Chicago, Sept. 26—The greatest player on the White Sox team? Not the $50,000 beauty, Eddie Collins, not Happy Felsch, hailed as the coming ty Cobb of the American League; not Ray Schalk, acknowledged the premier backstop; not Chick Gandil, the man who stopped the gap through which the penant oozed away last year; nor even Cioetto, who leads all hurlers for the season, but "Buck" Weaver—according to Owner Comiskey, the man who pays the salaries of all of them.

What constitutes the greatest player is oftentimes as much a question as which one is the greatest player. The answer to the latter is usually found in the mechanical superiority of the candidate under discussion, but Owner Comiskey has entered the realm of psychology in naming Weaver as his greatest, for it is Buck's spirit which has won him the distinction as against the greater mechanical excellence of some of his teammates.

Wagner for Coach Duty

The benching of Honus Wagner as a regular for Fritz Mollwitz at first base on the much changed Pirate team probably means the beginning of the end of the Dutchman's incomparable baseball career, writes Larry Lancaster in the Pittsburgh Chronicle Telegraph. While Wagner is still a valuable and handy man to have around any ball club, it is unlikely that the patriarch of the discount will again be asked to assume the responsibilities of a regular guardian of any position on the Pirates. His days as a regular are over, and from now on his big job will be that of coach for the many youngsters that will be tried out between now and the beginning of next season. His other duties will be as pinch hitter and pinch fielder, if the occasion demands.

RING

Clabby Is a Favorite

Philadelphia, Sept. 26—Jimmy Clabby, American middleweight, has always been a favorite in Australia. Clabby is given great credit by a Sydney referee for an exhibition he furnished in a recent bout in the Antipodes. Clabby stepped out of his class to take on an Australian heavyweight, Albert Lloyd. The American put up such a pleasing encounter that he was awarded a draw with his heavier opponent.

Bout in Montreal

Montreal, Sept. 27—Eddie Wallace shaded Harry Condon in a ten round bout with which these New York boxers inaugurated the season at Sohmer Park here last night under the auspices of the Canadian Hockey Club. Both appeared to be over weight.

GICOTTE AND SCHUPP

MAY PITCH OPENING

GAME IN SERIES

There are two world series types who promise to add considerable zest to the post-season championship. One is Eddie Cioetto, a White Sox star. The other is Ferdinand Schupp, a Giant southpaw.

Whatever the ingredient or the delivery, or what not, Cioetto has a baffling throw that is thought to be almost unhittable by any club that has ever faced him. American Leagueers say that Ciocetto's so-called "shine ball" will land the Giants upon their beam ends, leaving them thwarted and depressed. In the same way Schupp is also likely to be a big puzzle for any club which has never faced him. The Giant southpaw has more speed and a sharper curve than his size would indicate, and, to help this along, he has a deceptive delivery that isn't exactly gauged. It is fairly likely that Cioetto and Schupp will meet in the first game. McGraw may pick Poll
