MANXMAN SAILORS DROWN IN ATLANTIC

Forty-Three of Crew Perish—A Few Are Saved.

Halifax, N. S., Dec. 19.—The captain, first mate, fourth engineer, wireless operator and thirty-nine of the crew of the British steamer Manxman, were drowned when their ship foundered in mid-Atlantic on Thursday morning, according to a wireless message sent out by Capt. Gore, master of the British steamer "Iles" from New York, intercepted here this morning. The message said that all the other officers of the Manxman, the chief steward and seven of the crew, are safe on board the British Isles. The radiogram did not state how the men lost their lives, but it is presumed they went down with their ship, though it is possible that they may have had time to take to the boats and that these subsequently capsized.

SALTED DOWN BODY OF HER DAUGHTER

Lawton, Mich., Dec. 19.—Specifically blaming no one, the coroner's jury, investigating the death of Maude Tabor, brilliant student of languages, whose body was found in a trunk in her home here a month ago, late tonight returned a verdict that death resulted from an illegal operation.

The verdict came as the climax of a day fraught with sensation, during which the 80-year-old mother of the dead woman, Mrs. Sarah Tabor, dramatically told in detail a story of her daughter's death and her own act in "salting" the body and placing it in the trunk, which was Maude's hope chest. This, she said, she did down the cellar stairs by means of a rope snubbed about the door knob, and hid it there, in keeping with a pact the two had made to be buried together.

Plainclothesman Forbes of Claremont station heard the shot, and running into the building, found Osman lying on the floor. Forbes rendered first aid, and then had the wounded man removed to the Western Hospital, where it was reported Osman was doing nicely. The police learned that Osman had been cleaning the gun and did not know there was still a shot in the gun when he discharged it.

TENNYSONS WERE LOVERS TO LAST

Many Well-Known Couples Kept Young With Life-long Courtship.

"The reason why my long married life has been so happy," said the late Lady Tennyson, "is that my husband has always been my lover. We are far more lovers today than when we married so very many years ago. And there has been the happy experience of thousands of other wedded couples whose courtship days have lasted long as life itself.

Charles Kingsley called himself "an old married man" when he wrote to his wife from a solitary convalescent holiday at the seaside. "This place is perfect, but it is not a dream, and imperfect without you. I never, and I felt the loneliness of being without the beloved being whose every look and word and motion are the keynotes of my life. People talk of love ending at the altar—fools."

Tom Hood, to his last day, was the passionate lover of the wife who inspired that sweetest of his songs, "I love thee, I love thee, 'tis all that I can say," and in whom in his last year he wrote, "Bless you, bless you, again and again, my dear one, my only one, my one as good as a thousand to your old unitarian in love, T. H."

One of the last letters the world has of Wordsworth is of "the old man walking in the garden with his wife. They were both old, and he was almost blind; but they seemed like sweethearts, courting, they were so tender and attentive to each other." And Nathaniel Hawthorne had lived many years in his "wedded paradise" when he wrote to his "lover" "from Heaven." "Oh, Phoebe, I want these much! Thou art the only person that was ever necessary to me. I am only myself when thou art with me, reach, thou unexpectably beloved woman."

Robert Browning never came to London without visiting the church in which he and the wife who was "soul of his soul" were made one, without kissing the paving stones in front of his door. And Stieglitz's passion for his wife found expression in such burning words as these: "I love you better than the light of my eyes or the life-blood of my heart. There are no words to express the tenderness I have for you."

AMRITSAR RIOTS WERE SOON OVER

Institution of Martial Law Had Quieting Effect Upon People.

By Canadian Press. Lorton, Dec. 19.—A batch of Indian newspapers received today disclose evidence that the Amritsar committee, which is conducting an enquiry into the disturbances last April in the Punjab district of British India. Col. Frank Johnson, in charge of the civil area at Lahore, the evidence shows, declared martial law was imposed after the outbreak at Amritsar. This, Col. Johnson is reported to have said, had a quieting effect on Lahore, where not a shot was fired by the military.

Johnson said, according to the evidence, that news of the Amritsar disturbances charged the civil area at Lahore, and that he made the necessary arrangements to protect Europeans. A crowd of 5000 went to the telegraph station, where most of the Europeans congregated, and the police tried to induce the crowd to leave. Later, it was said, the police evacuated the city, which was given over to the mob.

Magistrate Dismissed. Col. Johnson, explaining the necessity for keeping control of the city, asserted that the Amritsar disturbances were the result of four airplanes and the imposition of martial law, saved Lahore from a worse fate than Amritsar. The only incident he regretted was the flogging of a priest and a wedding party, which, he said, was contrary to orders. He explained that the magistrate responsible for the flogging was a Sikh, who was then commissioner in the Lahore district, which included Amritsar. He declared the flogging would have cost $1000, saying the causes included the following:

- 1. The poorer classes in the city had been hard pressed by high prices.
- 2. Political agitation, and fourth, the Mohammedan trouble.

Kitchin said he supposed the spark that set off the Amritsar disturbances was given by the Amritsar committee, which was then commissioner in the Lahore district, which included Amritsar. He declared the flogging would have cost $1000, saying the causes included the following:

WHISKEY WAITING FOR CARGO SPACE

U. S. Distillers Anxious to Export Millions of Gallons Before January 16.

New York, Dec. 19.—Distillers and other owners of alcoholic beverages are seeking to export millions of gallons of whiskey and other liquors from this and other eastern ports before January 16, when the national prohibition amendment becomes effective, but are meeting with great difficulty in getting freight and cargo space, it was learned here today.

Shipping men declare that it is extremely doubtful whether cargo space can be obtained for more than a comparatively small percentage of the liquors offered for export, also some firms have announced a willingness to help distillers and others out of their difficulties.

Custom house officials state a heavy export movement already is under way. Liquor exports have been increasing steadily for many months, but the heavy movement is said to have begun in October, the latest month for which detailed statistics are available, when the value of the exports of distilled alcohol, spirituous and malt liquors reached $1,307,274, compared with only $393,774 during the same period last year.

SNAPSHOTS OF MEN REFUSING TO STRIKE USEFUL TO O.B.U.

New Way of Ousting "Scabs" Revealed at Winnipeg Strike Trial.

QUESTIONING BY JUDGE

Canadian Press Despatch. Winnipeg, Man., Dec. 19.—When the strike of Alberta Miners was launched last May, Edward Brown of Calgary, now a One Big Union worker, but then an official of the United Mine Workers of America, wrote advising that snapshots of the men who refused to go on strike should be secured with the object of placing them in a "scab gallery."

The object of exhibiting the photos in this way at miners' halls was to enable "the boys" to recognize the "finks," if the men left Drumheller after the strike for other jobs, and to get work under assumed names and to run them out of camp.

Expressed in Brown's letter were taken up by Mr. J. Thompson, chief of the strike, who told his lordship that he did not remember whether he had given his approval of snapshots being taken for a scab gallery, but he approved of them. "This avowed brought the sharp query from his lordship: 'Do you approve of forwarding photos of men who have not been afterwards run out of the town?'"

Ready to Run Them Out. To this the witness gave a negative reply, but added that he would approve of their being forwarded with a view to the men being run out of the organization. Christopher is the man who, according to suggestions by crown counsel, was found in his night gown on the top of a house in an Alberta mining camp by returned soldiers and run out of the place. Witness denied that he had been in the night gown at the time and explained that he had been conducted out of the town in an automobile by a "bunch of scabs" who had taken him and afterwards been dispersed with.

Examined by E. J. McMurray for the defence, Christopher denied that the doctor's evidence taken in any way connected with the Winnipeg strike, claiming that it had been called in consequence of an order issued by Mr. Armstrong, director, that there should be an eight-hour day, and a corresponding reduction in pay. Pressed to admit that the order gave nine hours pay for eight hours work, witness said that only a few would get the nine hours pay.

Scores Citizens' Committee. Attacks on the citizens' committee were resumed in the afternoon at the night session Mr. McMurray called a witness, Dr. George Kallishman, and in an attempt to get the doctor's evidence taken in any way connected with the Winnipeg strike, claiming that it had been called in consequence of an order issued by Mr. Armstrong, director, that there should be an eight-hour day, and a corresponding reduction in pay. Pressed to admit that the order gave nine hours pay for eight hours work, witness said that only a few would get the nine hours pay.

RUSHING THE REDS

Two alleged anarchists, who are said by the police to rank with Berkman and Goldman as radical leaders, arrived here tonight from Chicago in the custody of city detectives. They were Charles E. Ruthenberg of Cleveland, Ohio, and Isaac E. Ferguson of Chicago, who were indicted last night for conspiracy and grand jury for statements in a manifesto issued following a convention of communists held in this city.

Ferguson, who is a native of Winnipeg, Man., according to the police, is national treasurer of the communist party of America and editor of a weekly called "The Communist," which is published in Chicago. Ruthenberg was a Socialist candidate for governor of Ohio in 1912, and was assistant editor of the "Workers' Weekly."

The radicals were arrested early this month in Chicago and put up a fight against extradition. The section of the manifesto drawn up at the communist convention upon which the indictment is said to have been based, reads:

"The communist does not propose to capture the state, but to conquer and destroy."

This manifesto, the police say, was published and distributed in large numbers.

YORK COUNTY AND SUBURBS TORX PARTY IS BY NO MEANS DEAD

Says Mayor Church, Urging North Danforth Association to Take Courage.

That Canada, despite the arguments of Premier Drury to the contrary, was entering on the greatest era of prosperity that she has ever known was the statement made by Mayor Church at the organization meeting of the North Danforth Conservative Association in Player's Hall last night.

His worship spoke first on the Conservative party in Ontario, which he said, was by no means dead. He urged the conservatives to stand by the national policy of the Liberal Conservative party and for the introduction of a stable tariff.

The mayor made a strong plea for representation of a population, which, he said, had to come both in federal and provincial affairs. "Toronto with its huge population should on this basis have about 25 members, instead of the 10 that it has now," said the mayor, amid applause. "We had representation by population in France and in England, but we do not have it at home," he queried. It was a British principle and as such should be immediately introduced.

The Drury government's stand on the Labor party would receive from amalgamating with the Farmers' party. "Farmers have no eight-hour day, nor do they in any case pay wages, but free trade had to be kept up, however, to be understood as criticizing the Drury government," he concluded. He wished them all good luck, but free trade had to be kept out of provincial affairs, even the U. F. O. was an offshoot of the Grain Growers' Association, who were wholeheartedly in favor of free trade. No need to be ashamed.

A convention was needed, both provincial and federal, where a platform could be adopted, which would represent in all people of the Dominion. No one of the party needed to be ashamed of the Conservative record in Canada's public affairs, he said. The Hylo in particular, he pointed out to be one of the greatest public ownership schemes in the British empire. Mayor Church criticized the Drury government's stand on the question of Hydro radicals. "They do not represent the farmers generally if they are not in favor of the Hydro," concluded the mayor. The meetings were run on record as endorsing his candidature, despite the fact that his worship stated that he would make a definite announcement on Monday or Tuesday next.

J. R. MacNicol, who acted as temporary chairman, had some hot shot for the farmers generally and Hon. A. C. Hanson, in particular, he criticized their stand on the tariff question and said: "These people are drunk with power and they are only in order to get a few dollars." Mr. MacNicol advocated the necessity of an early convention, and he urged the association to bring pressure to bear upon the government by representation by population be introduced through the country.

Election Results. The elections resulted as follows: Hon. J. M. Bennett, 1232 St. Clair street, president; Neil MacDonald, vice-president; J. A. Whiteside, secretary; Wm. Tyler, treasurer; E.
