

pleasing admiration, and especially to one so long conversant with heathen countries and a wide expanse of ocean.

Passed up the Thames to the city, and I rejoiced to land once more upon Christian and civilized shores, my native land, "where my best friends and kindred dwell." In taking leave of the Phoenix, I felt it due to the captain and crew to say, that I received from them every kind attention I could wish, and being a temperance ship, I did not hear a profane word from any, while on board. We had public worship during the voyage on the Sabbath, and the word of God was blessed, as there was reason to believe, to the saving conversion of some souls. I found kind friends in New London, and after arranging my business, directed my way to Ithaca, where I arrived on the 23rd of May, after an absence of more than two years and two months, and having journeyed twenty-eight thousand miles.

THE END.
