England and Canada.

A mural tablet is about to be placed in the crypt of St. Paul's cathedral in memory of the gallant Captain Alexander Maonab, of the 30th Regiment, : Camalian, who served throughout the whole of the Peninsular campaign, and who, being on the stati, was aids de-camp to Lieutenant-General Sir Thomas Picton, and with his illustratus chief fell in the battle of Waterlee. In the Morning Post of the 9th June, 1859, is an assount of the removal on the provious day of the remains of Sir Thomas Picton from of the remains of Sir Thomas Pieton from the semetery of St. Paul's eathedral, where they were laid near to those of the Duke of Wellington, to whom Pieton had proved a brave lieutonant in many a well-fought field as well as in their last battle. This funeral was by the command of the British (Covernment) the office well had on a dovernment; the coffin was placed on a gun carriage, and the procession was under the direction of the Royal Artillery. The carriages of the Home Secretary, the Duke of Cambridge, Lord Gongh, General Sir John Rurgoyne, the Right Hon. S. Est-court, General Sir T. Stovin, Sir Hew Ross, Sir Bobt. Gardner, and Sir James Ross, Sir Robt. Gardner, and Sir James Coleman followed the remains, and among the mourners were Mr. J. Picton, the Hon. Colonel Vereker, General Wood, Colonel Bagot, the Rev. H. Howarth, then rector of St. George's, Mr. Stanley, Dr. Brower, Mr. Cooper, Mr. Westerton, Mr. Treherne, and the Rev. Dr. Maonab, rector of Darlington, Correla beingther and legal res. and the Rev. Dr. Macnab, rector of Darlington, Canada, heir-st-law and legal representative of his uncle, Captain Alexander Macnab. Captain Macnab was probably the only native of the Province of Upper Canada who took part in the battle of Waterloo, although he has by no means been the only Canadian who has sought and won honourable distinction under the imperial banners of the home country. The branch of the olan Macnab to which he belonged settled more than a century since, on their dispersion from their ances. since, on their dispersion from their ancestral seats, in the County of Porth, on the North American continent, and their name may be found inscribed on the roll of the loyalists of the United Empire who dis-Invalists of the United Empire who distinguished themselves on the side of their Mother Country during the war of independence. It will no doubt be in the recollection also of many that the Duke of Wellington long since stated in his place in the House of Lords that the preservation of the Canadas as a portion of the British Empire was due to the services of the late Sir Allan Nanier Magnab. a member of the same Napier Macnab, a member of the same

Some years since, when Dr. Maenab was in England, he applied to the War Department praying that he might be permitted, as nephew and heir at law of Captain Macnab, who had fallen at Waterloo, to receive the Waterloo medal. Sir John Pakington, then Becretary for war, referred the memorial to the Duke of Cambridge, commander in-chief, and his royal highness caused an un-appropriated medal to be engraved with the name of Captain Macnab, and forwarded to his nephew with a highly-gratifying letter. This is probably the first instance of the issuing of such a decoration after the lapse of half a century; and while the medal will doubtless be treasured as a valuable heir-loom in the family it may be said further to afford some evidence of the interest felt in high quarters in England in the concorns of the residents in our colonies, where such tokens are highly esteemed, and where they tend to knit still more closely the bond of attachment which so strongly unites them to the Mother Country as to lead us to ex-claim that the Canadians are more loyal even than the English themselves. Dr. Macnab's case, however, affords yet more conclusive evidence of such a desire on the part of the authorities at home, for not-withstanding the time that had elapsed, and notwithstanding that an Act had been passed cancelling all former claims for prize money, the Chelsea Hospital Commissioners, consisting of certain members of the Cabinet and of veteran field officers, of the Cabinet and of veteran field officers, looked into the question of the prize money, and finding that a considerable sum was still lying to the credit of Captain Macnab, the amount was paid over to his representative. Dr. Macnab and his son, the Rev. A. W. Macnab, being again in England, have applied to the Dean and Chapter of St. Park's extended for present Chapter of St. Paul's cathedral for permission to place in the crypt of St. Paul's a mural tablet to the memory of their uncle, and have just received a reply from the Very Rev. Dean Church stating that the Chapter gladly gave permission for a monumental tablet to Captain Alexander Macnab. The tablet is being prepared, and will be placed near to the tomb of the deceased officer's chief. The readiness with which their request has been granted is highly gratifying to those who preferred it, and will be esteemed in Canada as a further evidence of the desire of those in England to meet the wishes of colonists.— Dominion Churchman.

Another violent outrage committed on ANOTHER VIOLENT outrage committed on one of the English compartment railway cars, has led to a discussion of their unsate system of travelling. The Glasgow News, in an able article on the remedy for the present deplorable state of things, gives this genesible advice:—"A holish the average this sensible advice:—"Abolish the present system of small compartments, and boldly adopt the American plan of building car-riages open from end to end." It says that the advantages of this plan are so obvious that it is destined to become uni-versal, and will yet be made compulsory by Parliament.

A I RESEVEERIAN missionary at Oroomiah, Persia, says a remarkable change is taking place among the Mussulmans, who show an anxiety to converse with any Christian they can find. Many go to Dea-con Pera, at the Bible Bazaar, for Chriscon Pera, at the Bible Bazaar, for Christian matruction, sometimes as many as eighteen or twenty at once. They also attend the public meetings of the missionaries. Mohammedanism has assumed wide dimensions in the Holy Land; but the Obvistian cause has nevertheless. wide dimensions in the Holy Land; but the Christian cause las, nevertheless, made much progress. There are in Pales-tine 250 Protestant churches, and in Jeru-salem 80,000 Protestants, 0,000 youths with attend Protestant schools, and a high school, which is attended by 1 300 Protestant youths. Similar success is reported from Alexandria, Cairo, Abyssinia, etc.

STATISTICS of some of the most destruc-tive casualties of this century, show that ,407 persons have been lost in four wrecks of steamors, 1,422 in six fires, 7,250 in three floods, 23 551 in three great battles, 95,550 in ten earthquikes, and 275,000 in two cyclones in the East Indies, making the fearful total of 404,443 lives thus destroyed.
