As several communications have been addressed to us relative to the respective merits of Joe Coburn and Jem Mace and asking our opinion, we reprint as the best answer the following account taken from the New York Clipper of the last round in their fight at Bay St Louis Miss: "This round was a counterpart of that in which the principals figured on May 11 last, with the exception that this time it was Mace who refused to leave his corner. For nearly an hour they stood looking at each other, Jim only going to the scratch when ordered by the referee (Rufus Hunt) to do so, and then at once retreating. Finally the referee, finding that Mace would not leave his corner, and that Joe did not intend to do the fighting there, stepped inside the ropes and declared the fight a draw, expressing the opinion that 'one is afraid and the other dar-sn't."

"Icterring to the Cockburn-Sroud controversy regarding a shooting match, the Hamilton Spectator gets off the following: "If the match falls through it will be Cockburn's fault, and this will not be the first time he has made a big buff and then weakened. The facts are just these: Cockburn issued a challenge through the Toronto Mait to shoot any man in Canada a pigeon match. If Stroud deposited $25 with the Spectator and the forfeit was afterwards forwarded to Toronto to make (wo matches) one in Toronto and one in this city Cockburn professed to accept it and forwarded articles of a creement. But the articles he forwarded were not for any such matches as sipulated by the Hamilton shoot two matches, one in Campbellford and the other in Hamilton under Dominion rules. There is a forfeit at the Toronto Mail office for Cockburn to cover. Let him cover that for the matches as named at first, or be it down as he did before when Stroud accepted a pevious challenge. When Cockburn issued his challenge a short time ago the Spectator expressed the opinion that he was only seeking a little cheap nototety and would not make a match with any one, except on his own terms, and his subsequent course goes far to justify this. Cockburn doesn't want to shoot, he only wants to talk about shooting."

The true philosophy of medication is not to dose for symptoms, but to root out disease. It is as well adapted to the needs and physical temperaments of delicate females as to the more robust sex, and is a fine preventive of disease as well as remedy for it.
