He Deceiveth the People.

All the promises made by Premier Squires during his whirlwind campaign of 1919, were made but with one purpose and that with intent to deceive the electorate and delude them into voting for him and his party. This having been accomplished and return to power assured, greater political deceptions were practiced, which have been continued for a period of nearly three years. And the longer the present administration is maintained in office, the longer will their course of deception and delusion be pursued. The people can now visualise for themselves all the disastrous consequences resultant from the day of the assumption of the Squires Government to power. Squires is the Prime Minister. He was elected as the one most fitting to fill that office by popular vote. He then, by virtue of that office, is primarily responsible to the people for all the failures, all the impositions of fish regulations, all the increases made in the tariff, and further for all the poverty and destitution, which, at the moment is rife in this mis-governed country. In a particular sense it is idle to attempt any endeavour to saddle the blame upon others. The political deception of the Prime Minister is of himself and the result is to himself. He cannot hope to shift the burden to the shoulders of his colleagues, though they too may be equally responsible. But the Prime Minister is the Prime Minister. For him to permit his authority to be usurped is an admission of incapability, and such a course by any one member of his executive should not be tolerated for one moment. Neither would it have been, had the Premier been the strong man of his own boastings. Yet he was content to have authority taken out of his hands without protest or without insisting on the prerogatives of his position. Therefore he deceived the people, and by his own inaction proved that he was not the giant that he claimed to be. All the blame then for the present destitute state of numbers of the people of this country can be laid at the political threshold of Sir Richard Anderson Squires, Knight Commander of the Most Distinguished Order of St. Michael and St. George, Prime Minister of Newfoundland, Colonial Secretary, Member of the House of Assembly for St. John's West and King's Counsel, who is now enjoying the benefits of another trip abroad at the expense of an almost impoverished country, revelling in the luxuries of transatlantic travel on huge and palatial liners, enjoying the service of expensive hotels, with menials obsequiously handling his hat, coat and cane and bowing him to a specially arranged table in the restaurant or grill room as may tickle his fancy, while the people of the district which gave him birth are suffering the pangs of starvation and are barely keeping body and soul together on a weekly dole of flour, molasses and tea given out on an order of the Relieving Officer, in one section of the district, that official being a very near relation of the Prime Minister himself. Paying for suites de luxe on ocean liners and metropolitan hotels at the rate of one hundred dollars a day by the Prime Minister of a Colony whose Public Charity Offices are under instructions to issue orders in favor of friendly political dealers for the three items already named and in the most meagre quantities, should not commend itself to a people nearly rendered desperate by prevailing conditions of life and living, and the wonder is that the Prime Minister and the other members of his executive, who are enjoying jaunts abroad at the public expense, while hunger invades the homes of those whom he ultimately hopes to again cajole and spell-bind, do not consider the absurdity of their positions, and be content to remain at home and make an effort to ameliorate the condition of the people whom they swore to serve, instead of chasing chimeras like the Labrador Boundary and Humber Proposition. Truly the words of the Psalmist may be applied to Premier Squires and his mercenary following: "They break in pieces thy people, and afflict thine heritage; they slay the widow and the stranger and murder the fatherless. How long O Lord, how long shall the wicked triumph?" The answer is in the possession of the people, and they alone.

At Rest.

MRS. IVOR B. MORGAN.

On Sunday afternoon, 8th inst., there was tenderly laid to rest in the C. of E. Cemetery all that was mortal of the late Mrs. Ivor B. Morgan (nee Bertha B. Godden). The passing of the deceased young lady from this to the unknown world was particularly sad, for until recently she enjoyed excellent health. Her immediate friends only realised the seriousness of her illness, and consequently the news of her death came as a great surprise and shock to her many acquaintances in St. John's. Her death bed was consoled by the ministrations of the Rev. J. Brinton and Canon Jeeves and the family physician, Dr. T. M. Mitchell, who was untiring in his efforts and was at her bedside early and late. Her complications were of such a nature, however, that medical attendance was of no avail and on Friday night at 9.15 she fell to sleep. She bore her pain and suffering without murmur, trusting always on her Redeemer. For some time previous to her departure she had been in a comatose state, but on the day previous to death she suddenly, rallied, became conscious, and sang that beautiful hymn, "Lead Kindly Light" with clear voice and feeling assisted by her loving sister Emmie. A daughter of our well-known citizen William Godden, she leaves beside her husband, and two dear little ones, her parents, four brothers, Thomas, Clarence, Harry of this city and Walter in Boston, and one sister Emmie also at home who was ever at her bedside, as well as a very large circle of friends to mourn their loss. Mrs. Morgan was ever of a buoyant disposition and always ready with sympathetic heart to hold out a helping hand to those in need. Her funeral was largely attended, the beautiful casket being covered with the choicest of flowers, while the service at the chapel and grave by Canon Jeeves was most impressive. "She is not dead but asleep."

C. L. B. Cadets.

The C.L.B. Cadets had their last regular weekly parade before Camp last night. There was a fair attendance of all ranks. The Battalion went for a route march, headed by the Bugle Band and were dismissed upon returning to the Armoury. Over 80 names are now down on the camp list and many more will be added before the next week. There will also be representatives of most of the Outpost detachments at camp. Those lads going to camp will parade with their kit bags at the Armoury on Tuesday night next. On Thursday morning the Battalion will parade to Topsail, headed by Lieut.-Col. Goodridge. Several officers will also march out with the camp detachment.

CONTINUATION OF 1897 MATCHES.

29th League Match, Played August 18th, 1897—St. Andrew's vs. C.E.I.
Result: Saints 3 Goals; C.E.I. 2.

This match which had been looked forward to with considerable interest by ardent supporters of both teams was played off last evening before a large and enthusiastic gathering of spectators, amongst whom was the usual proportion of the fair sex. It ended with the result as given above, in a win for the Blues by 3 goals to 2. On lining up, the Institute, having won the toss, and deciding to play down grade with ground and wind in their favor. It was observed that some alterations were necessary in the personnel of both teams; and the following are the players who took part in the memorable contest: St. Andrew's—Goal, Scapellato; Backs, Herb Rogers and A. McKinley; half backs, S. Rogers, R. Fowles and H. Jardine; forwards, J. MacFarlane, A. Munn, P. Mars, W. Mogro, and G. Walker. Church Institute—Goal, A. Arnott; backs, F. Pilot and A. Hayward; half backs, B. Downton, W. Pearce and Tom Godden; forwards, H. Reid, R. Goodridge, E. Hutchings, F. Hill and W. Reid. It will thus be seen that the Saints were minus their famous full back (Young) player, A. McKinley as "sub" and the Institute played Pearce instead of Dunfield as originally intended. The ball was set a-rolling at 6.25 and the Institute at once began to press the hitherto invincible. Play ranged from end to end, the C.E.I. undoubtedly having the best of the exchanges for some twenty minutes, when, from some pretty passes on the part of Walker, Munn and Mars, the latter player getting possession and with a lovely shot beating Arnott—1 for the Blues. This called forth cheers from Saints supporters, and beyond question it was the "goal" of the match.

On the ball being centred and kicked off the C. E. I. boys played up with determination, and some five minutes only had elapsed when, from a corner secured and beautifully placed by Tom Godden, Scapellato was beaten for the second time this season and the game stood 1-1 each. No further scoring occurred in this half and the teams crossed over with this result. On resuming, it was thought that the Saints, with the ground in their favour, would rush matters, but as the wind had died away, there was little, if any, advantage in that quarter and the Churchmen gave them all they could do in holding their own. The game was now pretty fast, and for some 15 minutes it was anybody's match, when, at this point, a nice bit of combined play amongst the Saints' forwards brought the ball well down and Monroe getting clear of "Pilot" in grand fashion beat Arnott, and the Blues were one up. Right from the kick off in the centre the Blue brigade carried the ball down again and within 2 minutes the same player (Monroe) had notched up No. 3 for his side—Saints 3, C. E. I. 1.

It now looked any odds on the Institute.

Court Rules Centuries Old.

ATLANTIC CITY, July 1.—Sherman L. Whipple, Boston attorney, who was selected by the Maryland Bar Association to deliver the address at their annual meeting to-day, gave an exhaustive treatise on "The Legal Privilege of Concealing the Truth." The underlying thought of Mr. Whipple's theme was that courts and attorneys are now working under rules and procedure which were organized several centuries ago, that they obstruct the ascertaining of the truth; that the judgments of the courts to be righteous, must have the truth disclosed; otherwise they must find their judgments either in ignorance of the truth or on error.

He further argued that these old rules which are utilized to conceal the truth, and tend to conceal it, are largely the reason for the popular complaint with regard to the court and the laws. "They mystify the layman, they do not appeal to his common sense, they make trials long, bickering, argumentative disputes about things that the ordinary layman of good sense thinks are of no consequence whatever," Mr. Whipple declared.

RULES BEING MODIFIED.

He contended that what the people want and properly demand is that they go away with all this subtle application of rules and have a procedure that appeals to business men, that appeals to common sense, that is open and frank and prompt, so that the judge is not employed all the time in discussing technicalities—especially a procedure which is adapted to bring out the truth on the principle that in the trial of a case there is nothing more important than that the truth should be disclosed.

NOTE OF THANKS.—Frank J. Dooley wishes to thank Doctors Koenig, Fraser and Wilson, Sister Olsen; Nurses Tulk, Taff, Scott, Peley, Pike and Shambler, the nursing staff in general and Miss Cohen, also all kind friends who visited him while at the Institution.

vincible Blues, but the Institute boys surprised everybody by their grand play, having all the best of it right to the close, getting the ball in close proximity to St. Andrew's Goal, and just being unfortunate in not scoring more than once. On one occasion there was a very narrow escape, and we believe it is still a matter of dispute, and when the C. E. I. claimed a goal and were only given a corner by the referee, play continued fast, being hotly contested till the call of time and just a few minutes from which the C. E. I. managed to secure their second goal after a scrimmage almost on the goal line, and it was almost too dark to distinguish who gave the final kick. The whistle sounded at last with the ball in mid-field.

Referee—Mr. F. Maynard.

Linesmen—Messrs. F. Donnelly (C.C.) and Watson (C.E.I.)

NOTES ON THE GAME.

It was certainly one of the best exhibitions of football seen here this season, and taken all round was good value for a draw. The C. E. I. had the best of the play all through and the Saints have to thank Scapellato for the result, as he made a wonderful defence, saving brilliantly on several occasions. E. Reid, particularly distinguished himself amongst the forwards making on or two brilliant runs up the left wing in the second half. All the C.E.I. forwards played well, being far ahead of the Saints in combination—Hutchings, who generally plays well, was unfortunately partially disabled, but played a plucky game to the close. The half backs were very reliable. Pearce, in the centre, giving evidence of becoming a good game half, whilst Downton and Godden played better than ever. The full backs, Pilot and Hayward (Capt.) were very sure especially the latter. Pilot, although giving a brilliant display, being inclined to roam too much over the field. Arnott, in goal seemed altogether out of sorts, and as we question very much as to whether he could have saved the shots that took effect he did not seem to over-exert himself in trying to stop the ball. For the winners all did their best, but the forwards were lacking in their famous combined action, showing lack of practice. Mars, in the centre, although still in a disabled condition played better than he has done this season, and seemed more like himself—Monroe played his usual brilliant game, but Munn and MacFarlane were not up to their usual form, Walker, for a fresh man, put in some good work, but McNeill was badly missed.

Stan Rogers at half back was in great form. Forbes also played a hard game, but Jardine seemed off color. In the back line was, as usual, cool and effective, and Sandy McKinley (sub) did his best in the absence of Young. The goalkeeper Scapellato had the most work to perform, and he rose to the occasion in grand style, his defence being almost perfect. The result of the match puts the cue question at rest, as no other team can now tie with the Saints who have the full points (14).
