On 'Change. Special to C. E. Turner, broker, Masonic Temple, from Kennett,

Hopkins Company. Chicago, June 3.-Wheat had a bad break early, with Pardridge the principal seller. He has not been at all alive in the market for some time until today. It is said he has raised $100,000 in cash and started in for another bear campaign. He had a good deal of company today in his selling operations, and nearly everybody seemed to feel that the long expected break was coming. The Thoman crop report, showing a decline of 10 points in the condition of winter wheat during May, was issued early and given a bearish construction. One remark he made was apparently overlooked, namely, that if the weather conditions should continue as damaging for ten days longer, it would practically wipe out the winter wheat crop where half a crop was indicated at the time the report was compiled about May 27. Since then there has been a week of the severest weather on the crop for all the States east of the Mississippi River, which has probably cut down the outlook largely. Ex-Assistant Statistician Snow prints in the Orange Judd Farmer a report showing a reduction in the condition between May 1 and May 27 of 12 points each in Kentucky and Tennessee; 14 in Ohio; 25 in Indiana; 29 in Illinois; 28 in Missouri, and 20 in Kansas. He adds that the condition would be naturally lower if estimated now. Taking in the Pacific coast, where a bumper crop is conceded. Snow makes the general average condition of winter wheat 71.5 on May 27. Allowing for the damage done sicne then east of the Rocky Mountains, and remembering that a good crop on the Pacific coast will not help the Atlantic States unless our bids are higher than Europe, the crop situation is certainly very serious. It looks as if there would be no exportable surplus east of the Rocky Mountains.

Corn and oats were very heavy early, but recovered a portion of the decline in sympathy with wheat. The rains will do them much more good than wheat, as the latter is too far advanced to receive much benefit, while there is yet time to make a very large crop of corn and a fair one of oats. It will HE IS AN ACTOR doubtless be a weather market for a time, but a continued advance in wheat will probably strengthen corn and oats to some extent.

-Next year it will be 50 years since B A. Mitchell came to London, and for 45 years he has been in business here, He is active, fond of work, and could set the pace for half the young fellows of the present day. For 45 years he has been an adherent of St. Paul's.

-It is probable that the laying of the corner-stone of the new Dundas Street Center Methodist Church will take place on Monday, July 1, Dominion Day. The ceremony will take place in the forencon, and a decidedly attractive programme, in which young and old will participate, will likely be arranged.

-Mr. John Dore, a popular G. T. R. man was married at 8 a. m. today to Miss L. Maher, of London. The bride was assisted by her niece, Miss Ida Smith, and the groom by his brother, J. W. Dore, of Hamilton. Mr. Dore and his bride left for Chicago and other western points, after which they will reside in this city.

-An accident amusing to some and discomfiting to others occurred on the train from Port Stanley yesterday morning. The engine took water near St. Thomas, and when the driver had all he wanted he threw off the supply pipe as usual, but the valve did not work. The train moved off briskly and a heavy stream poured in on the passengers through the open windows. Those who were opposite closed windows enjoyed the fun at the expense of the others. The White Caps were returning home after spending Sunday at Port, and were the most thoroughly alarmed of the lot.

-At the meeting of the First Congregational Church Christian Endeavor Society on Monday night these officers were chosen for the ensuing six months: President, Mr. Joseph Dixon; vice-president, Mr. A. J. Richards; corresponding secretary, Miss Fanny Dixon; secretary, Miss Hilda Chapman. -The funeral of Dr. J. Sinclair McKay, of Detroit, took place from his parents' residence. St. Thomas, on Saturday afternoon, and was very largely attended. Rev. Dr. Hannon conducted the services, and was assisted by Rev. Mr. McDonald, of Knox Church. Most beautiful flowers of various designs were placed on and about the casket. The grave was lined with evergreens and flowers. Numerous telegrams and letters of sympathy were received from many friends, both in the city and from a distance. The deceased will be remembered by Londoners for his heroic rescue from drowning of a young Londoner at Port Stanley last June. It was a difficult rescue and the doctor nearly lost his life at the time. As previously announced death was due to pneumonia, brought on through asphyxiation by inhaling gas from a jet which was accidentally left open. Mrs. Frank Adams, of this city, is a cousin of deceased.

DEATH OF MRS. GEORGE DURAND. The death occurred this morning, after a long and lingering illness, of Mrs. George Durand, widow of the late George Durand, the well-known local architect, who died in 1889. Mrs. Durand was a Miss Parker and comes from a family which is well connected in Albany, N. Y., where her father was at one time mayor. It was while engaged in some architectural work in connection with government buildings at Albany that the late Mr. Durand met Miss Parker and they lived there for several years after their marriage. Mrs. Durand was a member of the congragation of the Memorial Church. She leaves a family of four children-James, Catharine, Edna and Elsie. The sympathy of a large circle of friends will be extended the family in their affliction.

Edward Houghton, an actor, with a smooth-shaven face and an abundance of black curly hair, was in the dock at the Police Court this morning charged with defrauding Wm. J. Thompson, of King street, of $65. Houghton was the principal of the dramatic company which played all last week to empty houses at the Grand. The company put up at the Thompson House, and on Sunday Houghton left town without squaring his board account, it is alleged. He took some of his trunks with him, but only reached Suspension Bridge when Detective Rider requested his return to London. The members of the troupe were all in court this morning. They include mostly young men, but one of them, who is on the sick list, has a wife and two children. Mr. J. B. McKillop, representing the crown, was not prepared to proceed with the case, and asked a remand for two days. Counsel for Houghton opposed the adjournment, claiming that it would be a hardship on his actor client. "He doesn't de-serve the least particle of sympathy," replied Mr. McKillop. Houghton will sojourn at Castle Felly until Thursday morning. THE DELAWARE BICYCLE CASE.

At the resumption of the June sessions at the court house this morning the grand jury announced a true bill in the case of Fred J. Grant, charged with the theft of a Whitworth bicycle from Johnson & Bodkin, Delaware. Grant was arraigned, pleaded not guilty, and his trial was begun. On the night of Saturday, Feb. 2, last Norman J. Bodkin, a member of the firm of Johnson & Bodkin, locked up his place of business in Delaware village, and the following day he was notified that the store had been entered during the night. The only thing stolen was the bicycle, and though the constables and detectives were notified no trace of the missing wheel could be found until April 2, when Grant rode up to Bodkin's store with it. Bodkin recognized the wheel at once, but Grant claimed to have purchased it from a man named Nelson J. Beaugner, whom he had met on Dundas street west. He claimed to have paid $65 for it, and produced a receipt for that amount. Grant took the wheel away again, but in a day or two brought it back and left it at Bodkin's. He was subsequently arrested and committed for trial. The only witness examined this morning was young Bodkin, who related the facts about the disappearance of the machine and by a number of marks, etc., positively identified

ELECTRIC RAILWAY NOTES.

Work Will Be Commenced on Monday Next

In London West-Anxious to Reach the Cemetery-Plans for the New Power House.

"We will commence work on Monday," said Manager Carr, of the street railway company, today, in speaking about the electric road. "Where?" "In London West. We will ask the permission of the London West Council to run on Mount Pleasant street, instead of the route proposed last year. We are anxious to reach the cemetery." Mr. Carr would not admit that all this went to show that the company intended to reach Springbank by the north side of the river. "We will not know till late Friday night, in all probability," said he, which side of the river we will take. We have had an estimate made of the cost of fillings and cuttings on the south side, and our engineer is now at work on an estimate of the cost of simi-ilar work on the north side." It is probable that the first electric car to run in the city will be from the corner of Dundas and Richmond streets, westerly, judging from the activity which is being displayed just now to secure crossing and other privileges. "We have been wanting to reach the corner for a couple of years," said Mr. Carr. "If the company secures connection with the cemetery will funeral cars be operated?" asked the reporter.

'We asked the London West Council for that privilege once," said Mr. Carr, "and they asked us to wait until our cars were running and they would give us an answer. Why some American companies buy up ground and turn it into cemeteries for the sake of the traffic of funeral trains."

Messrs. Johnston, of the Dominion Wire Company, Montreal; McCormick of the Canada General Electric Company, Peterboro and Toronto; and a representative of the Eugene Phillips Wire Company were in town today. Plans for the company's new power house are being drawn by F. J. Randall, architect, Toronto.

CLOSED UP.

Warm Weather Too Much for the Newsboys' Hall.

Twas a Success in Winter, But the Boys Deserted in Summer and Prefer to Sleep Out-The Effects Sold.

The Newsboys' Hall is empty and only the tale of a well-intentioned philanthropic effort. The boys have scattered and the furnishings were sold on Saturday last by auction on the market. Tomorrow afternoon a meeting of the committee of charitably disposed people who have been interested in the suc-cess of the home will be held, and ways and means devised for the meeting of a few outstanding accounts. The establishment was started last winter by Mr. Sam Grigg, and while the cold weather lasted it served its purpose well. Newsbeys and other homeless youngsters found food and shelter there, and obtained employment through the instrumentality of those interested in the home. Then the warm weather came and the boys found it as pleasant to sleep out of doors as in the Newsboys' Hall. They also found that work and discipline were onerous in the summer time, and the managers saw that the usefulness of the institution had apparently deserted. Mr. Sam Grigg went to Chicago to look after some private interests there.

"I hear from him every day, indirectly," said Mr. F. H. Heath today. "He has been offered the managership of a large temperance hotel there, and will probably stay, although he says he will return if it is necessary to do so in winding up the affairs of the hall." Mr. D'Elion, the superintendent of the home, is traveling for a wholsesale confectionery in town. Among those composing the committee, which meets tomorrow afternoon, are Mrs. Gregsten, Miss Seabrook, and Messrs. Shuttleworth, Pocock, Imrie
