WOUNDED IN BATTLE.

Military Hospitals Do Not Kill Them as in the Old Days.

Easily two-thirds of the pain and suffering endured by the wounded in war is not due to the wounds themselves or to the process of healing, but to suppuration and infection, and all this has been absolutely wiped out by antiseptic surgery.

What military hospitals were like in the pre-antiseptic days beggars description and can hardly even be imagined, let alone believed, at the present day.

Marlborough's surgeon in the famous Blenheim campaign declared that hospitals were the most important cause of death. And a famous French surgeon in 1741 declared that he had known vastly more men to die in the hospitals from lack of care than to lose their lives in combat, and that "hospitals are an unfavourable gift; the source of their horrors appears to be inexhaustible." Two patients in each bed were the rule and often three or even four. The hospitals were literally breeding places for disease. The deadly typhus fever used to be known as hospital fever, while typhoid, dysentery, erysipelas and gangrene fairly ran riot in them. Browning's characterization of the medieval hospital as "that good house that helps the poor to die" was painfully accurate.

Even as late as our war between the states, when the dreaded hospital gangrene once put in an appearance in a ward it was a sentence of death to be sent into that ward with an open wound, and in some instances from 40 to 60 per cent of all the inmates actually died. Up to and indeed during the Napoleonic wars anywhere from 20 to 60 per cent of the wounded died. Today any army medical service that loses more than 5 to 6 per cent of its wounded considers itself disgraced.—Woods Hutchinson in Saturday Evening Post.

BORN A FIGHTER.

A French General Who Loved His Soldiers and Proved It.

Many men have been good soldiers and brave commanders who, nevertheless, had no relish for fighting. General Oudinot, famous in the wars of Napoleon, was a warrior of another type. He seemed, at all events, to love war for his own sake. His fiery temper and his ideal of a soldier are well exemplified in the following:

In July, 1805, when Oudinot was thirty-eight years old, the emperor reviewed the grenadiers at their camp at Boulogne. The customary maneuvers were performed, and at the end General Oudinot, in command of the grenadiers, started to march at the head of the line before Napoleon. He put the spurs to his horse, and the steed balked. The struggle was brief, for the exasperated general drew his sword and gave the horse such a stab in the neck that in another moment the horse lay stretched upon the sand. That night the commander of the grenadiers dined with the emperor, and in the course of the meal Napoleon said:

"Is that the way you treat your horses?"

"Sire," said Oudinot, "when any one knows not how to obey that is my method."

The other story is even more grim. Some one spoke to Oudinot about the deep affection which a general must cherish for his devoted troops.

"Love them?" he exclaimed. "Do I love them? Ah, I think I do. I have had them all killed!"

There spoke the born fighter, who shirked no danger himself, and accounted it the most enviable lot of a soldier to die on the field.—Washington Star.

The Gorgons.

A Philadelphia schoolteacher has lately been instructing her pupils in Grecian mythology. It is the plan to have the children read the tales aloud and the next day recount them in their own language. One lad, to whom was given the assignment to render in his own language the story of the Gorgons, did so in these terms:

"The Gorgons were three sisters that lived in the islands of the Hesperides, somewhere in the Indian ocean. They had long snakes for hair, tusks for teeth and claws for nails, and they looked like women, only more horrible."—Lippincott's.

A Bismarck Retort.

After Emperor William I. had returned Bismarck's resignation with the word "Never" written boldly across it Bismarck spoke again of his falling strength to the emperor.

"I am much older than you," said William, "and I am still strong enough to ride."

"Yes, your majesty," said Bismarck, "the rider usually outlasts the horse."—Exchange.

Walrus Tusks.

The walrus never slips upon the glare of ice, for his tusks steady him. That is the chief use of his tusks—to help him to climb up the sheer and glassy sides of floes. He uses his head as a hammer—bang!—and, fixing his tusks in, he draws up his soft body—a strange sight to see.

Greek Painters.

There were several great painters in ancient Greece, and it is rather difficult to say which was the greatest. It is possible that the honor might go to Apelles, 332 B. C.—New York American.

Spring Blood Is Watery Blood

How to Get New Health and New Strength at this Season.

Spring ailments are not imaginary. Even the most robust find the winter months most trying to their health. Indoor confinement, often in over heated and nearly always badly ventilated rooms—in the home, the office, the shop and the school—takes the vitality of even the strongest. The blood becomes thin and watery and is clogged with impurities. Some people have headaches and a feeling of languor. Others are low spirited and nervous. Still others are troubled with disfiguring pimples and skin eruptions; while some get up in the morning feeling just as tired as when they went to bed. These are all spring symptoms that the blood is out of order and that a medicine is needed.

Many people take purgative medicines in the spring. This is a serious mistake. You cannot cure yourself with a medicine that gallops through your system and leaves you weaker still. What you need to give you health and strength in the spring is a tonic medicine that will enrich the blood and soothe the jagged nerves. And the one always reliable tonic and blood builder is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These Pills not only banish spring weakness but guard you against the more serious ailments that follow, such as anemia, nervous debility, indigestion, rheumatism and other diseases due to bad blood. In proof of this Mrs. D. E. Hughes, Hazenmore, Sask., says:

"About a year ago I was badly run down, my nerves were all unstrung, and I could not go up stairs without stopping to rest. As I was a long way from a doctor I decided to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and in the course of a few weeks I felt like a new person. As an all round restorative I can heartily recommend this medicine."

If you are ailing this spring you can't afford in your own interest to overlook so valuable a medicine as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50c. a box or six boxes for $2.50 from the Dr. Williams' Co., Brockville, Ont.

SAVED BY A TAIL.

An Incident of the Perilous Times in Paris in 1848.

On Feb. 24, 1848, when Paris was disturbed by the revolutionary mob, a Captain Prebols was sent by the government with orders to be delivered to the leaders of the troops that were defending the threatened points in various parts of the city. It was a dangerous undertaking, for the bitterness of the people against the government was intense.

Before starting out Captain Prebols was warned to take the greatest care if he valued his life, but he took the warnings lightly and said: "If you fellows knew my black horse as well as I know him you wouldn't worry about me. That horse has carried me through thick and thin."

The black horse of which the gallant captain was so proud was indeed a beautiful animal. But there was something very extraordinary about his tail. It was long and bushy, but it never moved or twitched, except with the movement of the animal's body.

When Prebols arrived in the disturbed section of the city he fearlessly delivered his message. He met with no resistance from the crowds in the streets until he reached the Place Vendôme. Here a great crowd of revolutionists had gathered. One seized the captain and cried in a fierce voice: "Hold! What message are you carrying?"

The captain refused to answer. "Put a bullet through him and get that message!" bawled out the man in a commanding voice. He was evidently a leader of the mob.

At this point the captain determined that quick action alone would save him from violence at the hands of the crowd. Quick as a flash he wheeled his horse and dashed off. Several bullets flew after him, but they went wild and then suddenly ceased altogether. He looked round and saw the mob crowding round one of their number, who held something in his hand. And then his eyes fell on the back of his horse and his heart sank in dismay.

It seems that as he whirled his horse about several men seized hold of the animal. But the powerful creature threw them all except one, a lad of fourteen, who seized the horse's tail. That tail was the object of interest that had caused the shooting to stop, for it had come off. There stood the boy, in the middle of the road, with his feet spread apart and an expression of grim determination on his face as he tightly clutched the feeling creature's tail. The mob saw the humor of the situation and burst into a roar of laughter.

The explanation came out later. It seems that Captain Prebols' horse, while perfect in every other particular, did not have a very good tail, and so his master had an artificial one made for him. No doubt that artificial tail, and that alone, saved Captain Prebols' life.

How to Paint for Less Money

We'll tell you how in three words—use less gallons. That's the thing to go by in Paint—not the price per gallon, but the number of gallons required plus the length of time it will wear and look well.

"100% Pure" Paint costs about half as much, counting the surface it covers, and wears two or three times as long as ordinary paint.

You pay by the gallon—both for the paint and for putting it on. The Paint that is cheapest for you is the paint that spreads easiest and covers the most surface.

MARTIN-SENOUR "100% PURE" PAINT

"MADE IN CANADA"

has a covering capacity of 900 square feet of surface per gallon one coat, as against 500 square feet covered by hand-mixed Lead and Oil—or 600 square feet covered by low priced prepared paint.

And as further proof—if you will send us the dimensions of your house, we will tell you the number of gallons of "100% Pure" Paint required to cover it thoroughly. No charge for this service.
