ARE PLANNED IN NEW YORK

St. Thomas and Stratford Boys To Oppose Local Boxers in Armories.

CARD OF SEASON

Cy Pook, Lightheavy Champion, Offers To Appear

The card on which boxers from the Elgin Regiment of St. Thomas and Perth Regiment of Stratford will appear against London mitt men, under the joint auspices of the above-named units and the London Garrison A. A. at the local armories as a testimonial to the work done by Sergt. Tommy Wallace in helping to promote amateur boxing throughout Western Ontario, will be held a week from tonight.

Sanction for the bouts, which was withheld by the Ontario branch, A.
A. U. of C., because of the Ontario championships being staged in To-ronto this week, came yesterday for the card to be staged on April 15, and Sergt. Wallace was asked to notify all the boxers who are appearing on the bill. It will be the card of the local season, and should draw a packed house.

Interest Greater.

It sparkles with talent, and is up considerably more by district rivalries which will be settled on this program.

Wallace, whose good work, ex-tended over the four years he has been a resident of London, is well known to local fans, is given a real tribute when Stratford and St. Thomas boxers step forth to offer their services on the card.

Mostly Newcomers.

Bambino Crowded From Outfield by Admiring Throng of Youngsters.

Associated Press Despatch. New York, April 7 .- The contagion of hero worship, spreading from a group of boys in Babe Ruth's station in right field, infected 10,000 people at Nashville, Tenn., yesterday and compelled Umpire Rowland to call the Yankee-Brooklyn contest in the ninth inning when the score was 8-8.

The overflow crowd at Nashville swarmed onto the outfield, compelling ground rules that resulted in many extra-base hits. A solid ring of small boys, surrounding Ruth on every catch, made life so miserable for the bambino that he exchanged places with Wally Pipp at first base. When the Yankees went in to bat for the first half of the tenth, the army crossed to the bench and made fur-Former manager of the Toronto Club, and for the last two years with Balther play impossible.

On the Side Lines

-With C. S. G. -

O. A. B. A. PROVES STEADY.

Those clubs who got pro coaches lined up in anticipation that the O. A. B. A. would realize the farcical features of their ban on paid mentors had their judgment vindicated, but those clubs who gambled on their belief that the O. A. B. A. would cater to the scattered demand for a later residence date than Jan. 1, and neglected to corral players before the New Year, are in the soup. The soup's not crowded, however, as very few clubs believed that the O. A. B. A. would back down from their Jan. 1 rule.

Clubs will have themselves to blame now if they call down any more ans on pro coaches. If clubs can procure pro coaching without starting a wild competition and wrecking their treasuries and endangering amateurism there will be no more heard of the pro coach question. But if clubs will insist on an orgy of spending to get pro coaching they are sure to reopen he question, and if the issue is ever brought to life again it will mean lamping the lid down on the pro coaches in the same way the O. H. A ackled the problem.

Fred Merkle Comments On Changing Condition in Big League Baseball.

Special to The Advertiser By JOHN B. FOSTER.

Savannah, Ga., April 7.—The big eagues are getting bigger and lesser eagues are getting lesser—in size of players.

This is the testimony of Fred Merkle, leading batter and first baseman of the Rochester club of the International League, which has been working out in practice games in the south against the big leagues.

"Little by little," says Merkle, "baseball is becoming more and more of a big man's game. We are having more and more trouble getting men. on a big man's game. We are naving more and more trouble getting men who are physically large. Almost all the big league club players are large men. That's why the minor leagues have trouble getting the larger players. The result, however, is that the minor leagues are getting all of the speed, although their players may not hit as well as the big fellows."

Speaking of the series which Rochester played with the New York Yanks, Merkle declared Rochester should have won two of the games which it lost.

"We have a better hitting team than we had last year," he said, "and if the fielding comes up to expecta-tions, the Rochester club should be able to give Baltimore a good fight the International League pen
