When You are Grown Up.

By RUTH CAMERON.

"When I'm grown up," I heard a little girl say, the other day, "I'll go to every circus that comes to town." And I thought to myself, "I wonder if you will, or if you will forget to go at all." Not that grown people don't go to circuses. I know one middle-aged couple who have never missed a circus yet. But it is so dangerous prophesying, at five or ten or even twenty, what one will do when one has entered into that magic state of being where no one can forbid one to do just what one wants (I am rather glad it isn't until one enters therein that one realizes that sad truth that circumstances can forbid just as effectually as people, and that freedom of action and responsibility for action are twins.)

A Bakeshop Opened the Flood Gates.

I was visiting this spring, in the town in which my Alma Mater is located. One day, as I was passing down a side street, I suddenly found my mind flooded with memories. For a minute, I did not know what had unlocked those flood gates; and then I consciously saw what my subconscious mind must have already seen—a little bakeshop. In my undergraduate days, when we finished our work in the afternoon, a certain two of us used to walk to that bakeshop and buy ourselves mocha cake or eclairs. The eclairs were two for five and the mocha cakes five each. I can remember how hard it used to be to choose between them and how swiftly they disappeared and how hungry we would still be when the last crumb of our nickel's worth had vanished! Of course, we could have spent another nickel without going bankrupt, but we didn't feel quite justified in doing it. And I used to take it out in promising myself that when I got to earning money, I would eat half a dozen mocha cakes a day regularly.

I Haven't Eaten Six Mocha Cakes A Day Yet.

It is some years since I earned my own money, but I haven't eaten half a dozen mocha cakes a day yet. I want

The Man Who Did Not Forget.

Occasionally to be sure, one does not forget. I know a highly successful author who never subscribes to a magazine but always buys them off the newsstands, because when he was in college, he used to hang over the stands so eagerly and never could afford to buy all the magazines he wanted.

I rather suspect there is a touch of that sympathy imagination which has made him so successful a writer in that tender memory of the wistfulness of the boy-that-was.

TRIMNESS AT BREAKFAST.

Are you an early morning groucher? Or do you open your sleepy eyes to the sun, and smile a good natured welcome? It seems as if a smiling woman in a trim morning gown sitting behind the coffee urn, would be enough to start the whole family on their busy way with a feeling that all the world was bright.

A successful business man once remarked that he owed his success to the trimness of his wife's breakfast caps. Her crispy dainty freshness sped him on his daily way through life with a heart full of cheer and courage.

A soiled negligee, no matter how beautiful embroidered, is as depressing in the early morning hours as the slow drizzle of the rain.

If your hair is of that stubborn brand and requires the nightly visit of the kid curlers, don one of the fascinating little boudoir caps which are so generous in their desire to cover all unsightly tangles.

If you are a negligee woman, be careful in the selection of the colors and the daintiness of your lounging robes. The early dawn is not as lenient as the soft rays of the evening lights. Harsh colors and bad neck lines will add years to your appearance. Start the day right for your family as well as for yourself.

STILL LIVING.

We've lived to see the greatest scrap that ever jarred the mundane map. Four years ago, in padded ways, we spent our money hunting for a y. a. 8 o m e prophets stood around and said that balmy peace would soon be dead. They pawed the air, it made them weep that other nations seemed asleep, while at their forges busy Huns were making swords and bombs. "Go to, false prophets!" we exclaimed; "you really ought to be ashamed to rend your beards and say that peace, the precious boon, will ever cease. We're civilized, we have advanced; the world is now so circumstanced that every nation only asks a chance to do its useful task, to bask its bay and put up ice, and see it always has the price. No government is so insane that it has conquest on the brain, so chase yourselves, oh dippy seers, and let us yoke our blinded steers." Four years ago we talked like this! Who said that ignorance is bliss? Our ignorance has cost a lot since we were handing out such rot. We've lived to see the planet torn, we've lived to see the nations mourn. And we shall live to see the Hun, who wished a go-place in the sun, into the outer darkness cast and groping in a horror vast.

Your Boys and Girl.

Every mother likes to see her small daughter look dainty at all times. But girls as well as boys, get their clothes soiled at play, and while boys can be put into overalls or rompers, according to their age, few mothers will like to see their little daughters dressed in these comely garments. But there will be no objection to miniature bungalow aprons on the order of these worn by the mothers, especially if a pretty color is chosen. These aprons are quite easy to make at home.

The best kind of materials to use are the soft cotton poplins, ratine cotton and silk mixtures in the cheaper grades, and the crepe goods. In fact any fabric that does not demand too much in the way of laundering will answer, provided, of course, it is fairly substantial. To make the apron measure off twice the length from the shoulder of the wearer to the edge of her dress, allowing for a deep hem, fold this and cut the top in kimono fashion, taken out under the arms to below the waist line, then cut straight across to the selvedge edge. This fulness is plaited or gathered and set on after cutting slits in the body of the apron to fit.

A strip of the material holds the fulness down. If preferred, the skirt part may be gored all the way down, but the child does not get the freedom the fulness allows. The neck is cut square and edged with a white band, so are the kimono sleeves. The closing is in the back from neck to waist lines or for convenience in laundering it may be closed all the way down.

Fads and Fashions.

Linen dresses have an unusually strong resemblance to suits.

Satin promises to be the greatest favorite among silks for fall.

Indian reds include light and burnt orange and amber brown.

The new leopard skin coats are to be trimmed with Hudson seal.

Trim the little girl's white lawn frock with polka-dotted material.

A great deal of valencienne lace is used on dainty figured cottons.

Red Blocked crash toweling is used for exceedingly novel dresses.

Trench hats of soft silk trimmed with narrow fringe are now in style.

Tams are worn this summer, they are made of linen with woolen tassels.

The girdle makes the costume and especially when trimmed with wooden beads.

We are promised two coat suits—tea for fall—one the severely straight and military, the other inclining to the circular.

SOUL AND SKILL.
The deed men cheer is born of skill. The mob is dazzled by success; It leaves one god, and always will, For one who wears a finer dress— To-day it fawns, to-morrow frowns— Brief is the role the favorite plays; It raises high the man it crowns, Then seeks a stronger man to praise.

The multitude is swayed by skill; It cannot read the souls of men; It little knows the good and ill, Between the lines its victors pen. Its ear is not in tune with all The finer melodies of life; Its only passion is the brawl! And scramble of the fretful strife.

Who seeks the praises of the throng, Must miss the glories of the few; The little circle and its song, The joy of constant friends and true; The love of them who know him best And catch the tender words he speaks; For soul, not skill is what the thoughtless seeks.

But few may rightly know a man. Only the nearest feel his soul. And know the detail of the play By which he strives to reach his goal.

And he may never rise to fame And share the pomp and power of state Nor play with skill life's bitter game. And still be counted with the great.

For lasting worth is standing firm Against the lure of gold and fame; And living out life's little term By never stooping once to shame. It's being tender, brave and true, Unflinching through good or ill, Scorning one selfish deed to do To reap the brief rewards of skill.

Unless waves are more becoming to the face do not wave your hair, as straight hair is very fashionable.

Sailor hats are so practical and generally becoming that they hold first place in the military world.

Very chic is a foulard with white ground and black dots. It is combined with black satin and piped with the same.

A dainty blouse is made of lawn with a yellow stripe and the collar and cuffs are of yellow handkerchief linen.

NOTHING TO REPORT.

LONDON, To-day. The official statement issued by the War Office to-night reads: A raid attempted by the enemy this morning near Bucquoy, southwest of Arras, was driven off with loss to the enemy. Except some hostile artillery activity in the Hinges sector and at other points, there is nothing to report from the British front.

VON HERTLING HOLDS THE REINS

LONDON, To-day. Debate on the general political situation was opened in the Reichstag on Thursday by Imperial Chancellor Von Hertling, who discussed the retirement of Dr. Richard von Kuehlmann, the Foreign Secretary, the foreign policy of the Government and the economic problem which had arisen because of recent developments in the East, according to a German official wireless received here. The Imperial Chancellor said at the conclusion of a long speech, "The name of the man who is proposed as Dr. Von Kuehlmann's successor is well known to you. Admiral Von Hintze possesses a thorough knowledge of Russian affairs, which is a matter of great importance in the present situation, but it goes without saying that I will give my counter signature to the appointment of Admiral Von Hintze only on conditions that he follow my line of policy and not his own. However, as far as I am concerned, I have a sure guarantee for this in Admiral Von Hintze's promise. I will direct the line of foreign policy and the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs has merely to follow out my policy. The proposed Secretary of Foreign Affairs is absolutely clear on this point, and the course with which the great majority of the Reichstag declared itself in agreement, in November last year, will still be followed."

NEW GOVERNMENT FOR ALLIES.

LONDON, To-day. The Allied Powers will have the full support of the new Siberian Government, according to assurances sent by Lt-General Horvath, who has been proclaimed provisional ruler of Siberia, to the correspondent of the Daily Mail at Harbin. From his headquarters at Pograditza in East-Siberia, Lt-General Horvath has telegraphed the Mail correspondent as follows: Paragraph five of the programme of my Government which established the renewal of all treaties with the Allied Powers is at once confirmation of the firm intention on our part to act in complete accord with our brave Allies and return to the Russian ranks those who are fighting with the enemy.

ITALIANS SUBMIT FIGURES.

PARIS, To-day. Italian military authorities, in answer to a new Austrian denial from Budapest relative to Italian claims of prisoners and guns captured in the Piave fighting, assert their figures are fully substantiated by the fact that they have submitted a full list of the names to the Red Cross at Geneva, under the rules of war, according to a Havas despatch from Rome. The report adds that the number of guns captured was greater instead of less than was claimed on July 6th, having been augmented by twenty guns taken
