far as appears the company observed the obligations of subsections D and R of section 25
of bylaw No. 916 until the transaction to be presently referred action to be presently referred to, by reason of which the com-pany contends that it is exon-erated from the obligation to sell or to maintain a convenient place for the sale of tickets of either class as above set out.

The Five-Cent Fare Act. At the session of the Ontario legislature, in the year 1922, the company procured to be enacted "an act respecting the London Street Railway," being chap. 141 of the statutes of that year. Whether or not the city was a party to this legislation, does not appear, but no question has been appear, but no question has been raised as to the competence of the legislature to pass it. Looking to the preamble of chapter 141, which it is permissible to do, (R.S. O.C. 1. S. 9), it first recites the facts which induced the company's application to the leg-islature, and the causes which induced the legislature to inter-vene at the instance and petition of the company; they are briefly

(1). That by reason of increased costs, the company could not continue to maintain and operate its railway at the rate of fare then in effect;
(2). That in order to enable the company to continue to maintain and operate its railway so as to give a reasonable, and reasonably safe, service, it should be authorized to so increase its fares as to enable it to obtain sufficient revenue:

That it was expedient to grant the prayer of the company's

Terms the Same. Chapter 141 of the statutes of 1922, in the operative part of the first section, then proceeds to enact in terms practically identical word for word with the terms in which the company was authorized by sub-section D of section 25 to charge and collect the adult cash fare of five cents.

The analysis below of subsection 25 (D) of bylaw 916, and of section 1 of section 14 (1922) section 1 of chapter 141 (1922), sets out in parallel columns the content of the two enactments. It will be seen that in the act of 1922 there were two cash fares and two classes of free riders, just as in bylaw No. 916, and no reference whatever to tickets.

(B) Certain city officials. Revenue Assured.

If the matter rested there it might have been said with some warrant of truth that the com-pany had not by such legislation advanced appreciably towards its objective. namely, increased revenue from fares charged and collected. The legislature had simply re-enacted what was already in subsection (D) of secready in subsection (D) of section 25, conferring no new rights, but omitting all reference to tickets. But a different complexion is put on the matter by a consideration of the opening words of section 1, which reads, "notwithstanding anything contained in any experiment or bytained in any agreement or by-law or in any general or special act of this legislature the London street railway may for the un-expired term of its franchise charge and collect, etc." It seems to the board that these inreductory words of section 1 read in conjunction with the recitals in the preamble, can have only one effect so far as the subject matter of this application is concerned, namely, that the provision requiring the company to vision requiring the company to sell and provide facilities for sell-ing tickets was intended to be repeated and was repeated for the unexpired term of the company's franchise. This conclusion is supported by the provisions of section 3 of the act of 1922. This was the effect imputed to this section of the act of 1922 by the section of the act of 1922 by the parties chiefly interested in its application, the city and the company. From the 13th June, 1922, when the act of 1922 became law, when the act of 1922 became law, the company admittedly ceased to sell tickets to intending passengers on their cars, and treated the provisions of subsection (D) and (R) of section 25 of bylaw No. 916 as repeated, and the board so held

Privileges Extended.

It will be noted that section 20 of bylaw No. 916 provides by subsection (1) that the company's privileges granted by the bylaw, shall extend till the 8th day of March, 1925, and the corporation, by giving one year's notice prior to that date, of their intention to do so, may assume the ownership of the railway, etc. Sub-section 4 or section 20 provides that in the event of the corporation not exercising the right to take over the railway, etc., as aforesaid, from the 8th day of March, 1925, the corporation may, at the ex-piration of any fifth year thereafter, exercise such right, upon giving not less than one year's notice to the company of their intention to do so, and then follow these words: "And the privileges, duties, obligations and liabilities hereunder, of the company shall continue metal the pany shall continue until ownership is assumed by the corporation as aforesaid, or possession taken under the provisions of this section as above

One result of the foregoing transaction is, in the opinion of the board, that the company was the board, that the company was entitled to charge and collect from each passenger on their cars, with the exceptions men-tioned, a cash fare of five cents from each child between the of 5 and 12 years; and that the company might do this not merely up to the 8th March, 1925, when the term certain of their fifty-year franchise expired, but also during any of the five-year increments thereafter, contingent on the city's not taking over the railway on the 8th March, 1925, or on the expiry of any five-year period thereafter. Section 1 of the act of 1922 confers the right thereby granted to the company "for the unexpired term of its (the Company's) franchise." It seems to the Board that the franchise period of the Com-pany is made up of two factors, the period of fifty years certain. terminating on the 5th day of March, 1925, and the successive increments of five years thereafter, contingent on the failure of the corporation to give the requisite year's notice of its intention to take over the rail-way. Each of these factors constitutes an essential part of the company's franchise period, under each the company is to enjoy and be subject to precisely the same "privileges d obligations and liabilities." seems to the board, therefore, that enactment of 1922 applies as fully to the successive incre-ments of five years for the pur-pose of determining the rights of the parties as to the franchise term ending 8th March, 1925. In the event of the city not taking over the railway at the expiry of the Company's main franchise, terminating on 8th franchise, terminating on 8th March, 1925, the company would have continued automatically in possession of the railway, subject to its rights under by-law No. 916, as modified by the legislation of 1922. City Thought So. The city evidently thought that this view might be entertained, since at the session of the legislature in 1924, it procured to be passed "an act respecting the London street railway act, whose single section reads thus: To remove doubts it is hereby declared that the provisions of chapter 141 of the act passed in 1922 intituled an act respecting the London street railroad, shall only apply up to the 8th day of March, 1925, and from and after the said 8th day of March, 1925, the said act shall be and the same is here-company contends that while this last-named act of 1924 was effective to repeal the above act of 1922, its repeal did not revive the repealed provisions of section 5, sub-sections (d) and (r) of bylaw No. 916 as to the sale and keeping for sale of tickets. For this contention the company cites section 14, paragraph (a) of "The Interpretation Act" (R. S. O., 1914, chapter 1), which reads

Act of 1922. (1) Cash fares.

(A) Adult, 5c.

"Where an act is repealed or wherever any regulation is revoked, such repeal or revocation shall not save as in this section otherwise provided:

"(a) Revive any act, enactment, regulation or thing not in force or existing at the time at which the revocation takes effect."

"The board is of opinion that it should give effect to the company contention. There can be no doubt as to the application of the above provision of "the interpretation act" in limiting the effect of the legislation of 1924. By reason of the legislation of 1922, the provisions of bylaw No. 916 as to tickets were undoubtedly repealed. The consequences flowing from such repeal are clearly stated by Lord Reading. then chief justice in the case, Watson V. Winch (1916), I. K. B. 688, adopting the language of the court in surtees V., Ellison 9 E. and O., 750-752, as follows:

"It has been long established that, when an act of parliament is repealed it must be considered (except as to transactions passed and closed) as if it had never existed. That is the general rule The board is not aware that any different canon of interpretation is to be applied where an instrument (other than an act of parliament) conferring rights or imposing obligations has been pealed by a competent act of the legislature. If therefore the provisions as to the sale of tickets contained in bylaw No. 916 were effectively repealed by the act of 1922—and the board holds to this view-it follows that these provisions were "as if they had never existed," and being nonexistent by force of the act of 1922 they were not revived when the repealing act of 1922 was in turn repealed by the act of 1924. If the board's conclusion is well founded, it follows that there is no obligation on the company to sell and keep for sale tickets as originally provided in bylaw No. 916, and the company is not guilty of a breach of its agreement, and that the application must be dis-

The application is dismissed but without costs, except that the city will pay $15 in law stamps on

Canadian Press Despatch. Regina, Sask., June 26.-Cancer depending upon its anatomical loca tion, is absolutely curable, provided treatment is applied in the early stages of the disease, H. W. INTENTION NOT CRIME SO PAIR ARE FREED

Brantford Men in Court Not Convicted Because of Thoughts.

"Intentions are not crimes," was the bit of logic Reg. Brown, 22, of Brantford, offered Magistrate Graydon in police court this morning. Reg., with his pal, Arthur Evans, 19, also of the Cordage City, was on his way home after failing to find a job in the border cities.

Tarrying by the C. N. R. tracks here, the two prodigals were shown the highway by Railway Constable Emmett. They returned farther east along the line and lay down just outside the railway property. Queried again by Emmett, Reg. announced that they were waiting for a train, and the constable repeated the streement to the magistrate as proof of their unlawful thoughts. Reg. and Arthur were finally freed on condition they leave the city immediately.

AFFIDAVIT BOOSTED

Plan Would Save Small Depositors From Loss, U. A. Buchner Points Out.

If those who wish to prove their claims before the judge of the exchequer may do so by affidavit, the Home Bank relief bill amended by the senate and passed by the commons early today will be more workable and will not cause depositors to suffer greatly, is the opinion of U. A. Buchner, representing the depositors here.

To bring depositors all the way from the west to the court of exchequer to prove their claims for $500 chequer to prove their claims for $500 would leave them without anything worth speaking of, is his opinion.

The bill is more workable now than it has been for some time, that is as far as the small depositor is concerned, he said. Of course the trades and labor bodies, corporations and other organizations will not get anything out of it.

It is not likely that any claims for more than $500 will be entertained unless there is positive proof that the applicant is in dire need. Such claims, says Mr. Buchner, will be hard to prove.
