CATHOLIC CALENDAR For November, 1881. TUESDAY, 17.—St. Gregory Thaumaturgus, Bishop and Confessor.

TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS. We do not like being obliged to call so frequently upon our subscribers to pay up their subscriptions, but we sometimes find it necessary.

The following gentlemen have kindly consented to act as agents in their respective localities, for The Post and True Witness, and are empowered to collect subscriptions and enroll subscribers.

The accounts received of the fall elections in the States are to-day considerably modified. It now appears that Mahone and the Readjuster have carried Virginia in conjunction with the Republicans, thus for the first time breaking up the solid South.

History tells us, that Erostratus burned down the temple of Diana at Ephesus for no other reason than that his name might descend to future generations of men in connection with the destruction of the splendid edifice, and he has succeeded, for while the name of the architect is lost in obscurity.

There is at least one Irishman in existence who has a good word for Gladstone and Forster, and that is the Nationalist, John O'Leary, now residing in Paris.

The speech of Daniel Grant, an English member of Parliament, in which he declared that the Republican idea is spreading in England, is significant, although we did not require his announcement to apprise us of the fact.

It was the intention of Mr. Parnell to bring a certain number of cases before the Land Court as tests, but this Mr. Gladstone prevented him carrying out by lodging him securely in Kilmalham Jail.

The Herald is dishing up all the state platitudes about the Hon. Mr. Flynn which have appeared in La Patrie during the past twelve months.

Mr. Joly did not even condescend to answer, but that Mr. Chapleau did answer by the giving of a portfolio to the Hon. Mr. Flynn.

The Home Rule movement has come to the front once more in Ireland, this time under very favorable circumstances. But little value need be placed on the utterances of Liberal Ministers who have broken all their promises and gone back on all their traditions in so far as Ireland is concerned.

The cablegrams convey only a faint idea of the intense anti-Irish feeling that exists in England. The cable merely gives the editorial utterances of those influential journals which try to be dignified under circumstances which cause their contemporaries—which have not the same reasons for preserving a calm demeanour—to go almost mad with fury.

Though the final result of the United States fall elections are not perfectly known, enough is known to make it clear that the Democrats have made large—some say extraordinary—gains. They have carried New York State beyond all manner of doubt, though they have lost in the city through the split between the Tammany Hall and regular Democracy factions.

He once said to a party who went to him for a subscription to the Land League, Parnell is a lazy vagabond, let him go, and work up to this the gold South remains unbroken.

Every Irishman who has a sincere love for his country, and the children of Irishmen who have a regard for the honor of the land of their ancestors, will heartily endorse the views of our correspondent, signing himself an "Irish Catholic," in regard to the giving of some kind of a tribute to "Norah."

LETTERS OF "NORAH." THE ENGLISH RADICALS. Revolutionary rumblings are heard in England, deep and ominous, of a social earthquake. There is, indeed, something like a revolution required to purify the atmosphere and clear the way for a fresh political start.

income of $100,000 while a quack has to live upon $400 and do the work of the blabber where the land is held by the few as well as the franchise. So long as the farmers were content the agricultural laborers counted for nothing, though in reality, reckoning them as revolutionists, they were the most formidable class in England.

REVIEWS OF BOOKS. THE CATHOLIC WORLD, for November has the following:—The sentiment of English Radicalism, by A. F. Marshall, "A Jesuit in disguise" John R. G. Hussard.

Mrs. Leprohon's POETICAL WORKS are now published by Mr. John Lovell & Son, and edited by we know not whom, but evidently by some person who has taken to the task a sweet remembrance of the gifted authoress, who, as a poetical contributor to the Boston Pilot, Lovell's Gazetteer, The True Witness and other papers and periodicals over her maiden signature of R. E. Mullins.

CORRESPONDENCE

LETTERS OF "NORAH." Mrs. McDougall's "Norah" (Mrs. McDougall, "Norah," Ontario) Correspondent in Ireland of the Montreal Witness. To the Editor of The Post and True Witness. Sir—Of the many and varied contributions to the literature of the Irish land agitation which, during the past few years, has occupied so much of public attention, none, I venture to say, has accomplished its purpose more nobly and completely than that of the lady whose name appears above.
