into the girl's eyes. From that moment he was absolutely speechless. He did not utter one word during the meal, and after it was over he was just able to say, "Shall we return to the theatre?" and offer his arm. Then, as a sort of relief, he hunted up the stage manager and talked to him at the rate of 90 words a minute for half an hour.

The Gentle Carcase.

When an animal is killed on an English railway the nearest station master is required to send to the headquarters of the company a report of the accident. This is made out on a printed form, with blank spaces to be filled in by the station master. On one occasion a newly-installed station master found himself confronted with the necessity of making out his first report. Although it was a new experience, he discovered the cow and the circumstances accurately, and all went well down to the last line, when he discovered that he had neglected to question the owner of the deceased cow concerning one important point. It seemed safe, however, for him to rely upon his own judgment, and he did it. The line was headed, "Disposition of Carcase." Underneath he wrote, with all earnestness, "Kind and gentle."

Must Wear Red Ties.

The great majority of the employees of the Great Northern Railway and the London and Southwestern Railway are compelled to wear red neckties whilst on duty, the object being that they might be used as danger signals in case of accidents. Red neckties do not suit all complexions, and there are not a few fastidious porters, shatters, and guards, who hold strong feelings that their employers should go so far as to select their neckwear. Another railway company introduced an order some little time ago, enforcing all station masters on their route to wear silk hats, and those officials who had borne the small state line on the line had to suffer much good-humored chaff at the outset.

Children's "Angel" in Ireland.

Lady Donoughmore, formerly Miss Grace, of New York, is known as "the children's angel" in Ireland. She is giving much of her time and money to teach the impoverished children in the West of Ireland the beauties of nature. Lady Donoughmore has had a census of the poor children taken by the poor law guardians, and through them she has been able to secure the services of well disposed women, who take the waifs to comfortable farm houses for a few days at a time. She maintains that the monotonous lives which these children are forced to lead, with limited facilities for recreation, are bound to have unfavorable influences in the future.

The Happy Home.

Happiness must be founded on health. Where there is ill-health there will surely be unhappiness. The happiness of many a home has received its downfall at the table, spread with rich and dainty foods. The first symptoms of disease of the stomach are ignored as being disagreeable but not dangerous. Presently dyspepsia or some other form of disease fastens on the stomach.

At any stage Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will cure diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. But the cure is quicker if the "Discovery" is used in the earlier stages of disease. If you have any symptoms of diseased stomach use "Golden Medical Discovery" and be cured.

"I feel that I would be doing an injustice to you if I did not send you a statement of my case," writes Mrs. David W. Guice, of Hamburg, Franklin Co., Miss. "I had liver complaint and indigestion. Everything that I ate disagreed with me. I suffered all the time with swimming in my head; heart beat too fast; my feet and hands were cold all the time. Did not sleep well at all. Was able to get about very little. I commenced to use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and 'Pleasant Pellets' in May, 1899, and by December I could begin to do about very well. Have been doing my work ever since. Feel better than I have for several years."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Clever Little Stories.

A householder to whom an Irish youth had applied for work asked him if he knew anything about horses. "And shure, your honor, was I not born in a stable?" came the reply. "Can you do carpenter's work?" "Could Noah build a ship, your honor?" "Well, can you make a Venetian blind?" "It's a treat, sor, to see me at the job." "How would you do it, then?" "Why, I'd just poke my finger in his eyes, sor."

In a London bookshop a woman wanted a copy of Browning's works. "I haven't got it, madam," replied the bookseller; "I make it a rule never to keep any books I can't understand, and I can't make head nor tail of Mr. Browning." Determined to buy a book, anyway, the customer asked, "Have you Frazer's then?" "Yes, madam," quoth the bookseller, "I've prayed, but that doesn't help me."

A quack doctor whose treatment had evidently led to the death of his patient was examined sternly by the coroner. "What did you give the poor carpenter's work?" "Could Noah build a ship, your honor?" "Well, can you make a Venetian blind?" "It's a treat, sor, to see me at the job." "How would you do it, then?" "Why, I'd just poke my finger in his eyes, sor."

Romans and Railways.

The ancient Romans made the standard gauge of England's present railways. The width of the wheel base of the most up-to-date dining car is what it is because it was originally that of the chariots which rolled along the Roman roads in Britain.

A recent speaker upon the subject at Newcastle has put the matter beyond theory. He said that, many years ago, he had known an old gentleman who, in his youth, had been associated with Stephenson. This old gentleman had told him that he had asked the great engineer why he had adopted the still existing gauge, and Stephenson had explained that he found it was the width between the ruts in the roads along the Roman wall, and that he thought that if a world power like Rome had found that gauge the most effective, he could not do better than adopt it also.

PSYCHICAL RESEARCH.

British and French Scientists Discuss Wonderful Cases of Automatic Writing—Remarkable Phenomenon.

Automatic writing was the subject which Prof. Richet came all the way from Paris to discuss before the Society of Psychical Research, at the London Standard. Prof. Richet is the president of the society, but, as he was reading the paper, the chair was taken by Sir Oliver Lodge. The professor, addressing his audience in French, described in detail a remarkable phenomenon which came under his personal observation.

Mme. X, a friend of Prof. Richet, knows no Greek, yet on various occasions she has written, while in a trance, Greek sentences with a definite meaning. Once she sent him by mail three pieces of Greek which he was finally able to trace to an exceedingly rare dictionary of French and Greek, of which Mme. X had no knowledge whatsoever. On another occasion, when he went to call upon her towards evening, when the rays of the setting sun were deepening the shadows in the room, she wrote a sentence in Greek, the words "at sunrise and sunset the shadows lengthen." She wrote in a current hand, but she made mistakes in placing the accents, and occasionally made such slips as could only be made by a person having no knowledge of the language. For example, she wrote the letter "q," with an accent over it—a very natural mistake for a copyist, who is completely ignorant of the language he is writing, and is simply copying by eye, but one which, as it renders a word quite unpronounceable, could not be made even through carelessness, by anyone knowing the language.

These, then, are the facts: Prof. Richet, in clearing the ground for discussion, took it as axiomatic that Mme. X acted throughout in good faith. He could not bring proofs of this, but he could rough for her good faith as he could for his own. The lady certainly did not know Greek. "You cannot conceal from all your friends and relatives your knowledge of a language like Greek, and in any case, we have her word for it that she did not know the language. Moreover, she had never seen a book from which she quoted three passages."

How could such a phenomenon be accounted for? It could not be an effort of memory, for Mme. X had never to her knowledge seen the book from which she quoted. Equally, it could not be a subconscious memory of a book she had seen and forgotten, for that would be to explain a strange phenomenon by another phenomenon equally strange and inexplicable. Prof. Richet suggested comparisons with mathematical and musical prodigies, but found the unconvincing. A wonderful child can remember the whole of a musical score which is contained in a large book, but then he is dealing with a language he knows thoroughly. So it is with the lightning calculator; he is thoroughly versed in figures. Here, on the contrary, is a lady who writes on Greek, more or less correctly, without any knowledge whatsoever of Greek. Prof. Richet then suggested spiritualistic explanations, but found them unsatisfactory. In the end he had to admit that there was an explanation in the discussion which followed.

Sir Oliver Lodge summed up the position as set before the audience in the president's address, but he could not quite accept without reserve the question of the genuineness of Mme. X. The society had perfect faith in Prof. Richet and Prof. Richet had perfect faith in Mme. X; but the conclusion did not follow that the society must have perfect faith in Mme. X. Then the comparison of the infant prodigy could not be altogether rejected. There was the wonderful Spanish child, at two years old, who had appeared before the King of Spain and before Prof. Richet himself. The mother of this child once played over an intricate piece of music, and, on going afterwards into the next room, she heard some one repeating the performance. Returning, she saw to her consternation her infant child playing the music quite correctly. Obviously, the child could have no previous knowledge at all. Here, then, was a sort of parallel.

Other speakers produced strange cases of automatic writing, but none were of quite such a definite and extraordinary nature as the case presented by Prof. Richet. Mrs. Verral, for example, told the society how her daughter and a friend of hers produced by table rapping a Greek story which the Pausanias, but afterwards gave the correct chapter and verse in Herodotus. The story was not quoted word for word, but the substance was correctly given. In this case, however, both the mediums were Greek, and probably had chapters of Herodotus stored away in the subliminal consciousness. Then came Mr. Huxley with a story told by Huxley 30 years ago, of a soldier wounded in a battle who wrote in unknown languages from dictation while in a state of trance; and lastly Prof. Barrett produced an authentic story of a lady who was hypnotized by a clairvoyant. On one occasion the clairvoyant asked her to write down the contents of a letter which had just arrived by post and was unopened. She wrote most of the contents correctly.

In the discussion it was generally taken for granted that Mme. X had exhibited only the powers of a copyist. As Prof. Richet explained, she had made mistakes in spelling which could only be made by a person completely ignorant of the language. And so Mrs. Verral believed that Mme. X must have been under some sort of hypnotic control, but she has never through her eyes only been influenced by her intelligence. But there were other instances, overlooked in the discussion, where Mme. X had written sentences with a meaning applicable to the immediate circumstances; for example, when she wrote her sentences about the shadows, in such a case she must have been controlled through her intelligence. In fact, the discussion did not carry the matter any further than the president brought it in his address.

A lady writes Greek who does not know Greek, and quotes sentences from a Greek book which she has never seen. How can it be explained? As the famous master of Balliol once said, "There are questions which can never be answered, but are still worth the asking," and this appears to be one of them.
