THE THOUGHTS OF THEOBALD.

RELIGION AND POLITICS.

It has always puzzled me to find out if any great barriers separate men after all in their various occupations. Is there a common base for action? Is there one strong purpose in it all, one objective to which all occupations move, and one motive influencing every action? It seems to me that it should be so, and that underlying every action there should be the one purpose, the one fixed design of "doing good."

The merchant sells his dry goods to clothe his customers; his groceries to feed his customers; the lawyer and the judge seek justice; the carpenter builds houses to protect families; the politician makes laws for the good of the country; and the clergyman preaches to all, to do them good and lead them to right actions in their business and in their work. And the wages, though a due and necessary adjunct, is no more the object of the merchant's business than is his salary the object of the clergyman's life. To go to the very root of things, everyone has a work to do irrespective of salary. If one's business is not service to one's fellows and undertaken in that spirit, then it is worthless, and worse than worthless as an aid to proper citizenship. Thus I fail to see where true politics ends and religion begins. Politics properly should deal with men, their merely material welfare—not that it has anything to do with any one creed of religion—but the basic law of religion—"pure and undefiled" has as much to do with politics as it has to do with churches, and not till we recognize this fact at its true value will politics appear any better than we usually think of it. Burke, philosopher and statesman, says "a state is a partnership in things subservient only to the gross animal existence—a temporary and perishable nature, but a partnership in all science, a partnership in all art, a partnership in every virtue, and in all perfection."

It is plain therefore that we should make a religion of all we do, the religion of work, the doing of work the best we know how, and with the best service of our fellows at heart. Of course this is idealistic, if you like, but when we speak of politics, or anything as a matter of fact, and do not view it in its true meaning and purpose, but also view it in the distorted meaning that man has given it by his ill-usage of the true sense of the term, we help to sanction that which has become a bad habit. A great deal of rottenness in the world is simply there because most people have been satisfied with things "as they are," instead of trying to shape things "as they ought to be." The man that does try this has a hard road to travel, a weary road and oftentimes a breaking road, a martyr's road. Principles have become plattitudes, and in these days we need a practical Christianity that will call (to use a vulgarism) "a spade, a spade."

PROHIBITION.

Now that Prohibition has carried, it does not mean less work for those who advocated it. The great work is in front of us, and there is work requiring a good deal of energy. We must not allow any latitude of shibboleths and the illicit bringing in of liquor. We must not rest easy and "wink" at violations of the act. We must prevent unlawful trading at the outset and see that it does not develop into "custom" or "habit."

To a great extent we have to depend on the police for the rigid enforcement against shibboleths and the like, and it is for the Inspector General and his force to see that we do not degenerate to the position of Sydney where hotels run regular bars and are periodically "raided" by a friendly police.

Public opinion must not be content, however, to leave matters to the police, but should be actively interested in the proper carrying out of the law. It is up to us to show that the objections of the Anti-Prohibitionists had no firm foundation—not that infractions of the law will not take place, but to see that they do not take place to the extent that our opponents prophesied.

On the other hand, it might be as well in taking away the saloon, to provide something in the way of a substitute. Several nice rooms where all classes could come and obtain a cup of coffee and a bun at anytime and be at liberty to stay and chat if they felt like it, might be very welcome indeed. There can be no doubt that the saloon has been a nice comfortable place on a cold day for many, and there are not many other places on Water Street where the same "free and easy" half hour can be spent.

THE SPEED OF A MOTOR CAR.

The other day a young chap about six years or more was run over by a motor car, near Shea & Co's, Water Street. He was on the tail of a long cart going up town and got off the road to the side walk, not seeing the motor car, which was coming east. It was on him too swiftly for him to do anything, and but for the extraordinary dexterity of the owner of the car he would now be dead. The driver of the car swerved it on the instant and saved the boy, except from injuries which it is thought are not serious. The owner sent a doctor and did all that could be done for the boy. It is useless to say that in this case the boy was careless, as the accident would have happened if it had been a man who attempted to cross the street, in fact it would have been much worse, because the boy was picked up under the engine of the car and had he been any bigger it would have crushed him. But without discussing probabilities, there is no doubt in my mind that some regulation should be made concerning the speed of motor cars, especially when they are driven on Water Street or on any busy street. No car should be driven so fast that it cannot be brought to a standstill within its own length or less. Safety first should be the watch word. A man's desire for speed should not be indulged in at the risk of accident to another. Children cannot be kept indoors all the time and the street belongs to the walker as well as to the vehicle. Fast driving on Water Street should be stopped and stopped before a serious accident occurs.

Girls! Have Wavy, Thick, Glossy Hair Free From Dandruff

Save your hair! Double its beauty in a few moments—try this!

If you care for heavy hair, that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff; you cannot have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots fash, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast.

If your hair has been neglected and is thin, faded, dry, scraggy or too oily, get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine at any drug store or toilet counter; apply a little as directed and ten minutes after you will say this was the best investment you ever made.

GORITZ BURNING AFTER HURRICANE OF SHELLS.

Vienna, via Berlin, Amsterdam and London, Nov. 20.—Goritz is burning in many places to-day. The Italians have thrown 3,000 shells into the town. Many of the inhabitants have been killed. The property damaged is enormous.

From a military standpoint however the Italians have accomplished little. The Austrians firmly hold all their original positions and are repulsing attack after attack. The bridgehead in particular has been under an incessant bombardment for many days. Guns of every calibre have been directed against it.

The increased intensity of the Goritz attack has been incident to a renewed Italian assault all along the Isonzo line. Everywhere the Austrians are holding their own.

Flesh pink, used discreetly and in small touches, has an excellent effect with dark blue.

An immense crowd gathered outside the municipal building and gave the French Minister the most enthusiastic greeting he has yet received during his visit for the purpose of bringing about an understanding with Greece concerning her attitude toward the Entente Allies.
