Details of the Wreck of River Steamer on Lake Le Barge.

Away.

Details were received in the city yesterday of the wreck of the river steamer Goddard on Luke LeBarge on October 12, and of the death of her captain, cook and another, as a result of the disaster. The river steamer sailed from White Horse at 3 o'clock on the afternoon of Saturday, October 12, with two scowards of the country of the Saturday of the Country of the Country of the Saturday of the S

A QUIET DAY.

Not Many Vessels Moving Yesterday on the Waterfront.

on the Waterfront.

It was not a busy day along the waterfront yesterday. The steamer Tellus passed out in the morning from Ladysmith with a cargo of coal for San Francisco, and the Richard Holyoke arrived from Port Townsend to take the bark Highland Light from the Royal Roads to Tacoma, where she will load coal for San Francisco. The ship Galena, a four masted iron and steel vessel, owned by S. Shute, of Liverpool and Callao, owners of the delayed Senator, is still in the Royal Roads. The steamer Horda, which has been thoroughly repaired by Messrs. Bullen in the Esquimalt dry-dock, will be floated at 7 o'clock this morning, and the steamer Crusader, which has a charter to load lumber at Portland for the Orient, will enter the dry-dock to be cleaned and painted. The cruiser Phaeton will re-enter the dock on the completion of the work on the Crusader. The contract has not been let for the repairs to the Hating. The dredger Mudlark, which, over a week ago, stopped work in the upper harbor, and has since been lying at the customs wharf, has been towed to Nanaimo by the tug Albion. The steamer Umatilla is due from San Francisco this morning, and the steamer Walla Walla is to sail for the Golden Gate tonight. The Dodwell liner Olympia is expected to arrive today from the Orient.

From Underwriters.

The New York papers report that when the British steamship Roma, driven by the terrific force of the hurricane and tidal wave which swept over Galveston in September. 1900. crashed through three railroad bridges and struck a fourth one, landing finally upon the beach in six feet of water, it was believed she had made her last voyage, but recently. under the command of Capt. Storrs, she came into port under her own steam, and will be sent to the yards for repairs.

After the wreck her London owners gave her over to the underwriters, who paid the insurance. William Parr & company, of Galveston, bought her and got her off. This firm sold her to James Jerome, manager of the Saginaw Steamship company, of San Francisco, who was one of the unsuccessful bidders for the wrecked Miami. When repairs, which it is estimated will cost $60,000, have been made, she will obtain American registry and be used in the Pacific Coast trade.

THE CAPTAIN REPLIES Says He Did Not Use His Blanket for

Capt. Pedersen, of the collier Tellus, takes exception to the despatch from Carmanah on September 12, telling of "a genuine tramp coming in from the sea in thick fog with her blanket up for an ensign." Oapt. Pedersen says in a letter to the Colonist, that he did not use his blanket for an ensign. He says: "I expected to hear the fog whistle when off Carmanah, but I'did not. When the fog lifted Carmanah could be seen one mile off. The lighthouse keeper then started to blow his whistle and asked for communication, but with a naked flagstaff. I then made a remark to my officers, 'let him alone; he's got no flag; must be a Jap.'"
