WATERPROOF PAPER

May Be Used as Substitute for Leather or Rubber.

A British patent has been granted a new method of waterproofing paper to such an extent that it may be used as a substitute for rubber or leather, or for the manufacture of small articles like purses. The patent is abstracted in the October issue of Chemical and Metallurgical Engineering, and states that the material is prepared by impregnating long-fibred paper with a warm solution of animal and vegetable glutinous substances. After drying, whole oil or fat is rubbed into the treated paper. The long-fibred Japanese paper is considered preferable, and the following impregnating solution is considered suitable: Gelatine, one part; arrowroot, one part; potassium bicarbonate, one-half part; calcium chloride or glycerine, three parts, and to reduce flammability, three parts of ammonium carbonate are added. He was rather surprised to learn that large numbers are used as game fish. Fredericton, N. B., March 15.—Thomas F. Allen, superintendent of the Tobique Salmon Club, is here today. He says that there is a danger that this salmon, should it become acclimatized and accustomed to conditions in the St. John river, will crowd out the Atlantic salmon to which furnishes the angler his sport as well as the harbor and river fishermen part of their income.

BOAR CHARGES THE FOOTBALL PLAYERS

Wild Scene at Swiss Game—Animals Driven Out of the Woods by Hunger.

Geneva, March 15.—Winter in the Swiss Alps has been so severe that scores of wild boars, wolves and other animals have been driven to the towns and lowlands in search of food. The authorities are offering bounties for their death or capture.

Recently 4,000 persons witnessing a football match at Beausson, near the western frontier, were thrown into a panic by the sudden appearance of a huge tusked boar. Goaded by hunger, the animal charged the players and bowled several of them over. It then turned its attention to the football, apparently mistaking it for something edible.

The boar ran wildly about the field, making finally for the spectators, who took to their heels. A gendarme ended the animal's escapade with a revolver shot.

The boar, which weighed 120 pounds, was later served to the players and their guests at a banquet in the town hall, the referee meanwhile having declared the game a draw.
