MELANCHOLY DISASTER :-- "ATL'S WELL THAT ENDS WELL.

A startling elopement occurred the other evening in the vicinity of Hardscrabble. A fair youth and maiden of that locality had been for e eral months "hankering after each other." For some time all went well. A week ago last|Sunday night while Dick was escorting the fair Polly from the sanctuary, he told her of the passion that was burning in his "buzzum," and with flattering accents begged to know if his affections were reciprocate With maiden coyness she intimated that they were, and for further particulars referred him to her "Pa." Dick "screwed his courage to the sticking point," and on the followin Monday night requested an interview with the old man. He informed the aged patriarch of the honor which he designed doing him by marrying his daughter; but had scarcely co cluded his remarks when a massive boot flew up, and sent him ont of the door instanter. He felt put out. Shortly afterwards he had an interview with the dear object of his juvenile affections, and she agreed to elope with him at the first convenient opportunity.

The other night at the time when church yards yawn and ghostses rise, he drove up to her father's mansion. Leaving the horse at the gate, he crept to Polly's window. He rhistled softly, the window was opened and a undle of clothes was thrown out, and the fair Polly herself descended to terra firma by the aid of a stout rope.

They hastily made tracks for the buggy, They hastily made tracks for the buggy, but did not manage to get into it before the family watch dog had torn a huge gap in his don't-mentionems. The dog's bark aroused the stern parent, who harnessed a horse, and went after the fond couple. A most exciting chase now took place. Whack! went the whips, and on went the horses. For a number of miles Diek kept at a fair, distance from per of miles Dick kept at a fair distance from his pursuer; but, just as he was crossing a bridge, he unfortunately drove too near the edge. The vehicle tipped completely over, and gently deposited our hero and heroine in the quagmire. The mud was soft, and the part of their bodies were submerged infuriated parent now approached, and saw the state of affairs,-

His sense of the ludicrous predominated earty laughter at their expense.

After his mirth had subsided he gave them his paternal benediction, and informed them that they could go and get spliced at the earliest opportunity. After much trouble they were extricated from the gusgmire, and a short drive brought them to the parson's house, where they were pronounced man and wife. The following evening the Hardscrabble tin band, consisting of eight superanuated milkans and five dinner-horns, paid them a visit, and discoursed sweet music before the resi-

Death of a Young Lady from Disappointment in Love. From the Boston Journal, August 12.

A sad but interesting case of the death of a young lady, named Susan King, is a general topic of conversation at Woburn at the present time. The deceased had been affianced to a young man, to whom, it appears, she was deeply attached. Some weeks since, she happened to observe him in company with another young woman, under such circ stances as to give rise to feelings of jealousy on her part. She upbraided him for his con-duct, and he replied to her remonstrances in a spirited manner, which further provoked her to dismiss him. It seems, however, that she still cherished in secret the old affection, and the disappointment so weighed upon her mind as to cause a severe nervous attack, reaulting, about ten days since, in utter pros-tration. She remained in this condition until her death, which occurred on Saturday last. The circumstances having been so peculiar, and the malady having baffled the skill of the physicians, it was deemed proper an autopsy should be performed, which was done on Monday by Drs Cutter and Abbot. No trace of disease, or obvious cause of death, was discoverable; but the system was apparently in an entirely healthy and normal condition The deceased was a person of excellent character and fine personal appearance, and was much esteemed and beloved.

BENEFITS OF SUNDAY SCHOOLS .- A pettifogging lawyer and manager in a new settlement in Wisconsin, gave a missionary of the American Sunday School Union the following account of a Sunday School: "I organized the first Sunday School in this country, and ran it myself one season. We came here early, all Americans. We wanted to draw in decent, industrious families, and keep out for-eigners and rewdies. So I said, 'A Sunday ool will attract the folks we want, and keep others out. It will be the best and cheapest way to blow for the settlement.'-There was not one of us that pretended to heve a grain of piety; so they pitched upon me to carry out the plan. I did so, and sent to your society and got a library, and ran the school all summer. It did the blowing for us splendidly. Before summer ended some Christian families came in, and as they had a better stock of piety, I gave over the Sunday School into their hands. It was a grand thing for us. There wasn't a foreigner of any sort that ever stopped in the settlement more than one night. We secured a good American and maral settlement. In fact, it got to be so pious that I couldn't live there myself."

EATUNG PORK -Brigham Young, in a late address to the faithful, made pork the subject of remark. He dissuaded the brethren from the use of swine's flesh, saying that he fully agreed with the Jewish lawgiver on this subject, and would be pleased to see the hog banished from Uth. Beef, mutton, wild game, fish, fruits d vegetables, supplied an ample variety of for the human family, without the aid of the dirty hog. This animal was banned cen-turies ago, still it holds its way in most countries. The family in the Unites States at the present, scarcely numbers less than forty
