Forty-Five Officers and Men Go Down to Join Makaroff and His Crew.

St. Petersburg, April 14.—The official bulletin this afternoon, conveying the intelligence of the loss of another torpedo boat destroyer and the accidental capping of another battleship, was almost as severe as the loss of the Petropavlovsk yesterday.

The Russian word in the text of the official despatch describing the accident to the Pobieda means either "mine" or "torpedo," but the qualifying verb indicates something moving towards the ship. This despatch puts an end to the idea prevailing here that there had been an engagement following the disaster to the Petropavlovsk.
It is considered remarkable here that the Japanese did not take advantage of this terrible accident to attack Port Arthur. After the official bulletin had been issued this afternoon there was talk of a possibility of the destruction of the Petropavlovsk having been caused by a submarine boat, but this received little consideration in official circles.

MAKAROFF WHILE EATING
BREAKFAST IN HIS CABIN
GOES DOWN TO HIS DEATH

Explosion of Boilers of Petropavlovsk Came Without a Moment's Warning.

St. Petersburg, April 14.—The Associated Press obtained to-night what is the official version of the sinking of the battleship Petropavlovsk at Port Arthur, and it clears up to a great extent the mysterious features of that vessel's destruction. This version is as follows: Referring before the advance of a superior Japanese fleet, which was not fighting its progress, the Russian squadron approached the entrance to the harbor. It was shortly after 3 o'clock in the morning, and most of the officers and members of the crew were at breakfast on the flagship, Vice-Admiral Makaroff was eating breakfast in his cabin, and the ward-room was crowded with officers. On the bridge Grand Duke Cyril, his lieutenant, Lieut. Von Kobe, Captain Jakovlev, commanding the vessel, and two other officers were on watch examining the narrow entrance, preparing to enter it.

STARK EXPLAINS IT.

St. Petersburg, April 14.—Vice-Admiral Stark (formerly in command of the Russian fleet at Vladivostok) in an interview to-day, is quoted as saying:
"In my opinion the Petropavlovsk struck one of the contact mines laid off Cape Lihssan (the southern part of the peninsula on which Port Arthur is situated), but which had been destroyed by the Japanese. The mine exploded, and which drifted under the stern of the south gales into the roadstead. It could not have been seen from the harbor, because the harbor, because the latter are not contact mines, but are fired by torpedoes from the shore." In naval circles there are those who believe the explosion was internal and external. In support of that theory they declared that the bodies of the victims were fearfully burned, some reports saying that Vice-Admiral Makaroff was blown to pieces. The loss of the vessel involved in the tragedy of 1904 was serious than supposed, it being learned that Makaroff's whole staff was boarded the Petropavlovsk.

SKRYDLOFF WILL COMMAND
AS MAKAROFF'S SUCCESSOR

Appointed by the Czar Last Night and Ordered to Hustle to Far East.

St. Petersburg, April 14.—The emperor's choice of a successor to the late Vice-Admiral Makaroff as commander-in-chief of the Russian naval forces in the far east, has fallen upon Vice-Admiral Skrydloff, whom he appointed this evening, telegraphing to him to go direct, from Sebastopol, where he is in command of the Black Sea fleet, to Port Arthur and assume command there.

WIRELESS TALKS UP.

Nyborg, Finland, April 14.—The Russian squadron, commanded by Admiral Wierenski, consisting of the battleship Osliha, the protected cruiser Aurora and the torpedo boat destroyers accompanying them, arrived here to-day and anchored in the harbor. The warships probably will remain here until tomorrow.

ARTIST AND JOURNALIST.

St. Petersburg, April 14.—Vassili Verestchagin, the Russian painter, was Vice-Admiral Makaroff's guest on the Petropavlovsk. It is reported that he was lost with the ship.
Nicholas T. Kravtchenko, the well-known Russian literary man, who was acting as correspondent for the Associated Press at Port Arthur, it is believed, was with the Petropavlovsk.
Telegrams to him remain unanswered.
The exact number of Vice-Admiral Makaroff's staff on board the Petropavlovsk when she sank is unknown.
The Petropavlovsk had a complement of about 650, of which 12 were saved at last accounts.

the least of which is the changing of new illuminant, which has made such wonderful strides during the past three years, the celebrated Sicbe gas.

CRUDE OIL MEN MEET

Formal Opening of Rooms of Pro-

Government Supporters Say Octopus Prevented Company From Securing Capital.

St. Petersburg, April 14.—(Special.)—The formal opening of the rooms of the Crude Oil Producers' Association of Canada occurred here to-night, when, in response to the invitations sent out by the secretary, representatives from all the producing districts in this part of Canada were present.

At the opening proceedings the president, W. Gleason, spoke of the need of such an organization, and expressed the pleasure he felt that there were so many of the practical men interesting as they did such a wide extent of territory.

The secretary then read letters of regret from members of the association in Halifax, Winnipeg and other distant points, and their inability to be present due to the distance. He also read the constitution of the association as then put and carried and the action of the directors, was ratified.

Seven members of the legislature were heard yesterday on both sides of the 800 question. To-day I. B. Lucas will have the floor, having moved the adjournment at 11.30 last night. The day opened with the concluding remarks of W. A. Hanna, who occupied an hour in their delivery, and advanced strong arguments against the guarantee. Following him were Messrs. Conmee, Hoyle, Davis, Duff, Murphy, Russell and Morrison.

The hand of the United States steel trust in the distressed condition of the 800 enterprises was revealed by some of the speakers on the government side.
In a general way they said the 800 company were met at every turn in their efforts to secure capital by the trust, who were anxious to prevent the revival of the steel industry; but this argument was characterized as mere bluff and those using it were accused of having full knowledge that the government would give adequate protection to the steel rail industry.

During the discussion Mr. Conmee, one of the Alberta Central contractors, declared his intention of voting on the bill, and that he would vote in favor of the bill, but that he would not be bound by the vote of the majority, as he was a creditor, and he would ask for a ruling as to his right to vote, and if the speaker ruled in his favor, he would vote against the bill.

Mr. Hanna continues.

Mr. Hanna occupied an hour in concluding his address. He pointed out that the capitalists perfectly validly in a 10 per cent. inducement on the securities offered were willing to go in for the 10 per cent. inducement on the security of the province, and compared the proposition to a farmer being unable to borrow $200 on the security of his farm.

The affidavits of Messrs. Conmee and Rovell could not be disposed of lightly, and the speaker said that he would call all the assets of the Consolidated Company were not sufficient to pay the mortgage.

It was admitted that the mortgage was perfectly valid, therefore there were no assets on which Messrs. Conmee and Rovell could resist the mortgage. It was stated that in the Dominion treasury were set aside against the lien of the contractor; if the contractor would not sue, he would be figured as assets of the allied companies.

Made no claim.

Messrs. Conmee and Rovell both denied that they made any claim for the money in the Dominion treasury, and the speaker said he had from an independent source learned that the indebted contractor had been paid.
Mr. Conmee declared that Mr. Hanna could not get a letter from the council, and that Mr. Hanna was making a direct intimation that Mr. Hanna was stating what was not true. Mr. Conmee said that Mr. Hanna was making misunderstood his informant.

Called returns.

Investigating the returns, he quoted some remarkable figures. These showed that the returns on the railway were $2,100,000 and expenses only $700,000.
In contradiction there was the statement that the railway had a net profit of $1,400,000. The speaker said that the returns could not be expected to earn for some years. Were the returns on which the government agreed to guarantee the railway to be paid to Mr. Hanna. From the day the road was begun, the cost of transporting the laborers was paid by the railway, and the boats were credited with net earnings of $275,000. Was there any net profit on the railway? The speaker asked the government to advise the labor people of Glasgow of the condition of the Canadian labor market.

Resolution protesting against the employment of an employer of labor as a member of the government was passed. The provisional Labor Day committee will in future be elected by the sections instead of by the whole union.

VERY LITTLE EVIDENCE OF WIFE IMPERSONATION

Many Witnesses Called at Resumption of Enquiry, But No Startling Results.

The investigation into the civic election frauds was resumed by Judge Winchester yesterday morning after more than a month's interval occupied with the general sessions. The result of the day's work, which consisted of an enquiry into alleged cases of personation collected by the police, was to glean out of sixty persons subpoenaed at a dollar a head, perhaps a dozen cases in which personation may be established. These cases were taken from sub-divisions 1-17 of Ward Six, and what has been found does not afford encouragement to the pursuit of the enquiry much further in this particular line. A bench warrant for J. B. Cook, who did not wait for his examination yesterday morning, was asked for by Mr. Riddell, and this and a few other cases in Ward Six and those prepared in Ward Five will be taken up this morning. If no better success is met with this line of evidence will be abandoned, as sufficient has been done to prove that there has been no wholesale personation such as police reports seemed to indicate.

Mistakes Will Happen.
